To Meet the Reduction.

$260,000 IS SLICED
FROM 1939 BUDGET

Cook Says Services Will Be Stopped Before Salaries Are Cut.

Elimination of all extra-curricular services, including kindergartens, the Opportunity and night schools, is being considered by the Atlanta board of education, Ed S. Cook, its president, said yesterday as city council prepared to meet tomorrow to act on a 1939 city budget which carries a reduction of about $260,000 in school revenue as compared to 1938.

Members of the board yesterday held "an informal conference" and decided that a cut in services is better than asking "employees to maintain these services by salary cuts." There was every indication that the board proposes to proceed with eliminations and other economies if additional funds are not provided.

Action Considered.
Cook issued a statement which, although it did not flatly threaten to eliminate the activities, mentioned them by name and said the board is "considering" that action if it becomes necessary.

The 1939 budget, carrying 1939 revenue from general sources at $9,803,400.25 and a grand total from all sources, including unsold bonds, at $11,739,227.15, will be one of the major matters facing council when it meets tomorrow.

Several attempts to provide new salary increases from a $25,000 set-up and unappropriated in the contingent fund will be made, it was indicated yesterday.

Raises Sought.
Councilman J. Allen Couch will insist that the salary of Assistant City Attorney Courtland S. Winn, former mayor, be increased from $250 a month to $325, and Councilman Cecil W. Hester will bring in an amendment to the finance sheet to raise the salaries of "several men working for $18 a week."

There were reports that other efforts will be made to include raises although none of them were announced.

A major item in the recommendations of the finance committee is a special allocation of $70,000 for public improvements with which the municipality proposes to "trade" with federal, state and county authorities to bring a large list of general improvements to the city.

Councilman John A. White also will offer a measure looking towards institution of "uniform and standardized traffic regulations" in metropolitan Atlanta. The program contemplates the participation of Fulton and DeKalb counties, Atlanta, Decatur, East Point, College Park, Hapeville and probably Avondale.

Cook's Statement.
Cook yesterday issued the following statement regarding the financial crisis which is facing the schools:

"The members of the board of education have seen a copy of the 1939 budget of the city of Atlanta, approved by the budget commission and the finance committee of

... And Driver's Only Complaint Is for Lost Candy Bar

RELIEF, CCC, NYA MERGER PUSHED

Senate Report Asks Creation of a New Department of Public Works.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(P)—A special senate committee, proposing broad revision of the relief structure, recommended tonight that congress consolidate all relief agencies into a single, new Department of Public Works.

The report of the unemployment committee came as the senate prepared to take up consideration of the relief appropriation bill. The house passed that measure yesterday—after clipping off $150,000,000 from the figure recommended by President Roosevelt and writing in restrictions on WPA policies. The bill now calls for $725,000,000.

In addition to the consolidation proposal, the senate committee recommended two other major changes:

Enlarge Contributions.
Increase to 33 1-3 per cent the proportion of relief contributions required of local governments, with some exceptions. (The committee said contributions now ranged from 22 per cent.)

The committee urged also that future WPA allotments be based on population of the states and the number of unemployed in each state as shown by the 1937 unemployment census.

It proposed that the average local contribution to the cost of relief be fixed at one-third, except in states where the average income per capita is lower than the similar national average. In approximately one-half of the states which would fall in the latter class, local contributions would be proportionately reduced.

WPA, PWA, the Civilian Conservation Corps and the National Youth Administration should be brought under one directing head, appointed by the President and confirmed by the senate, as the chief of a new Department of Public Works, the committee said. It recommended a permanent federal

Mourns Candy After Train Smashes Car

J. O. Babb Treated for Dislocated Shoulder and a Cracked Rib.

Aside from minor injuries, and the sudden disappearance of a candy bar on which he had been nibbling, a College Park insurance salesman escaped early last night from a collision in which his automobile was demolished and propelled 50 feet along railroad tracks by a Central of Georgia local.

The crash occurred at the John Wesley avenue crossing in College Park. The motorist, J. O. Babb, 35, of 206 East Yale avenue, was jammed so precariously beneath the steering wheel that rescuers were forced to use a crowbar to release him.

Hurried in an ambulance to Piedmont hospital, he was found to have sustained only a dislocated left shoulder, a cracked right collar bone and one fractured right rib. Witnesses told investigating police his escape from instant death was "miraculous."

On his way to the hospital in an ambulance Babb nonchalantly mourned loss of the candy bar.

The train was an inbound Atlanta-Columbus local. Witnesses said its slow pace as it approached the terminal probably accounted for his survival.

Tennessean Contests U. S. Senate Election

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 14.—(P)—Dr. John R. Neal, Knoxville attorney and unsuccessful independent candidate for the United States senate in the November election, said today he had mailed a petition to Senate Secretary Edwin A. Halsey in Washington contesting the election of A. Tom Stewart, of Winchester.

Dr. Neal said the petition charged that Stewart's nomination in the Democratic primary and subsequent election "were both procured in an illegal and fraudulent manner," and in violation of state and federal laws.

Longino Spikes Series of Rumors That He Plans Return to Politics

When George F. Longino suddenly resigned Thursday as a member of the Fulton county commission, he really quit politics, he announced last night.

Taking cognizance of a series of reports that he is casting a long eye on additional plums, Longino said firmly, "I'm going into the banking business. I am not a candidate for any political office and have no intention of being a candidate for one."

"When I resigned, I said I was doing so because the directors of my bank wanted me to devote my full time to the institution (the Bank of Fulton County). I told the public the whole truth when I made the statement, just as I have told the truth in every public utterance I made while I

HUGE EXPANSION OF AIRPORT URGED

$1,000,000 Plan Outlined as CAA Lists City for Highest Rated Field.

Jack Gray, manager of the Atlanta airport, yesterday outlined a $1,000,000 improvement program to maintain Atlanta as the airway hub of the south as Washington announcements indicated 10 other Georgia cities may be included in the $300,000,000 expansion program which the Civil Aeronautics Authority will propose to congress.

Acquisition of two plots of land containing 200 acres is necessary for the Atlanta field to get a Class 4 rating, the highest obtainable under the national rating system. Gray estimated that about $80,000 will be needed for the purchase.

In a preliminary report made by the CAA, it was proposed the Atlanta airport be raised to the No. 4 rating, calling for three paved runways 4,500 feet long each.

Gray yesterday asserted that under preliminary plans already developed by field engineers, it is contemplated that the improvements at the field shall "exceed the inside limit in order to meet every demand which may be made on it."

"Our plans provide for extension of the east and west runway from its present 2,600 feet to 4,600 feet, and the northwest-southeast runway, the one with the prevailing wind, for its present 3,500 feet to 6,000 feet," Gray said.

"We also propose an entirely new runway from northeast to southwest extending from 3,200 to 3,500 feet. This in our opinion would give Atlanta facilities unequalled by any other port in the country and would place us in a position to command a dominating place among other favored key cities."

"If the program is carried out, the federal government would not only construct, but would maintain the field after the runways are constructed. This in itself would be a great advantage. It appears, however, from the best information available that the cities are expected to provide the land for any improvements, and the Atlanta airport has already expanded to the full limit of its holdings."

In addition to the Atlanta improvement, the Washington announcement said Albany, Americus, Augusta, Brunswick, Columbus, Macon, Savannah and Waycross are listed to Class 3 ratings, with two paved runways 3,500 feet long each.

Athens and Gainesville are listed for expansion into Class 2 ratings with paved runways 2,500 feet long.

DEATH TOLL RISES TO 31 AS SNOWS BLANKET NATION

MOTORISTS FORCED

In Missouri, Patrolmen Start Dispersing Snow-Swept Sharecroppers.

By The Associated Press.
Deep winter snows, routing false harbingers of spring, blanketed much of the nation last night with the heaviest fall of the 1938-39 season.

At least 31 storm deaths were reported as sub-freezing temperatures glazed highways from the Atlantic coast to the Rocky mountains.

The fatalities resulted from airplane accidents, sledding mishaps, heart attacks while shoveling snow, traffic crashes on icy streets, and exposure.

Four persons lost their lives near Miles City, Mont., in the flaming dive of a Northwest Airlines plane which exploded during a sleet storm and plunged into a snow-covered creek bottom.

In New Madrid, Mo., the state highway patrol started to break up a homeless army of more than 1,000 sharecroppers entrenched in snow and rain-soaked highway camps. Authorities said the sharecropper families, ousted from their homes, were "a menace to public health."

While winter gripped this country, roaring brush fires swept across the heat-parched state of Victoria, Australia, killing at least 60 persons and inflicting property damage estimated at millions of dollars.

Nearly 10 inches of snow, two inches more than Thanksgiving Day's heavy fall, covered New York and brought out 32,000 shovel-and-sweep workers to keep traffic moving. Hundreds of motorists abandoned their cars at the height of the storm en route to their suburban homes.

Maryland reported the heaviest snowfall since 1927, with 10 inches. The far south and traditionally sunny California basked in semi-tropical weather. In Dixie, "generally fair" weather prevailed over Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, Alabama, Louisiana, Georgia and Florida. Los Angeles reported the mercury at 69 degrees.

Rivers were reported rising near the danger-point in east Texas, and marshes and lowlands were flooded.

Detroit spent $45,000 cleaning up its heaviest snowfall of the season and reported more than 300 accidents, none fatal.

He Wins Right To Fish For Fur-Clad Trout

DENVER, Col., Jan. 14.—(UP)—Wilbur Foshy, who says that fur-bearing trout swim in the icy waters of the Arkansas river near Salida, where he is secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, today won the right to prove his story. At least the State Game and Fish Commission said it would give him a chance to catch such a fish.

The commission issued a special permit for him to fish the Arkansas—trout fishing is barred in the winter—and also said a special warrant would be sent along to record the catch, if any.

60 Perish in Blaze That Heats City to 112

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 14.—(UP)—The death toll in the great brush fires in Victoria mounted to more than 60 today. The latest victims were 21 men and two women who lost their lives near Woodpoint and three children burned to death near Noojee.

A torrid wind fanned the flames over many square miles of dry brush land. The temperature at Sydney was 112.5 degrees and at Melbourne it was reported several degrees higher.

Heads of Schools Discuss Endowment

LEGISLATORS LOOK TO TAX REVISIONS

Streamlined System With Sales or Gross Income Levy Appears in Making

By ROBERT BUNNELLE, Association Press Staff Writer.

A streamlined system of taxation with some form of sales or gross income levy depositing state ad valorem and "nuisance" taxes appeared in the making for Georgia yesterday.

The legislature was in recess until Tuesday but its leaders spent a busy week end in conferences on how best to raise the $8,500,000 additional annually Governor Rivers estimates is needed to carry out the state program of social security, health and education.

With his program cramped by a lack of finances that has state departments operating on 55 per cent of their appropriations, Rivers asserted in his inaugural address this week, "we must raise this $8,500,000 and pay this appropriation bill in full."

He added that the principal task facing the legislature and the administration was "completing and financing of the program" and asserted the only way "government can get money with which to give these services to the people is through taxation."

The Governor went further to say that while the 1937-38 assembly made progress toward revision of the tax system "in order to make a more equitable distribution of the tax burden and to adequately finance the program" it was recognized that it would be up to the 1939-40 legislature "to complete the program on the basis of actual experience of operation."

Looking over a sheaf of letters and newspaper clippings dealing with his inaugural address, Rivers said yesterday, "I am pleased and grateful for the reception given my inaugural address outlining our problem. And I am delighted with the swift and hearty response of the Arkansas river near Salida, where he is secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, today won the right to prove his story. At least the State Game and Fish Commission said it would give him a chance to catch such a fish."

France Acts To Awe Italy With Fleet

Demonstration of Force From One End of Mediterranean to Other Set.

PARIS, Jan. 14.—(P)—France today ordered displays of force from one end of the Mediterranean to the other, apparently against what the Daladier government considers the aggressive attitude of Italy.

The French Atlantic and Mediterranean fleets were ordered to show their strength off Africa's northwest coast in maneuvers which will coincide with the Mediterranean visit of the British home fleet on a regular spring cruise.

Three submarines received instructions to proceed to Syria where demands for freedom from French control have caused rioting.

French army and navy commanders-in-chief were told to make tours of inspection of African colonial fortifications.

The government prepared to make a big demonstration over the launching of the Richelieu, France's first 35,000-ton battleship, at Brest next Tuesday.

Foreign Minister Bonnet was to leave for Geneva to confer with Viscount Halifax, British foreign secretary, before attending a League of Nations council meeting beginning Monday.

Halifax, on his way to Geneva from Rome, will inform Bonnet on the "appeasement talks" between British Prime Minister Chamberlain and Premier Mussolini.

Pessimism prevails in French official circles over the outcome of the Rome talks and, therefore, over the possibility of clearing up the Mediterranean situation, clouded by Fascist territorial aspirations at French expense.

Concern also was felt over the swift drive of the Spanish Insurgents toward Barcelona, carrying Italian influence closer to France's southern frontier.

Atlantans ever so slightly out the book, and I don't know what they are."

Some Atlantans considered sending the ascending young star one of the beetle-like insects, but winter is not their active season, and Atlanta's weather is not one of Miss Leigh's illusions.

All were rather happy that it was over, confident that all they have to do is to rest free from debate until next September when the picture's world premiere will be held here.

Governor Rivers dipped a final oar into the rapidly calming waters.

"I don't know anything about this English actress," he said, "and I'm sure she's very lovely, but,"

STATE COLLEGES WILL CO-OPERATE IN NEW PROGRAM

Leading Institutions Obtain Big Endowment From Rockefeller Body To Advance Education.

ATLANTA TERMED

School Expansion Plan Hailed by Cox, McCain, Sanford as Progressive.

Endowment grants totaling $2,500,000 have been given Emory University and Agnes Scott College as the first step toward the development of a university center in Atlanta, it was announced yesterday by Harvey W. Cox and James R. McCain, presidents of the respective institutions.

Under provisions of the grants, made by the General Education Board of New York, a Rockefeller-endowed foundation, Emory will receive $2,000,000 and Agnes Scott $500,000.

Coincident with the announcement, Thomas K. Glenn, chairman of the Emory University finance committee, revealed that further progress was being made toward a great medical center in Atlanta, which will be part of the University Center.

System Will Co-operate.
Chancellor S. V. Sanford, of the University System, when told of the endowment, expressed gratification and declared that Georgia Tech and the University of Georgia are ready to "co-operate fully in the University Center undertaking."

Also included in the University Center plans are Columbia Seminary and the High, Museum School of Art.

In announcing the gift, Dr. Cox said the grant is one step in "substantial progress" which has been made toward a total program of $8,000,000 for Emory and $1,500,000 for Agnes Scott.

"When this program of additional funds for Emory University and Agnes Scott has been completed, we shall be able even then to offer only a part of the work which should be included in a well-integrated University Center," he stated.

"It is important to educational progress in our section that all of our higher institutions work co-operatively and that the resources

LEADERS ACCLAIM PROPOSED CENTER FOR EDUCATION

Will Be Great Benefit To Medical Plans Also, Says Thomas K. Glenn,
Discussing Offer of Gift

Praise for Atlanta as the "logical location for a regional university center" followed the announcement Saturday of endowment grants totaling $2,500,000 to Emory University and Agnes Scott College from the General Education Board of New York.

Officials of the board, a Rockefeller-endowed foundation, were attracted to Emory's and Agnes Scott's possibilities largely because of Atlanta's advantages as a regional capital. Presidents Harvey W. Cox of Emory and James R. McCain of Agnes Scott pointed out.

In addition to leaders of the board, Georgia educational leaders, among them Chancellor S. V. Sanford, of the University System, endorsed the university center plan.

Chancellor Sanford stated:

"The state system will co-operate fully in the university center program in which the university at Athens, the Georgia School of Technology, and the private institutions of Atlanta are visualized as important units.

"It is clear that co-operation between the state institutions and the private colleges and universities will bring about a stronger program of higher education for the people of Georgia.

"While there will be benefits to all concerned through elimination of useless duplications, the plan does not contemplate any financial tie-up whatever. This is not desired by either the private or the state institutions. The co-operation is limited to academic programs.

"The desires of our colleges and universities to work together for the common good presents a happy picture for Georgia education. It enables the board of regents to look upon them all as working partners in one great system.

All Are Pleased.
"The officials of the state system are much pleased as the grants from the foundations to Emory University and Agnes Scott College. We offer them our congratulations. We hope that the state

CHILLY WEEK END FORECAST FOR CITY

Possibility of Snow in North Georgia Is Seen.

A chilly week end is in prospect for Atlantans, the United States Weather Bureau in Atlanta said yesterday.

The mercury is expected to dip to 30 degrees this morning, with even colder weather scheduled for tomorrow morning. Skies today will be partly cloudy, the weatherman said. The temperature fell to 32 degrees yesterday morning and failed to rise above 47 degrees during the day.

The forecast for Georgia was "partly cloudy and slightly warmer in the south and extreme east-central portions followed by light rain or snow in extreme north portion this afternoon or tonight."

A later report prepared in Pensacola did not, however, forecast snow.

schools will be able to make similar additions to their working funds."

Dr. McCain said, in discussing the university center:

"We are particularly pleased that the experts of the General Education Board are so hearty in their approval of our local plans. For example, in a recent letter, John D. Rockefeller Jr., chairman of the General Education Board, said: 'I am well acquainted with the importance and significance of this co-operative educational enterprise which you and the other institutions involved have been working out and feel with you that it has in it very great possibilities.'"

Of the total amount offered to the two institutions, Emory will receive two million dollars and Agnes Scott one-half million. The money was earmarked for use in "development of a university center in Atlanta."

In statements issued Saturday, both Dr. Cox and Dr. McCain emphasized that the funds will not be entirely available until completion of a larger program which will result in $6,000,000 for Emory and $1,500,000 for Agnes Scott.

"Substantial progress" toward this goal already has been made, the presidents said.

Will Aid Medicine.
Plans for enlarging Atlanta's medical facilities into a great medical center for the southeast will be substantially furthered by the $2,500,000 endowment grants announced Saturday by Emory University and Agnes Scott College, Thomas K. Glenn, chairman of the Emory finance committee, predicted.

In a statement released Saturday afternoon, following the formal announcement from the general education board, Mr. Glenn declared:

"Those of us who are working for the development of a great medical center in Atlanta have been stimulated by the gifts to Emory by the general education board. We realize that the prestige of the medical center will depend on the standards maintained by the university, of which the school of medicine is a part. The gift from the foundation is the first big step and the soundest first step toward the development of a great medical center."

'Gone With the Wind' Principals Sign on Dotted Line for Selznick

David O. Selznick, who will produce the movie version of "Gone With the Wind," sees in Hollywood that Vivien Leigh, the result of a two-year search for an actress to play Scarlett O'Hara, signs on the right dotted line. Leslie Howard, who will play Ashley Wilkes in the film, and Olivia de Havilland, named for the role of Melanie, await their turns to autograph the picture contract.

New Emory Recording Equipment Remedies Student Speech Defects

Nasal twangs, ha'v'hd accents and uncontrolled falsettos may be eliminated among Emory University students this year now that the journalism department has installed radio and recording equipment for use in its courses in speech.

Students will make voice recordings when entering the course, and improvement in speech will be measured by subsequent experiments. Classes in spoken English and in radio writing will prepare scripts and present programs for analysis.

In harmony with the proposal to establish a university center in Atlanta with Emory as a nucleus, the new radio apparatus is part of the journalism's program of expansion.

Last year Emory was the first southeastern university to offer courses in radio writing. Now it claims distinction as the first Georgia school to offer actual laboratory experience for training in journalism.

Recording equipment has been mounted in a studio fitted out to duplicate as nearly as possible the conditions of professional radio broadcasting.

This new equipment records human speech and other sound with almost perfect fidelity," commented the program for the whole year.

The offer from the General Education Board reflects that organization's interest in a program of co-operation now existing between the two local organizations outlined steps to create an educational center in Atlanta in keeping with the city's position as a regional commercial capital.

In 1937, leaders of Emory University and Agnes Scott appointed an advisory committee of Atlanta businessmen which, in co-operation with friends of both institutions, will continue to advise in the expansion made possible by the newly acquired funds.

Conferences Are Held.
This group has had several conferences with representatives of the general education board and has been influential in obtaining the grant for the Atlanta institutions.

Actual plans for developing a university center in Atlanta received considerable attention in 1934 because of a survey conducted by Dr. George A. Works, professor of education at the University of Chicago. The findings of the committee, financed by the Lewis H. Beck Foundation of Atlanta at the request of Emory and Agnes Scott, briefly were:

1. The south has a great need for strong universities.

2. Atlanta is the logical location for an educational capital in the southeast.

3. Educational institutions of the Atlanta area, both state and private, through co-operation, can bring about the development of an outstanding university center, with reasonable additions to their working capital.

Better Utilization.
Studying the works report, faculty officials of Emory and Agnes Scott pointed out the possibility of better utilizing present resources of the two institutions through exchange of professors and students in certain departments; through library exchanges and co-operative buying and through co-operation in summer school work.

Co-ordination of library facilities of the two institutions has been in progress for several years, as has the summer school. Lately, exchange of students during the regular school year has been inaugurated.

Another step toward regional co-operation has been the joint summer school sessions conducted in rotation by Emory, Mercer and the University of Georgia.

anyway, I'm still for Tallulah Bankhead."

So now two years of controversy are over. As it stands, Miss Leigh will play Scarlett; Clark Gable, Rhett Butler; Leslie Howard, Ashley Wilkes, and Olivia de Havilland, Melanie.

None is southern, two are English. But Atlantans are worried little. Art is not life, but a reflection of life, they say, and Hollywood is a miraculous mirror.

CONGRESS REMAINS CALM OVER NEWS
WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(UP)—Southern congressmen tonight went about their more or less normal affairs in a more or less normal manner despite an announcement by David Selznick that an English actress will take the part of Scarlett O'Hara in the film version of "Gone With the Wind."

Most legislators of the old south too: the news that the alien Miss Vivien Leigh will portray the fictional southern belle of Civil War times with admirable calmness and continued to worry—as did their distinguished northern colleagues about appropriations, national defense and patronage.

South Safe.
Certainly no senator or representative could be induced to threaten to lead the south out of the Union because of Selznick's overt act.

One southern congressman, asked to give his thought, if any, on the idea of importing an English actress to portray the exotic Scarlett, said:

"I don't give a damn!"

Representative Lindley Beekworth, Democrat, Texas, the youngest member of the house, reported that he had not read "Gone With the Wind," probably would not see the picture, and didn't see any cause for alarm.

Representative Hugh Peterson, of Allegheny, Pa., seemed to get as excited as any of the southern legislators.

"I don't like it," he said, "not at all. Many of the scenes of the book are laid right in my district and there are some grand actresses of the south who are steeped in traditions of the Civil War period and could have played the part to perfection. For one, there is Tallulah Bankhead, daughter of Speaker Bankhead, of the house."

Resignedly, however, Peterson guessed "that there is nothing I can do about it."

Georgians Silent.
Speaker Bankhead thought that an American girl "might well have been selected." Representatives Eugene Cox, E. M. Owen, W. Ben Gibbs and Carl Vinson, all of Georgia, declined comment.

Representative Samuel Dickstein, Democrat, New York, currently sponsoring legislation to exclude foreign entertainers from our shores, considered Miss Leigh's selection "completely cockeyed."

He had a great deal more to say, mostly about the merits of his bill to bar foreign actors.

Another critic of Selznick's selection was Representative William Sirovich, Democrat, New York, who almost continuously is involved in violent legislative battles concerning the drama. Sirovich observed that he had seen thousands of American actresses "as capable, winsome and talented as Miss Leigh for this particular part."

"SCARLETT" SELECTION GRATEFUL FOR LUCK
HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Vivien Leigh, the young English actress who will play the part of the southern lass, Scarlett O'Hara, in the screen dramatization of "Gone With the Wind," was "terribly nervous" today, but at the same time "grateful beyond words."

RIVERS TO ATTEND DIXON INAUGURAL

New Alabama Governor To Take Oath in Montgomery Tomorrow.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 14. (AP)—Alabama's capital tingled with unsuppressed excitement today as time drew near for its biggest and most brilliant show, the inauguration Monday of a new Governor—the youthful-appearing Frank M. Dixon, of Birmingham.

Dixon will place his hand on the "Jefferson Davis" Bible, emulating the first and only President of the Confederate States, and be administered the oath by Chief Justice John C. Anderson as Alabama's forty-second chief executive.

Surviving are his wife; two sons, G. E. and Charlie Wallace; a sister, Mrs. Ida Cash, and two nieces, Mrs. P. L. Maner and Miss Grace Wallace.

Realization of the inauguration address, the address of the retiring Governor, and two prayers.

Much of the legislation Cooper advocated in his campaigns probably will be introduced during the week.

Cooper has received from a majority of the legislators pledges that they will hold the session within 55 days instead of the 75 allowed under the constitution.

Realization of this early introduction of his legislation.

SALES TAX OKAYED BY N. C. COMMITTEE
RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Governor Hoot's supporters in the general assembly showed their strength this week by successfully jockeying record-setting budget bills through the preliminary stages of committee hearings.

After a brief routine session today, the assembly adjourned until Monday night, with the sales tax and proposed tuition increases at state educational institutions looming as the principal problems to be faced next week.

Administration forces yesterday chalked up their first victory of the session by obtaining tentative approval from the joint finance committee of the sales tax and certain other controversial sections of the revenue bill.

Atlantan's Plane Speed Increased To 122 M.P.H.

A 27 miles per hour speed increase for Atlanta's "Hummingbird," new type of light airplane manufactured here by Wiley Moore and A. L. Belle Isle, was announced yesterday.

After a test flight, a top speed of 122 miles per hour was revealed as the result of improvements. The plane, designed with the Meth Vin slotted wing for safety, has a cruising speed of 108 miles per hour, and will now land at 19 miles per hour.

The new ship had its maiden trip last week to Miami, returning in seven hours flat. Moore will go to Miami this week to confer with Eastern Air Line officials.

Roosevelt Legislative Chiefs Speed Emergency Defense

Vinson and May Expected To Introduce Military Bills This Week.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(UP)—President Roosevelt's congressional lieutenants moved tonight to obtain rapid house consideration of the administration's $552,000,000 emergency defense program.

Chairman Carl Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, of the house naval affairs committee, said tonight he expected to introduce next week a bill authorizing the fast defense program outlined by the Hepburn naval board report which projected construction of 41 defense bases from Guam to the Caribbean and Atlantic coast.

Chairman Andrew May, Democrat, Kentucky, of the house military affairs committee, said bills would be introduced, probably Monday, authorizing the $300,000,000 expenditure for a minimum of 3,000 army planes, asked by the President in his defense message Thursday; authorizing appropriations for additional anti-aircraft and other "critical items" for which the President suggested $110,000,000; $32,000,000 for army material "educational orders"; $10,000,000 annually to train pilots and increase officer personnel, as well as other phases of the President's recommendations.

Program Termed Modest.
"These things may be expensive luxuries," May said, "but it seems we have to have them in view of world conditions. I think the President's program is very modest."

Vinson said he expected to have the budget bureau report by mid-week on his bill authorizing the defenses outlined in the Hepburn report. He indicated the proposed defense construction would be spread over a three to five-year period. Vinson declined to reveal the total authorization in his bill. Some estimates have placed the total construction at $1,500,000,000 to $2,000,000,000.

Both Vinson and May said they hoped to start hearings late in the week, or early the following week, on the defense program. They expect to get bills before the house in early February.

To Invite Lindbergh.
Vinson described the President's defense proposals as "very conservative, containing nothing of hysteria."

He said he would call Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, and Rear Admiral A. J. Hepburn, who headed the naval base inquiry, as first witnesses. Vinson said he will invite Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, who has been reporting to the national aeronautics advisory committee on German, French and British aviation developments, to appear before the committee and discuss fully what he had seen in Europe. However, it was not expected that Lindbergh, now in Europe, would be able to appear.

Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, Democrat, Virginia, of the house appropriations committee, said the $35,000,000 deficiency fund asked by Mr. Roosevelt to meet deficiencies in the $1,150,000,000 naval building program this year would not come before the house before the first general

Farmers Borrow $800,000, Pay It All

DILLON, S. C., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Financiers hereabouts believe they have rolled up some sort of record in the field of money-lending.

In five years the Dillon Production Credit Association has lent farmers almost $800,000 without losing even as much as one penny.

deficiency bill in mid-February. He said he had heard of no opposition to the request.

Heated Debate Seen.

Both Vinson and May anticipated they would be ready for hearings at once. The Democrats will hold a caucus Monday afternoon to approve committee selections by the ways and means committee. The committees are due to be completed by the last of the week.

Vinson's bill embodying the Hepburn report is expected to touch off acrimonious debate in the house. Naval strategists have declared that the program would make the United States impregnable. Fortification of the Isle of Guam, in the Pacific, it was said, would practically "bottle up" the Japanese navy in its own waters, and the Caribbean defenses would drastically strengthen the United States defense position.

Regarding possibility of a joint senate-house committee to "coordinate" defense programs, May and Vinson indicated they were opposed to such a plan. Speaker William B. Bankhead said the idea "has merit, but might lead to possible conflict."

U. S. MAY HALT SCRAP IRON EXPORTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(UP)—An administration move to control exports of scrap iron to belligerent nations appeared likely tonight as Senator Lewis B. Schwellenbach, Democrat, Washington, announced that he would introduce a bill in the senate Monday to give President Roosevelt such authority.

Schwellenbach said scrap iron exports, which have soared to record levels in the last five years, should not be permitted while the government exercises rigid control over exports of munitions.

"It is contrary to the spirit of our national defense policy to permit unregulated exports of scrap iron," Schwellenbach said. "There is scarcely any difference in furnishing foreign governments with the means to make munitions than it is to furnish them munitions."

BILLS WOULD AID GEORGIA FARMERS

Pension and Tobacco Commission Measures Presented General Assembly.

Legislation to benefit the Georgia farmer boomed to prominence among bills presented the 1939 general assembly last week. A farmers' pension bill, measure designed to help tobacco growers, and proposal to change the duration of the fiscal year of tenant farmers await action of committees.

The committees will begin to function immediately after the regular 60-day session—following the 10-day organization meeting—starts, probably next Thursday. A $30 a month pension for Georgia farmers in service in this state for 30 years was asked by Senator Moses Brinson, of Summerville. He said the bill "was not for the purpose of providing a handout for Georgia farmers, but to pay for valuable services rendered and also an effort to produce an incentive for our young men to remain on Georgia farms."

Open to Amendments.
Brinson said he would welcome amendments permitting scaling down the payments so farmers of 20 years could get $20 a month and 14-year planters could receive $15.

In the house, Representatives Blease and Graham, of Brooks county, proposed creating a five-man tobacco marketing commission, empowered to license warehouses, buyers, make rules for grading and provide for grading and tying bright leaf for auction if deemed advisable.

If it were decided to establish grading and tying systems, the bill provided, this would be voted on by planters before it could be effected.

Staggered Terms.
The measure stipulated the commissioners would have to be farmers and residents of different counties. They would be nominated by the commissioner of agriculture and appointed by the Governor for staggered terms of one through five years.

Another house bill seeks to change the start of annual farm tenancy contracts from January 1 to December 1. It was sponsored by Representatives Williams and Bennett, of Ware; Corbett, of Atkinson; and Swindle, of Berrien. Bennett said this would be a benefit where crops are planted early and the tenants are planning to move. It would give them time to transfer before crops are in the ground.

'Background' Features Lamar Baker's Exhibit Here

30 Paintings of Atlanta Artist Are on Exhibition at High Museum

Drawings Are Done in Lamar Baker's Typical Progressive Style; Concentration on Today's South Is Feature of Display.

Thirty pictures by Lamar Baker, young Atlanta painter whose versatility has been recognized by New York critics, will be on exhibit at the High Museum of Art the rest of January.

The display will be open to the public from 2 o'clock until 5 o'clock on Sunday and from 9 o'clock to 5 o'clock on week days. All of Baker's drawings are done in his typical progressive style. For the last two years he has concentrated on southern problems, and it is his interpretation of today's south which will feature the exhibit.

The tragedy of the south he has compiled in one picture, "Background," which in bold virile lines and expert shading, tells the story of impoverished aristocracy. A man and a woman stand beside a gasoline tank which provides them a meager living, while in the rear is their home, a tumble-down ante-bellum mansion, representing the south that was.

A small railroad station marked "Oville" indicates that it is no particular place, and the tracks trailing off in the unknown distance are symbolic of the south's future.

Satire, comedy, and philosophy are also represented in the display, "Mars" and "African Fantasy" are grotesque pieces. Baker has studied under Harry Sternberg, noted American artist, and examples of his work have been included in the books, "America Today" and "Six Centuries of Fine Prints."

A former pupil at High Museum, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Baker, 328 Seventh street.

MRS. RITCHIE REPORTS ON CANCER CAMPAIGN

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, of Athens, Ga., today described the Georgia campaign against cancer at the Philadelphia State Assembly of the Women's Field Army for the Control of Cancer.

Mrs. Ritchie is commander of the field army in Georgia. In a prepared address, she reported $54,134 was spent in her state last year for care and treatment of 1,385 patients in ten state-aid clinics, averaging $39.08 per patient.

The Georgian said a cancer law passed by her state in 1937 was a "forward step" in cancer control through provision for indigent patients.

END TO 'BAITING' OF BUSINESS URGED

General Foods Chairman Says Time Has Come for Co-operation.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Colby M. Chester, chairman of the General Foods Corporation, tonight urged businessmen to bring about "sound recovery" with a spirit of national unity and cited "cessation of business baiting" as one of "our major objectives."

Addressing the annual dinner of the Albany Chamber of Commerce, Chester, former president of the National Association of Manufacturers, called for "restoration of the 'will to succeed' as an honorable American motive."

"The public is weary of mud-slinging," Chester said. "It is fed up with the fault-finding aimed largely at businessmen. The public today is impatient for progress."

"By enlightened leadership, business will help to give people confidence again in themselves and in the future of their country."

Spivey Assists Two Detectives In Leduc Case

SWAINSBORO, Ga., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Two Providence (R. I.) detectives were given a "lift" by the president of the Georgia senate when they came here today to return 19-year-old Elmer Leduc to Providence on charges he killed his grandmother.

Senator John S. Spivey, returning to Swainsboro by train from Atlanta, was met by his family motor car at a station some 20 miles from here. He brought Providence Detective Sergeants Louis F. Madden and William F. Purcell with him.

Extradition of Leduc was granted by Governor Rivers, who ordered a rendition warrant for the youth so he could be returned immediately. No hearing was held when the detectives presented their credentials in Atlanta, Leduc having waived the formality.

The detectives conferred with Chief Paul Bell, of the Swainsboro fire department, to whom Leduc surrendered, and asked that he be arrested Wednesday, and with Corporal S. W. Robertson, of the State Highway Patrol. Leduc told Robertson he killed Mrs. Anna Baker, 72, because he was irked by scolding.

The detectives said Leduc would be placed in Providence county jail at Cranston, R. I.

Franco Sweeps Into Barcelona Province in 300,000-Man Thrust.

HENDAYE, France (At the Spanish Frontier), Jan. 14.—(AP)—Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco, aiming at a decisive victory in the Spanish Civil War, today threw an army of 300,000 men against government lines defending the capital, Barcelona.

All Spanish citizens between the ages of 17 and 55, including women, were drafted into the Loyalist military reserves. A government decree authorized the defense ministry to use the new reserves in any service.

Insurgent commanders reported their troops scaled snow-covered mountains on the western boundary of Barcelona province and planted their red and gold banner within 37 1/2 miles of the government capital.

The first insurgent entry into the province was said to have been in the Sierra de Queralt, where they captured Codornis peak and pushed on slightly to the north to seize the town of Coloma de Queralt.

Twenty miles to the south, the Insurgents said their hard-driving Navarrese troops captured the walled town of Valls, government air base 12 miles north of the port of Tarragona, and drove on more than two miles to take the town of Alcover.

On the northern end of the 100-mile Catalan front the Insurgents said they advanced east of Balaguer for a five-mile gain in the Tarraga and Cervera sectors. The Insurgents also announced the occupation of Hospitalet, on the Mediterranean coast 24 miles north of Tortosa and 16 miles southwest of Tarragona.

Insurgent infantry was supported by artillery fire on a World War scale, and airplanes were massed in squadrons of 100.

General Jose Solchaga's forces reported they occupied the strategic walled town of Valls, government air base 12 miles north of the port of Tarragona, and advanced to a point within five miles of the border of Barcelona province.

Government reports from the front tonight, however, denied Valls had fallen.

Insurgents said their forces occupied the peak of Canialop, northeast of Montblanch and dominating the town of Conesa. Montblanch is six miles north of Valls. Conesa, four miles from Barcelona province, is 12 miles north of Montblanch.

Reports reaching this report town from the interior said the plane yesterday flew over the strategic Dekkil mountain district, about 50 miles from the Ethiopian frontier.

ABBIE AN' SLATS LAND IN TOWN TODAY FOR FIRST APPEARANCE IN THEIR COMIC

The two title characters of Raeburn Van Buren's brilliant comic, "Abbie an' Slats," their bags packed to bursting with fun, landed in town this morning, rushed straight from the station to The Constitution for their first appearance before its readers. You will find them today when you open to page four, section three, of the comic section.

And from their adventures you will, beginning today, derive a regular and ample income of entertainment. As you may or may not already know, Abbie is a motherly country spinster who suddenly finds herself charged with the responsibility of a roughneck young nephew from the sidewalks of the city. His name is Slats; and for all the incongruity of his background and his aunt's, he finds in her a kindred spirit as well as a kinship. Between the two there is a strong, if unadmitted, link of genuine affection. In the village of Crab-tree Corners where Abbie has always lived, and where Slats has just come to live, he finds, too, the kind of girl he had always dreamed existed, but had never seen before. She is Becky Groggins, and she is as lovely as she is loyal. And though she is the daughter of Bathless Groggins, the community's worst example, Slats prefers Becky to any other.

These three people—Abbie, Slats, Becky—are the ones that make things move in Van Buren's comic. Turn now to the comic section and see how fast they make things move.

LONDON TO PRESS PARIS ON Milder DEMANDS OF DUCE

Chamberlain, Refusing To Become Official Mediator, Will Take Next Step on Return Home.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—(P)—Prime Minister Chamberlain is expected to try to ease the strain between Italy and France after he reaches home tomorrow evening from his no-give-or-take talks with Premier Mussolini.

This appeared to be the next step necessary to keep Europe's peace.

Chamberlain apparently refused to become an official mediator on his three-day visit to Rome and made it plain that Britain fully backed France against Italian territorial aspirations.

But Chamberlain now has first-hand information on the Italian point of view.

His foreign secretary, Viscount Halifax, was expected to make an approach to France for negotiation on the more moderate Italian complaints when he meets with French Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet at Geneva this week end.

They will attend sessions of the League of Nations council, opening Monday.

An indication that Italy was open to negotiation came from the Fascist newspaper "Il Telegrafo" which is close to Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano.

Il Telegrafo said, "The Fascist government would not be averse to opening new negotiations but that it is not completely possible with or without mediators in the atmosphere created by the French government and press."

The apparently firm stand Chamberlain took at Rome was regarded here as evidence that he was encouraged by the hardened United States policy toward dictators and had set his face against further concessions to threats of force.

This view was strengthened also by the British request to Japan for a full statement of Japanese intentions toward British commerce in China. The ambassador to Tokyo presented the request today.

TEACHERS PROMISE TO END ILLITERACY

Pledge Superintendent Wells To Instruct 1,350 in County This Year.

Fulton county school teachers yesterday launched a war to end illiteracy here by 1940 through instructing the 1,350 persons who can not read and write.

Pledging co-operation to Jere A. Wells, county school superintendent, and federal authorities, the teachers unanimously voted their services and the use of their classrooms.

A meeting was held at the Fulton County High School—one of the five general sessions held every school year.

A 1938 survey showed there are 500 white and 850 negroes classed as illiterates. "Under the plan, we must select the teaching personnel and provide classrooms," said Wells. "We purpose to establish about ten for negroes and two for white persons."

Ralph McGill, executive editor of The Atlanta Constitution, was the principal speaker at the meeting, and commended the system for its policy of "equipping the boys and girls of Fulton county for making a living."

He cited the changes in the educational system in the past score years, asserting the old emphasis was on preparing a student for college while the new is to prepare those enrolled to be self-reliant and make their own way in the world.

Scott Candler appealed for support for the drive against infantile paralysis, urging teachers to make the buttons available for purchase to children in "Button Week" beginning January 23.

Funds raised will swell sums raised in birthday parties throughout the nation on President Roosevelt's birthday January 30.

Machinery also was set in motion to select delegates from Fulton teachers to the Georgia Education Association meeting here in March.

Northern Baptist Leader Weighs Issues With Rivers

Dr. Earle V. Pierce, left, Baptist minister and church leader of Minneapolis, discusses present day problems with Governor Rivers. Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist church, listens in on the conversation. Dr. Pierce will conduct a series of services at the Druid Hills church.

Noted Baptist Leader to Tour State After Preaching Services in Atlanta

Dr. Earle V. Pierce Tells Governor Rivers That Georgians Are Tackling Present-Day Problems in a Fortright Manner.

Georgians are facing the tasks of present-day problems in a forthright manner, Dr. Earle V. Pierce, distinguished Baptist minister and church leader of Minneapolis, Minn., declared here yesterday in a conversation with Governor Rivers. The minister is here for a preaching engagement at the Druid Hills Baptist church.

"And we like the positiveness and assurance with which you preach the gospel of faith and hope, of sacrifice and love," declared the Governor. "We are glad to have you in Georgia, and I am particularly pleased that you will be here long enough to make some motor trips to other Georgia cities, visiting our educational institutions and seeing something of our united effort to build a better civilization."

Returns in July. Dr. Pierce, pastor of the Lake Harriet Baptist church in Minneapolis since 1925, and president of the Northern Baptist convention in 1938, will come back to Atlanta in July as one of the principal speakers for the meeting of the Baptist World Alliance.

He is a member of the American Baptist board of foreign missions, trustee of Sioux Falls College, trustee of the Watchman-Examiner board of directors, vice president of the Minnesota council of religious education, trustee of the Northwest Bible and Missionary Training school, and trustee of the Minnesota Baptist convention. He was pastor in Ohio and South Dakota before he accepted his present pastorate.

He will preach at Druid Hills this morning at 11 o'clock, again this afternoon at 3 o'clock at a city-wide mass meeting for men and this evening at 7:30 o'clock. He will preach at 11 o'clock and 7:30 o'clock tomorrow through Wednesday on vital themes of Christianity. At the mass meeting for men this afternoon his sermon subject will be "Christian Men in the World Today."

Joe Parsons to Sing. Joe Parsons, widely known radio singer of Chicago, will be the guest soloist for the meeting this afternoon, with the Salvation Army band opening the program at 2:30 o'clock. E. E. Green will lead the congregational singing. Judge Ralph McClelland, of the Druid Hills Presbyterian church, will read the Scripture, and J. Lawrence McCord, of the Druid Hills Methodist church, will lead the prayer. Hugh H. Altman Sr. will preside.

The Atlanta Baptist ministers will be special guests at the service Monday morning at 11 o'clock, at which time Dr. Pierce will preach on "Winning the Lost to the Savior." Following his engagement at the Druid Hills church, Dr. Pierce will begin a meeting at the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist church Sunday, January 22. He plans to visit Berry schools, Shorter College, Mercer University and Bessie Tift College during this week.

Asked what can be done today in our nation to help meet the religious persecution in other nations, particularly the totalitarian states, Dr. Pierce said:

"By contributions of money to meet physical needs, protests to mould opinion, petition to our own government to continue its influence for the relief of the oppressed. The situation is most serious, as for instance, the present persecution of Baptists in Rumania, Jews in Germany, and elsewhere."

Confidence in Democracy. In reply to a question of outstanding evidence of progress in our own nation, Dr. Pierce said:

"The international consciousness, and the return of confidence that our hope is in democracy rather than in a terrified rush to even temporary dictatorships."

Asked what he thought of the south, Dr. Pierce said:

"Even two days is enough to sense the graciousness of southern hospitality. I have been impressed with your undeveloped rural areas and your well-developed cities, which seems to point the emphasis which you will be giving to agriculture and all the interest involved in the upbuilding of your great open country."

Dr. Pierce is a graduate of the University of Chicago and the Crozer Theological Seminary. He was accompanied here by Mrs. Pierce and his sister, Miss Electa Pierce, also of Minneapolis.

Sea Island Seed Yield Increased By Dwarf Plant

By The Associated Press. State Entomologist Manning Yeomans announced yesterday experiments near Savannah, Ga., with a dwarf variety of sea island cotton have yielded as high as 1,000 pounds of seed cotton to the acre, compared with an average of about 785 pounds per acre for ordinary upland cotton.

At the same time, the state entomologist disclosed a Memphis seed company had sought to purchase 30,000 pounds of dwarf sea island seed. Yeomans, however, said the seed produced in connection with state experiments was not for sale, although it is available free in limited quantities to Georgia growers.

The sea island cotton yields approximately 32 per cent pure lint. Yeomans said, compared to an average of about 30 per cent lint from ordinary upland seed cotton.

The entomologist estimated a grower of upland cotton could expect a gross return of about $18 an acre at current lint prices while sea island would gross in excess of $50 per acre on a yield of 200 pounds of lint at from 25 to 30 cents a pound.

The state produced a total of 12 bales of sea island cotton last year on 25 experimental acres near Savannah, Yeomans said.

ATLANTAN QUALIFIES FOR LONGINO POST

Charles A. Wilbanks Is First To Pay Fee; O. Lee White Offers for Seat.

Charles A. Wilbanks, of 219 Racine street, S. W., yesterday became the first candidate to qualify for the post vacated by George F. Longino, resigned member of the Fulton county commission. A salesman, 25, he declared for economy in government.

Immediately following Wilbanks' qualification with Ordinary Thomas H. Jeffries, O. Lee White, attorney and fraternal leader, announced he would become a candidate in the election set for February 9. January 25 is the last day on which candidates may qualify and half a dozen or more entries are expected.

Among others who announced are Mayor J. R. Parham, of East Point; Edgar Craighead, attorney; I. Gloer Hailey, R. H. Harrison and Marvin Roberts, Buckhead druggist and American Legion commander for the third Georgia area.

Former Councilman William G. Hastings yesterday was being urged to enter the lists by a large number of friends. Hastings is former president of the Atlanta Hotel Men's Association and the Georgia Hotel Men's Association.

White, who is a member of the Fulton county Democratic executive committee from the third ward, also is prominent in civic circles.

"I believe all portions of the county should have increased police, fire and sanitary protection," he said, "and that every citizen

WPA Boss Pledges Co-operation to City

Colonel F. C. Harrington, national WPA boss, yesterday sent greetings to Councilman John A. White and Atlanta and promised "every co-operation" in assisting the municipality in a solution of its problems.

White was exhibiting a letter from the colonel. It was an answer to a letter of congratulations White wrote him when President Roosevelt chose Harrington to succeed Harry Hopkins.

Colonel Harrington visited Atlanta and dedicated the municipal auditorium. At the time, he was high in the council of WPA which made the improvements there.

"My administration will co-operate with you and the city," Harrington informed White.

regardless of his position in life should have an equal voice in the administration of county affairs. I have definite plans to lower taxes and improve school facilities, living and working conditions."

White resides at the Henry Grady hotel.

Wilbanks said that, if elected, he would devote all his time to the office and would resist all efforts to raise taxes.

Roberts said he would file Monday and his campaign would advocate economy.

NOTED CATHOLICS TO LEAD SERVICES AT CO-CATHEDRAL

Great Assemblage, Led by Cardinal Dougherty, Will Attend Dedication of Edifice Wednesday.

Atlanta will be host Wednesday to the greatest assemblage of Catholic dignitaries ever gathered here when His Eminence, Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, of Philadelphia, dedicates the new co-cathedral of Christ the King at Peachtree road and Peachtree way.

The Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, archbishop of Baltimore, will sing the dedicatory mass, and the sermon will be delivered by the Rt. Rev. Joseph Corrigan, rector magnificus of the Catholic University, of Washington, one of the church's most gifted orators.

Two other archbishops, the Most Rev. Samuel A. Stritch, D. D., of Milwaukee, and the Most Rev. Joseph Francis Rummel, of New Orleans, will participate in the ceremonies which also will bring to Atlanta nine bishops of the church, including the Rt. Rev. Gerald P. O'Hara, of Savannah, bishop of the Savannah-Atlanta diocese.

The new school of the Church of Christ the King also will be dedicated.

Will Attend Dinner.

Following the ceremonies Cardinal Dougherty and other visiting prelates and priests will be feted at a 1 o'clock dinner at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Governor Rivers will be the only non-Catholic speaker at the dinner, sharing honors with Cardinal Dougherty, the Most Rev. Emmet M. Walsh, D. D., bishop of Charleston, S. C.; Archbishop Rummel, Richard Reid, Knight of St. Gregory, of Augusta, and Archbishop Stritch.

Special pews have been reserved at the church for the Governor and Mrs. Rivers and Mayor and Mrs. Hartsfield.

The Rev. Joseph E. Moylan, rector of the co-cathedral, said yesterday that in addition to the cardinal, the archbishops and the bishops, arrangements had been made to take care of 100 visiting priests, and a similar number of nuns at the dedicatory service.

In addition to Bishop O'Hara, the following diocesan leaders are expected for Wednesday's dedication:

Leaders Expected.

The Most Rev. Thomas J. Toolan, bishop of Mobile; the Most Rev. Richard O. Gerow, bishop of Natchez, Miss.; the Most Rev. Christopher E. Byrne, bishop of Galveston, Texas; Bishop Walsh, the Most Rev. Peter E. Ireton, bishop of Richmond, Va.; the Most Rev. William M. Adrain, bishop of Nashville; the Most Rev. Francis M. Cotton, bishop of Owensboro, Ky.; the Most Rev. William D. O'Brien, auxiliary bishop of Chicago, and the Most Rev. George J. Rehring, auxiliary bishop of Cincinnati.

Special places have been reserved on the co-cathedral altar for the Rt. Rev. Francis Sadlier, abbot of St. Leo's Seminary, Pasco county, Florida; the Rt. Rev. Vincent M. Taylor, abbot of the Belmont Seminary at Belmont, N. C.; the Rt. Rev. Frederick M. Dunne, abbot of Gethsemane Seminary at Trappist, Ky., and the Very Rev. Boniface Seng, abbot-elect of St. Bernard's Seminary at Cullman, Ala.

Father Moylan said that of the 100 priests to be in attendance nine are monks.

To Lead Procession.

The dedication ceremony will start at 10 o'clock when Cardinal Dougherty leads the procession around the church properties. The participants in the program as well as those to attend the dedicatory mass will be flanked by the church and no one will be permitted to enter until the cardinal will have completed the dedication.

Cardinal Dougherty will be assisted by the Rev. T. James McNamara, rector of the Cathedral of St. John the Baptist at Savannah, as the archpriest, and the Rev. Thomas A. Branna, rector of St. Theresa's church, of Albany, and the Rev. Harold J. Barr, rector of St. Joseph's church at Athens, as assistant deacons. The Rev. Joseph Kavanaugh, of Savannah, will be master of ceremonies.

CATHEDRAL ALTARS TO BE CONSECRATED

The three altars in the new Co-Cathedral of Christ the King will be consecrated in a special service to be conducted by the Rt. Rev. Gerald P. O'Hara, bishop of the Savannah-Atlanta diocese, at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The altars are known as the main altar, the Blessed Virgin altar and St. Joseph's altar. Father Joseph E. Moylan, rector of the Co-Cathedral, which is to be dedicated Wednesday by Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, of Philadelphia, said tomorrow's service would be open to the public.

Cardinal Dougherty will bless the outside walls before proceeding inside the church to bless the altar, the inside walls and the furnishings.

When the dedication ritual has been completed Archbishop Curley and his assistants will lead the visiting dignitaries and laymen inside the church for the dedicatory mass. Cardinal Dougherty will repair to the throne on the church altar where, vested in cope and mitre, he will remain while the archbishop sings the pontifical high mass. Archbishop Curley will pontificate from a faldstool placed on the Epistle side of the altar.

Others to Assist.

In his celebration of the mass, Archbishop Curley will be assisted by the Very Rev. Daniel J. McCarthy, pastor of the Holy Family church of Columbus, as archpriest; the Rev. James Conlin, rector of the Blessed Sacrament church at Savannah, as deacon, and the Rev. James E. King, rector of the Sacred Heart church at Milledgeville, as the subdeacon.

Monsignor Corrigan will preach between the gospel and the credo. Archbishops Stritch and Rummel will occupy places in the sanctuary during the celebration of the mass.

Archbishop Curley, who heads the archdiocese which includes Atlanta, was bishop of the diocese of St. Augustine, Fla., before being elevated to the archbishopric of Baltimore. Bishop Walsh is a former pastor of the Immaculate Conception church of Atlanta, while Archbishop Stritch is a former bishop of the diocese of Nashville, going from there to Toledo a few years ago.

Archbishop Rummel formerly headed the diocese of Omaha and is well known to a large number of Atlanta Catholics. He was host to the recent international Eucharistic Congress at New Orleans.

Spalding Is Chairman.

Hughes Spalding, a leading lay member of the co-cathedral congregation, is general chairman of the committee on arrangements for the dedication.

Immediately after completion of the dedicatory mass the visiting chairmen and members of the congregation will go to the Driving Club for the dinner, which will begin at 1 o'clock. Estes Doremus is chairman of a city-wide committee sponsoring the dinner. Cardinal Dougherty will deliver the dinner invocation as well as the benediction at its conclusion.

Mr. Reid will speak on the affairs of the diocese of Savannah at Atlanta, while Bishop Walsh will have for his subject "The Province of Baltimore."

Archbishop Stritch will discuss "The Catholic Church in the United States," while Governor Rivers will have for his topic "The United States of America." Archbishop Rummel will end the speaking program with an address on "Our Holy Father, Pope Pius XI."

Used for Funeral.

Although the church has not yet been dedicated it was used several weeks ago, by special dispensation, for the funeral services of the late J. J. Spalding, one of its founders.

The new church is one of Atlanta's architectural showplaces, designed by the firm of Henry Dagit & Sons, of Philadelphia, who have specialized for years in the designing and construction of such edifices. It is of beautiful limestone and of such construction that engineers say it will rival the famous Notre Dame cathedral of Paris in lasting qualities. The architecture is fully developed Gothic.

The entrance to the facade is dominated by a carved limestone figure of Christ the King.

Inside the church has a vaulted acoustic tiled ceiling and is indirectly lighted.

The main altar stands before a huge limestone reredos inlaid with gold mosaic forming an imposing frame for a marble Crucifixion group.

The side altars are similar in design to the main altar. One portrays the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary and the other shows St. Joseph leading Christ as a child. The backgrounds are of golden glass mosaic. In addition there is a shrine of St. Anne with a carved marble figure of the saint.

Mosaics at Stations.

The stations of the Cross are of similar mosaics.

Over the pulpit is an eagle, the symbol of the Savior. There is a tradition, perpetuated by the translators of the Bible, that the eagle is able to renew its youth. When it becomes old and its eyes are dimmed it is said to fly as high as possible and look into the sun, then it catapults to earth and plunges thrice into a fountain of crystal clear water from which it emerges with perfect eyesight and renewed youth.

The eagle over the pulpit typifies the revivification of Christ after three days in the tomb.

Another tradition of the church is carried out in the Last Supper ornamentations in the altar rail. The school adjacent to the church is similar in design and architecture.

The picture above shows the interior of the Co-Cathedral, one of Atlanta's most beautiful churches. The church has three altars and is designed to last for centuries.

HIGH COURT OKAYS WHEAT CONVICTION

Killer of Drink Stand Proprietor Must Die in Chair.

The conviction and death sentence imposed on 19-year-old S. J. Wheat Jr., for the slaying of a Bankhead road drink stand proprietor, was upheld yesterday by the state supreme court.

Young Wheat was convicted in the Cobb superior court several months ago of the slaying of W. W. Cape, 77. He was tried before a jury in Judge J. H. Hawkins' superior court.

Wheat is in jail at Marietta. He will be brought before Judge Watkins and a date set for his execution as soon as the remittitur from the supreme court reaches Cobb county officials.

The high court held that Judge Hawkins committed no reversible errors in the conduct of the trial and the verdict of the jury was justified considering the evidence.

BURKE CRITICIZES CUBA'S TREATMENT

Says Republic Is Treated Better Than Puerto Rico.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Senator Edward R. Burke, Democrat, Nebraska, assailed today the "over-generous treatment of Cuba" by the United States, declaring that by contrast, treatment of Puerto Rico seems "far from equitable."

"Our trade agreements with Cuba increased that nation's favorable balance of trade with the United States by about $71,000,000 during the four years following the beginning of our trade agreement program," Burke said.

"Much of this has been taken from Puerto Rico, as evidenced by the fact that trade balance of the island actually decreased during this period by over $33,000,000," he contended.

GOVERNMENT TO BUILD FOREST ROADS, TRAILS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The forest service apportioned $10,000,000 today for construction of forest highways, truck-trails and foot trails in forest lands throughout the nation.

The total included $6,666,667 of the forest highway fund required to be expended on public highways within national forests. The roads ordinarily are considered a part of the state highway system.

The remaining $3,333,333 was set aside as a forest road development fund for construction and maintenance of truck and foot trails essential for fire protection and forest administration, as well as forest use, development and recreation.

The allotments by states included: Highways, Georgia, $23,015, and truck and foot trails, Georgia, $19,361.

SCHEDULE CHANGES SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Birthday of Lee Proclaimed Holiday

Governor Rivers yesterday proclaimed a state holiday January 19 in observance of Robert E. Lee's birthday, and the State Board of Education requested school officials and teachers to recognize the event through appropriate programs and exercises.

The Atlanta and Fulton county governments will function as usual, but the 80,000 students of the school systems will hear speakers pay tribute to Lee's memory.

PORTABLE 'EYES' SEARCH ALCATRAZ

Saws Used in Escape Plot Remain Key to Mystery.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 14.—(UP)—G-men and prison officials swarmed over Alcatraz rock with "portable electric eyes" today. They were shaking down the convicts in an effort to find how five felons sawed themselves out of "escape proof" cells on Friday's desperate break for freedom.

The break ended in death for one of the fugitives—Arthur (Doc) Barker, notorious midwestern outlaw. The others were captured. One of them, Dale Stamp-bill, 27, Oklahoma badman, shot down by the burst of gunfire that took Barker's life, was critically wounded.

The "electric eye," called a "mechanical stool pigeon" in prison parlance, and supposed to detect presence of metal objects, failed after 24 hours to find trace of the saw or other tools which the prisoners used to escape.

James V. Bennett, federal prison director, was en route to San Francisco by plane to take charge of the investigation.

TRIUMPHS IN SOUTH REPORTED BY CHINA

Claim Terrific Damage Inflicted on Warships by Foreign Fliers.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 14.—(UP)—Chinese advices today reported that a rejuvenated air force, said to include Soviet as well as American and British volunteers, had inflicted terrific damage on Japanese warships and airplanes in South China.

Claiming the first major Chinese triumphs in recent phases of the war with Japan, the Chinese messages asserted that:

Two Japanese warships were sunk off the Bocca Tigris forts in the Canton river.

Japanese batteries at Kongmoon, south of Canton, were demolished.

Twenty Japanese airplanes were set afire near the Bocca Tigris forts.

Another score of Japanese planes were engaged in a dogfight and some of them were shot down.

The advices did not report Chinese casualties. Japanese officials discounted or denied the Chinese claims.

Chinese said that a total of 34 Chinese planes took part in the raids, 14 of them attacking the Kongmoon batteries and two bombarding the Japanese warships. Although Chinese had made several attempts to strike back at the Japanese in the rich Canton area, they had been repulsed in land fighting.

PACIFIC SQUADRON ENTERS CARIBBEAN

U. S. Secret Service Agents Reported Probing Activities of Spies.

CRISTOBAL, Canal Zone, Jan. 14.—(UP)—The Pacific squadron of the United States battle fleet rode through the Panama Canal today into the Caribbean to join the Atlantic squadron in the greatest mass naval maneuvers in American history.

The last of 80 fighting units—battleships, cruisers, airplane carriers, destroyers and mine sweepers—started the 45-mile transit of the Isthmus shortly before noon, bringing together more than 160 surface vessels of the navy.

Hundreds of airplanes and submarines were also concentrated at Caribbean bases. The maneuvers will seek to test American defense of the navy's life line—the Panama Canal—the entire southern American coast against a hypothetical continental enemy.

The entire Pacific squadron was expected to complete the crossing from Balboa, on the Pacific, to Cristobal the Atlantic terminus of the canal in approximately 36 hours. All commercial traffic was suspended. Wartime precautions were in force throughout the zone. Soldiers guarded the locks and planes patrolled overhead.

MARTIN SUPPORTERS PROTEST TO BOARD

Peaceful Appearance in Contrast to Demonstration at Offices Friday.

DETROIT, Jan. 14.—(P)—Supporters of Homer Martin, president of the CIO United Automobile Workers, protested to the union's international executive board today against its action in sharply curtailing the UAW head's powers.

The protests came from committees representing several hundred Martin supporters who besieged the union headquarters yesterday. Their appearance before the board today was peaceful, in sharp contrast with the siege of yesterday, when they jammed stairways and corridors and took one door from its hinges in the effort to get into the union offices.

The board, overwhelmingly anti-Martin, gave no indication it was swayed by the protests.

MOONEY BECOMES AERIAL ENTHUSIAST

Pardoned Leader Flies to Labor Convention.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Jan. 14. (UP)—Thomas J. Mooney, pardoned a week ago by Governor Culbert L. Olson after serving 22 years in prison for the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing, returned to Sacramento tonight and urged "unity in labor forces of America" in a speech before the state convention of Labor's Non-Partisan League.

Mooney realized one of his greatest ambitions by flying from San Francisco to Los Angeles, this morning, then flying here to make the principal address before the labor convention. He spoke before 300 cheering delegates. "I've always wanted to fly," he said.

Jews Given Hope By Duce's Stand At Rome Parley

Fascist Premier Believed To Have Pledged Sympathetic Attitude Toward Refugee Problem.

ROME, Jan. 14.—(UP)—Italy's 15,000 foreign Jews were believed by well-informed sources tonight to have been given new hope that Premier Mussolini would prolong the time limit set for their expulsion from Italy.

This hope arose from Musso-lini's conferences with British Prime Minister Chamberlain, to whom the Fascist premier was said to have promised a sympathetic attitude toward solution of the Jewish refugee problem in Europe.

The official date for foreign Jews to be out of Italy is March 12, but a delegation of Jews presented a petition to Chamberlain urging him to intervene with Mussolini to extend the deadline.
The British prime minister was said to have taken up the Jewish question with Mussolini who as-sertedly responded so sympathetically that there appeared to be reason to believe the deadline would be extended.

ETHIOPIAN PLAN REJECTED BY JEWS

LONDON, Jan. 14.—(UP)— World Jewish congress leaders today rejected proposals for establishment of a Jewish state in Italian Ethiopia and expressed pessimism on the results of Premier Mussolini's promise to aid in solving the refugee problem.

REFUGEE COMMITTEE MAKES NO PROGRESS

BERLIN, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Members of the intergovernmental Refugee Committee, headed by George Rublee, American executive director, determined today to remain in Berlin over the week end in hope of reaching some agreement with the German government for evacuation of at least part of Germany's 700,000 Jews.
Rublee conferred today with Reichsbank President Dr. Hjalmar Schacht by telephone, but the negotiators did not meet.

JEWISH LEADER DEBARS "RANSOM"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—
Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, of Cleveland, national chairman of the United Palestine Appeal, asserted tonight that American Jews would accept no Nazi "ransom scheme" for emigration of German Jews.
"Jewish leadership," he added,
"should make it unmistakably clear to all the governments of Europe that it is impossible to evacuate six million Jews; that there are no countries prepared to receive them, no colonies available for their settlement and no financial means for effectuating such a program even if it were feasible."

SLOVAKS SEEK ANTI-JEWISH LAWS

BRATISLAVA, Czechoslovakia,
Jan. 14.—(UP)—Government officials informed the press today that Slovakia was seeking a compromise solution of the Jewish question.

The government was described as desiring to avoid any extreme anti-Semitic measures which might handicap business life or arouse resentment abroad. At the same time, it was emphasized, the government must take cognizance of the "apparently growing demand of the populace" for stern treatment of Jews.

ALABAMA JURIST DIES SUDDENLY

Judge Alto V. Lee Victim of Attack at Home.

GADSDEN, Ala., Jan. 14.—(AP)—
Circuit Judge Alto V. Lee, 62, died suddenly today at his home here.
Judge Lee was appointed by Governor B. M. Miller in 1934 to succeed the late Judge Woodson
J. Martin and later in 1934 was elected for a full term.

Judge Lee had served in both the house and senate of the Alabama legislature.
The jurist was one of the "five Alabama Lee brothers" who have figured prominently for years in state affairs.

Fifty years of married life was celebrated when Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Huff observed their golden wedding anniversary at the residence, 1827 Jonesboro road. Mr. Huff cut the first slice of a two-tiered wedding cake embossed in gold and bearing the numerals of "50" in gold confection.

monious organization of the legislature. I am sure the assembly will take what steps are necessary so Georgia's program of social health, economic and educational progress may advance."

Appears Rested.

Smiling and looking particularly fit and rested despite a long series of pre-legislative conferences, the Governor added that he probably would deliver his message Monday of next week when the regular 60-day meeting will have begun.

The Governor is already at work on his message. He has not disclosed the line it would take but it was indicated that he would outline the state's financial situation to the legislature, report on its needs and then outline in broad form several general courses of action which might be pursued toward meeting the problem.

Representative Henderson Lanham, chairman of the powerful house ways and means committee, and Senator Wallace Harrell, chairman of the important senate finance committee, expressed the opinion that revenue measures would await completion of the administration-sponsored "economy" investigation into state departmental costs.

The two said they believed that when this was done and the administration had taken such steps as were possible for retrenchment without impairing state services, there would be a receptive attitude toward legislation to meet state needs which would insure speedy passage. Both asserted they were ready for exhaustive study of possible revenue measures.

Wholesale Revision.

The off-the-record view of many legislative leaders was that revenue boosting would be sought through a revision of the whole Georgia tax structure rather than by the imposition of new levies without a change in existing ones.

As provided in the special session law reorganizing it, the state Revenue Department has conducted a study of the tax structure of other states, including Mississippi, where a sales tax has been imposed for six years, and Indiana, where a gross income tax is in effect. A report of the study will be presented to the general assembly shortly.

While the administration has avoided specific suggestions, general discussions among legislators have concerned sales or gross receipts taxes and gross income taxes. These would meet Rivers' suggestions for a broader base for assessments and follow the trend away from ad valorem and "nuisance" taxes.

It has been estimated that a 3 per cent sales tax in Georgia would yield around $12,000,000.

Last year the state five-mill ad valorem levy produced $4,990,685.

Mississippi's sales tax of 2 per cent produced $5,280,000 in 1938 and in its six years of operation has yielded $29,159,751, or more than half the state's entire income. Alabama, North Carolina and Louisiana also have sales taxes. North Carolina's 3 per cent levy on all sales except those of gasoline, food necessities, fertilizer, farm, forest and mineral products sold at their source, brought that state $11,143,387 last year.

Indiana Tax.

Indiana's gross income tax of 1 per cent yielded that state $22-425,407.55 during the last fiscal year, of which $9,947,966.76 went for state purposes and the rest to schools. It is levied on all persons and firms except wholesalers and manufacturers who pay a fourth of 1 per cent. The first $1,000 gross income of all except retailers is exempted. Retailers have a $3,000 exemption.

Legislators discussing sales taxes indicated they would insist on exemptions similar to those in North Carolina.

The general view was that either a sales tax or a gross income tax would be proposed to the legislature with the provision that it also would repeal most of the existing "nuisance" taxes and de-emphasize the ad valorem levy.

A luxury tax also has been talked.

One other revenue measure certain to come up is the substitution of a state liquor store plan for the present private sales plan. Representative Harvey, of Upson county, said he would introduce one modeled after that of Virginia and estimated it would yield the state about $4,500,000 where the present plan yields around $1,500,000.

Flood of Bills.

Several legislators have discussed state store plans indicating they would seek stricter control over liquor sales as well as more revenue. Talk also has been that advertising of liquor might be prohibited under some state store programs discussed.

During the four days the legislature was in session last week, approximately 90 measures were introduced in the house and a score more in the senate. The house re-elected Roy Harris, of Augusta, speaker and the senate again named John Spivey, of Swainsboro, president. Both are administration stalwarts.

No. 1 for consideration when the general assembly begins its regular 60-day session—a matter administration leaders plan to engineer for Thursday—is a bill providing for establishment of a state hospital authority. The administration wishes this step quickly so it can arrange a federal loan and grant of $4,000,000 for improvements at the state hospital at Milledgeville. The deadline for acceptance of the loan and grant is January 29.

EDUCATION BOARD STUDIES CLOSINGS

city council, which we understand is to be submitted to council for approval at its meeting Monday.

"Under this proposed budget, the school department is allocated approximately $260,000 less than it actually received in cash from the city in 1938. With this reduction, in my opinion, the board will not be able to present a balanced budget and maintain all of the services the school department has tried to render to the public of Atlanta, without a salary cut to its employees.

"In discussing this situation informally with members of the board, I believe that a majority feel that the employees should not be asked to maintain all of these services by salary cuts, as fine and necessary as we think they are.

"Therefore, consideration is being given to the elimination of services such as kindergarten, opportunity school, night school, etc., in order to bring in a balanced budget without salary cuts."

DANIELS' OPTIMISM PLEASES MEXICO

Ambassador Predicts Early Oil Settlement.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 14.—(UP)— Government circles appeared pleased tonight with the statement in New York of Josephus

Daniels, United States ambassador to Mexico, in which he expressed belief that the controversy over expropriation of foreign oil properties would be settled soon.

Officials reiterated that Mexico has been ready for some time to enter into negotiations aimed at determining the amount of indemnities to be paid. They said that Mexico already has funds banked which are earmarked for the first payment but that the amount of indemnity has not been fixed "because the foreign oil companies still hope their properties will be returned."

STATE PHYSICIANS PLAN ROUND TABLE

Veneral Disease, Obstetrics and Laboratory Aids
on Program.

Arrangements have been made and a program completed for a "get-together" round table discussion among physicians of Georgia and central public health organizations to be held in 10 sections, widely distributed, to cover the entire state, according to Dr. T. F. Abernethy, director of the State Department of Public Health.

Four subjects are to be presented. The meetings will begin January 24, and will be under the auspices of the county medical societies.

The four subjects to be presented include "Syphilis" by Dr. L. T. Burney, passed assistant surgeon, United States public health service, and associated veneral disease control officer for Georgia; "The Infant," by Dr. Edwin R. Watson, assistant director of the child hygiene and pediatrics division of the State Department of Public Health; "Obstetrics," by Dr. Hugh H. Bickerstaff, assistant director of the child hygiene division (obstetrics), of the State Department of Public Health, and "Laboratory Aids," by Dr. T. F. Sellers, director of the laboratory division of the State Department of Public Health.

The first two will be given at the first meeting in each city, and the latter two at the second scheduled meeting.

The meetings will be held as follows: January 24 and January 31 in Rome; January 25 and February 1, in Washington; January 26 and February 2, in Americus; January 27 and February 3, in Thomasville; January 31 and February 7, in Griffin; February 1 and February 8, in McRae; February 2 and February 9, in Waycross; February 3 and February 10, in Swainsboro; February 7 and February 14, in LaGrange; and February 8 and February 15, in Gainesville.

State Gets Tract For First Park On a Waterway

R. F. Burch, state commissioner of natural resources, announced yesterday acquisition by the state of a 500-acre tract on the Crooked river in Camden county for use as a state park.

Burch said it would be the first state park having water frontage. In addition to the park acreage, he said, the site of the old Santa Maria Spanish mission has been deeded to the state by the Fernandina pulp mill.

The remains of the building mark one of the early colonization points in Georgia.

DOCTORS TO HEAR OF NEW METHODS

Southeastern Practitioners Gather Tomorrow for Four Days' Discussion.

Leading teachers of medicine and surgery in the United States will arrive in Atlanta tomorrow for a four-day post-graduate medical assembly at the Biltmore hotel.

More than 7,500 prominent physicians from all parts of the southeast have been invited to the meeting which is sponsored by the Fulton County Medical Society.

Twelve distinguished clinicians and teachers will present practical and scientific information useful in everyday practice. The latest developments in both diagnosis and treatment of common problems in medicine will be stressed. Clinics will open at 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

Among those to appear on the program and their subjects are: Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, of Rochester, Minn., "Useful Hints in the Diagnosis of Digestive Diseases;" Dr. Dean Lewis, of Baltimore, "Heart Attacks;" Dr. M. C. Sossman, of Boston, "Diagnosis and Treatment of Pituitary Tumors;" Dr. Herman L. Kretschmer, of Chicago, "Technique and Results in Transurethral Prostatic Resection;" Dr. W. M. Walters, of Rochester, Minn., "Lesions of the Gall Bladder and Biliary Tract;" Dr. Louis Hamman, of Baltimore, "Bronchial Stenosis;" Dr. Emil Novak, of Baltimore, "Gynecological Endocrinology for the General Practitioner;" Dr. Fred Wise, of New York, "The Deeper Seated Affections Caused by the Ringworm Fungus;" Dr. Hugo Roesler, of Philadelphia, "Diagnosis of Heart Disease Without Instrumental Aid;" Dr. Edward A. Schumann, of Philadelphia, "The Cerebrum Section;" and Dr. Horton R. Casparis, of Nashville, "Children's Place in the Tuberculosis Program."

J. E. Paullin, chairman, E. G. Ballenger, F. K. Boland, R. H. Oppenheimer and N. M. Owensby are in charge of local arrangements for the meeting. Dr. William A. Smith and Dr. D. H. Peor also are on the executive committee.

NEW COMMITTEE HEADED BY TARVER

Georgian Chairman of Wage-Hour and Security Financing Group.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Because of the ever-growing revenue demands of federal activities affecting labor and social security, the house appropriations committee today named Representative Malcolm C. Tarver, of Georgia, chairman of a new subcommittee to take care of their financial needs.

Tarver is already second ranking majority member of the subcommittee on agriculture, and with his new duties he will take a leading part in recommending annual funds for the administration of the wage-hour and social security agencies.

Earlier this week, Representative Tarver was honored by being named the Democratic steering committee head of Zone 5 which is composed of the states of Georgia, Florida and South Carolina. Another Georgian, Representative Ramspeck, is secretary of the Democratic caucus so that during this congress, the state is in a position to know well in advance every move contemplated by the majority party of the house.

Representative Tarver has the reputation among his colleagues on both sides of the aisle for being extra-diligent in the performance of his duties and he has the confidence and respect of every member of the lower house.

GEORGIA PROJECTS GIVEN WPA FUNDS

Grant Includes Sewerage
Plant at Alto.

Federal funds for three Georgia projects, including a new sewerage treatment plant at the State Tuberculosis sanatorium at Alto, have been authorized by the Works Progress Administration. Miss Gay B. Shepperson, state WPA administrator, announced yesterday.

The Alto project, sponsored by the State Department of Public Health, will be erected at an estimated cost of $36,769. It will replace the present unit which sponsors say has become overloaded and obsolete.

Other projects include county-wide school improvements in Grady county, $4,846, and construction of a school auditorium in Boxley, $23,903.

GRANITE WORKER HIT, KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

ELBERTON, Ga., Jan. 14.—(AP) Chris Johnson, 40, a granite worker of Elberton, was found fatally injured near here on the Athens highway tonight.

Deputy Sheriff Mark Cleveland said Johnson was struck by a vehicle which did not stop. There were no witnesses.

Total business done by American farm co-operatives in 1937-38 was 14 per cent larger than the preceding year.

POLICY COMMITTEE IS CONVENED HERE

Southern Group Will Attempt to Formulate Program
To Develop Section.

The Southern Policy Committee, a group of southerners prominent in labor, industry, agriculture, education, journalism and other fields, met here yesterday in executive session to formulate a program for the south.

"The whole range of southern problems" was under consideration, a spokesman said, adding that particular attention would be given to the report of the south made by a committee appointed by President Roosevelt.

The group met at the request of Mark Etheridge, vice president and general manager of the Courier-Journal and the Louisville Times, of Louisville, Ky.

President Roosevelt, before appointing his committee to study and report on southern conditions, termed the south the nation's No. 1 economic problem.

ETHRIDGE IS NEXT TO DISCUSS SOUTH

Mark Etheridge, general manager of the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times, will be the second speaker in a series of discussions of southern problems sponsored by the Georgia Academy of Social Sciences.

Ethridge will discuss "The South—Problem or Opportunity?" January 27 at the Georgian Terrace hotel. The address, to be held at 8 o'clock, will be preceded by a dinner at 6:30 o'clock.

Ethridge is a native of Mississippi. He was educated at the University of Mississippi and at Mercer University.

Reservations for the dinner may be made with Mrs. Mary Kate Dusk in at the Y. W. C. A. or with Iris Lee at Davison-Paxon Company.

Officers of the Georgia Academy of Social Sciences are Dr. Cullen B. Gosnell, president; R. L. Foreman Jr., vice president; and H. F. Longino, chairman of the executive committee.

PLANE WRECKAGE PROBED FOR CLUE

Killed When Northwest
Airliner Explodes.

MILES CITY, Mont., Jan. 14.—(AP)—In the charred wreck of a Northwest Airlines plane, federal investigators searched today for clues to explain the cause of a crash which killed three men and a woman last night.

Whether the 10-passenger Lockheed Zephyr transport exploded in the air or after striking the Sunday creek bottomlands two miles west of Miles City was disputed in eyewitness reports.

Instantly killed when the plane plunged into the creek bottom a few minutes after a "normal take-off" from the Miles City airport were:

C. B. (Cash) Chamberlain, of Minneapolis, the pilot; Raymond B. Norby, of Minneapolis, copilot; Richard S. Zahniser, 52, of Billings, Mont., a truck line representative and former Montana state highway engineer, and Mrs. Morgan Morris, of Mandan, N. D., wife of a Northern Pacific railroad conductor.

Historians were speaking of calico, the flowered or printed cotton cloth of India, before the time of Christ.

DIXIE GOVERNORS WILL MASS MIGHT
FOR RATE JUSTICEWill Meet With Other Southern Leaders in Capital Friday To Get Behind Parity Measure.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—To solidify support behind legislation introduced in the new congress to eliminate southern freight rate differentials, the Governors of 13 southeastern and border states, together with their 26 United States senators and a selected group of southern congressmen and business leaders today were invited to take part in a meeting to be held here Friday.

Telegraphic invitations were sent out by Lawrence Wood Robert Jr., of Atlanta and Washington, executive director of the Southeastern Governors' Conference, of which Governor Rivers, of Georgia, is chairman.

For a United Front.

While chief emphasis will be laid on the need for organizing a united front in the rate fight, the meeting will invite discussion of general economic problems affecting the south, especially as regards administrative features of New Deal legislation.

In addition to the nine states of Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky, Mississippi, Louisiana, North and South Carolina in the Southeastern Governors' Conference, Mr. Robert has asked the chief executives of Virginia, Texas, Arkansas and Oklahoma to attend. Clark Howell, editor and publisher of The Constitution, and John Brice, of the Atlanta Journal, are among the Georgians asked to attend.

The meeting will take the form of a dinner to be given at the Mayflower hotel in the evening of January 20. Earlier in the afternoon the Governors are expected to join in a meeting with Governor Rivers for perfecting new organization plans.

All Are Affected.

"This is the first meeting of the southeastern Governors for 1939," Mr. Robert said. "We are inviting to our meeting the chief executives of several of the adjoining states who are likewise affected by the freight-rate discrimination, and, at the same time, meeting with senators, congressmen, prominent newspaper publishers and businessmen from the southern states to solidify our front on attacking what the President has designated as the nation's economic problem No. 1."

"As advocates of a floor for wages and a ceiling for hours and with malice toward none, we now want to see that this legislation is carefully and properly administered to meet equally the problems of employer and employee, and particularly are we interested in the south in this issue where so much criticism has been aimed. In short, we intend to present a united section to meet all questions of national plan and policy for a united south."

On the opening day of the new congress last week Representative Ramspeck, of the Atlanta district, who long has taken a leading role in the fight against discriminatory freight rates, introduced a bill calling for the elimination of rate differentials. A companion measure was presented in the upper chamber by Senator Lister Hill, of Alabama, while still a third of the same general purport was sponsored by Senator Kenneth McKellar, of Tennessee.

Had Delayed Bill.

Representative Ramspeck withheld a similar measure at the last session at the request of the southeastern Governors, who felt that it might complicate the action initiated before the Interstate Commerce Commission to the same end. Since then the Governors' conference has withdrawn its objection and the Georgia congressman, in addition to introducing his bill, has set about to form a bloc of southern and western members to force action on the legislation.

As the new chairman of the southeastern conference, succeeding former Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama, Governor Rivers is known to be planning an active fight to place the southeastern section on a rate parity with other areas of the country. He organized the program of the southern Governors last year in their action still pending, before the ICC.

FOREIGN MINISTER OF BRAZIL COMING ON A STATE VISIT

Invitation of President Is Quickly Accepted; Significance Attached to Timing of Discussions.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(UP) The State Department announced tonight that Dr. Oswaldo Aranha, Brazilian foreign minister and one-time ambassador to the United States, will come to Washington early in February on a visit of great probable political significance in world events.

Aranha comes to the United States at the personal invitation of President Roosevelt, who asked him to come to discuss "various questions of great importance in which our two governments are equally interested."

Political observers attached special significance to the timing of the invitation immediately following the Pan-American conference at Lima, the United States fleet maneuvers in the Atlantic off the northeast coast of Brazil and the special attention being given to western hemisphere defense.

Mr. Roosevelt's invitation to Aranha was regarded as another step in the program for consolidation of the American republics on a common front for continental defense against military or political aggression or economic penetration by the totalitarian states.

State Department officials said this was the only state visit contemplated by the foreign minister of a neighboring American republic. However, it was broadly intimated that the Aranha visit may set a precedent for similar visits by other Latin American foreign ministers in pursuit of the "good neighbor" and "solidarity" policies.

Aranha is expected about February 9 or 10. Exact duration of his stay was not known.

Questions of Talks. It was understood that the questions to be discussed with Aranha concerned foreign exchange, government finances, revision of the American-Brazilian reciprocal trade agreement with a view to increasing trade between the two countries, possible commercial credits through the Import-Export Bank and questions of United States and Brazilian national defense.

The invitation to Aranha was extended by President Roosevelt through President Getulio Vargas, of Brazil. It was noted that the invitation was telegraphed from Washington January 9, the day that the American delegation to the Lima conference landed at New York.

Crowds Throng Woman's Club Auditorium To Hear Lectures of Bridge Authority

Here is proof of Atlanta's interest in the finer points of contract bridge. Crowds similar to this one have been thronging the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's Club since the start of The Constitution's school being conducted by Harold Sharpsteen, noted Culbertson system authority who is regarded as one of the best bridge teachers in the country. He is being assisted by Mrs. Sharpsteen.

LEGION SPOKESMAN URGES NEUTRALITY

Chailaux Praises Dies Committee to 700 Ex-Servicemen Here.

Passage of a universal service act, strict neutrality and adequate defense are the three methods to maintain peace in America, Atlanta Legionnaires were told last night by Homer Chailaux, of Indianapolis, director of Americanism for the American Legion.

Addressing an audience of 700 at the Legion home in Piedmont park, Chailaux declared that education by radio, movies and newspapers also would aid in preserving peace and at the same time develop a greater spirit of nationalism.

"Good, honest Americans, strong in their faith in the democratic tradition, can and will protect this country from Communists, Fascists and Nazis," he said. "The Dies committee has been a distinct benefit to the United States in showing Americans some of the subversive movements of those isms."

LEADERS TO TELL OF JOB BENEFITS

Few Understand Law, Employment Aide Says.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Manager Ed B. Martin, of the Maccon office of the Georgia State Employment Service, said today "a comparatively small number" of Bibb county's unemployed have applied for benefits "because most of them do not understand the law."

Only 450 of the county's 12,500 persons eligible for benefits under the Georgia Unemployment Compensation Act have asked for aid, Mr. Martin reported.

He urged that employed workers, employers and employers attend a forum in the Bibb superior courtroom at 7:30 o'clock Monday night for discussion of the act.

There seems to be many persons eligible for the benefits who have not applied and evidently do not know about the act in spite of publicity in the press and on the radio," he commented.

Frank E. Coffey, international representative for the National Security Board, will lead the forum, and Ralph Macon, field adviser of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, will preside.

3 HURT WHEN TRAIN HITS OPEN SWITCH

DEFIANCE, Ohio, Jan. 14.—(UP)—A Wabash railroad train struck an open switch and the locomotive capsized today, injuring three members of the crew. The 20 passengers in the coach and Pullman cars were not injured.

The injured were Melvin Eysinger, engineer; H. E. Myers, fireman, and W. G. Keifer, extra fireman, all of Toledo. The accident was blamed on spreading rails. The train was en route from Fort Wayne, Ind., to Toledo, Ohio.

Tickets for the Birthday Dances Are Placed on Sale for Georgians

Special Precautions Taken To Protect Public From Imposters; Atlanta P. T. A. To Co-operate in Distributing Buttons in Schools.

As tickets went on sale yesterday for the "birthday parties" to be held during the week of January 23-30 in celebration of President Roosevelt's birthday and to raise funds to aid victims of infantile paralysis, the state and county committees in charge of the campaign took special precautions to protect the public against imposters.

An official badge bearing the emblem of the national drive against polio is being provided for all persons selling tickets and buttons, these badges to constitute credentials guaranteeing authenticity of the sales organization.

In Fulton county as well as throughout the state, all veterans' organizations are in charge of the sale of buttons and tickets on the streets and in office buildings. Logan Kelly, of Buford, is state chairman of the veterans' group, and Vernon Frank, of Decatur, heads the fifth district organization. H. W. Drane is in general charge of organization work among the veterans throughout Georgia.

Special impetus has been given the campaign in Fulton county by the voluntary assistance of the Atlanta Council of Parents and Teachers, with which are affiliated all Parent-Teacher organizations in the Atlanta area. The Atlanta council will interest itself primarily with distributing buttons in the Atlanta schools and among school patrons of Atlanta, while the button sale will be in charge of the Parent-Teacher organizations in that area.

Mrs. Percy A. Rich, president of the Atlanta P. T. A. Council and a member of the Fulton county committee on the birthday celebration, announced yesterday that the various units of her organization would co-operate fully in the drive to raise money for the aid of infantile paralysis victims.

Five thousand tickets to the three "birthday dances" to be held in Atlanta on the night of January 20 went on sale at Muse's, so that Atlantans wishing to participate without waiting to be solicited may do so at their leisure. The dances will be held at the city auditorium, the Henry Grady hotel and the Shrine mosque.

Young Author of 'Bury the Dead' Turns Pen to Racket Melodrama

Irwin Shaw's New Play Deals With the Escapades and Death of the Bold, Bad Man—Obviously.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP)—One of the significant facets of the Broadway theater audience is that it greets with apathy a propaganda play even though the drama may be discussing a cause for which the man in the aisle seat has a strong feeling. For people go to the theater for entertainment and not to hear a spiel on a soapbox.

A couple of seasons ago Broadway greeted a young playwright named Irwin Shaw, who had written a terrific indictment of war called "Bury the Dead." It was a play that received such enthusiastic critical reviews that its dramatic story of the toll battle can take out of a human being seemed destined to be an overwhelming hit. It had only a fair run.

Now young Shaw is back on Broadway with a melodrama called "The Gentle People," which is more an outspoken denunciation of racketeers than the profile of modest family life in his native Brooklyn which it apparently was intended to be.

The profile is soon lost amid the fervor for propaganda to destroy the suave racketeer who preys upon innocent little men—like a Jewish lens grinder and a Greek chef who spend their idle hours in fishing from their small boat off a Coney Island pier.

He breaks in on their night fishing to tell them that he will give them "protection" for their boat for $5 a week. They pay because they have already saved almost enough money to buy a larger boat they are planning to sail down onto the gulf stream for a big fishing trip.

But, Stella, the Jewish lens grinder's daughter, thinks the racketeer is a glamorous Robin Hood and more artful dramatist than the man on a trip to Cuba without benefit of marriage.

Under this double threat, the Jew and the Greek lure the racketeer onto their boat and toss him overboard to the sharks. They reclaim not only the blackmail money they have been paying, but also considerable cash the racketeer has been collecting from other victims.

It is a play with less plot than propaganda. It is, true, worthwhile propaganda, but neither Franchot Tone nor Sylvia Sidney can be impressive in the roles of the racketeer and the Jewish daughter.

3 ORDERED HELD IN MURDER PROBE

Mother, Two Sons Jailed in Chalker Death.

GIBSON, Ga., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Affidavits of two negro material witnesses and the testimony of a trio of investigating officers was sufficient evidence here yesterday to convince three justices of the peace that a woman and her two sons should be committed to prison on the charge of the slaying of Clellan Chalker, Gibson merchant, the night of December 17.

Mrs. Emma Harris, and her sons, John Sherman Harris, boyhood chum of the slain merchant, and Roger Harris, were returned to the Richmond county jail. The court charged Mrs. Harris with accessory to murder, and Roger Harris, with accessory before the fact, while John Harris was ordered held on a charge of murder.

Upon recommendation of Solicitor J. Cecil Davis, bail was set at $500 each for two material witnesses, Ed Hill and Hattie Clara Moore.

NAZI COURT FINDS AMERICAN GUILTY

Seaman Convicted of Reading Communistic Paper Criticizing Germany.

HAMBURG, Germany, Jan. 14.—(AP)—A 34-year-old naturalized American, George Joseph Roth, was sentenced today to spend four and a half months more in a Nazi prison as the result of his conviction on charges of "preparation for treason."

Roth, former steward on the United States liner Washington, was arrested November 29, accused of possessing a Communistic newspaper printed in the German language in Le Havre, France.

Roth testified he did not know the paper had Communistic tendencies.

The court said it was "of the opinion that the defendant was fully aware he possessed a newspaper with Communistic tendencies."

Roth emigrated to the United States from Germany 10 years ago and became a naturalized citizen in 1931.

United States Consul General Wilbur Keblinger and Vice Consul Sabin J. Dalferes attended the trial at which Roth was represented by an attorney of his own choice.

HULL OFFERED AMERICAN COUNSEL

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Morris A. Greenbaum, counsel for a "Roth defense committee," said tonight that Secretary Hull personally cabled an offer of American counsel for George Joseph Roth, a naturalized American citizen who has been convicted and sentenced to six months imprisonment in Germany on charges of preparation of treason.

Defense Bids With Strong Holdings Will Be Subject at Bridge School

Three Classes Will Be Conducted Tomorrow at Atlanta Woman's Club by Harold Sharpsteen, Noted Culbertson System Authority.

Simplifying the problems of bidding defensively with strong holdings headlines tomorrow's three regular sessions of The Constitution's School of Contract Bridge in the Atlanta Woman's Club.

At each class, Harold Sharpsteen, noted Culbertson system authority, promises to reduce the most effective strength-showing bids in contract to terms simple enough for all types of players to easily grasp and put into practical execution. Sessions will start as usual at 10:30 a. m., 2:30 and 8 p. m., the same lesson subjects being presented before each group.

Outstanding defensive bids to be completely interpreted by The Constitution's expert tomorrow include:

Forcing takeout doubles. New 1939 semi-forcing jump overcalls. Non-forcing one and two trump overcalls.

Game-forcing immediate overcalls. New 1939 one-round forcing defensive jump takeout. Responses to all strength-showing defensive bids.

In resuming its sessions tomorrow for the third consecutive week, The Constitution's bridge school boasts an enrollment of more than 1,600 players, who Mr. Sharpsteen is satisfied, have displayed sufficient ability in fundamentals to be ready for more advanced phases of contract bridge bidding and play.

Admission to any class in The Constitution series, when The Constitution bridge school courtesy coupon is presented, is 35 cents, the coupon saving 65 cents. Regular lesson fees, without the coupon, are $1. Clip the coupon in today's Constitution for any class tomorrow.

ATLANTANS THRILL TO ORMANDY BATON

Philadelphia Symphony Plays to Packed and Enthusiastic Auditorium.

By MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG. The Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, under the baton of Eugene Ormandy, thrilled an audience that packed the city auditorium last night as audiences are seldom thrilled. It was a tremendous artistic experience. The audience expressed profound appreciation with an overwhelming ovation.

The entire program reached the zenith of symphonic perfection. Ormandy wields a baton that is authoritative and at the same time inspirational. Atlanta has admired his genius since the days when he appeared here as conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony, but it was an even greater Ormandy last night. He was matured and ripened in artistic stature and revealed a deeper reverence for the thought of the composer than ever before. His sincerity in interpreting every mood and thought of the composer, his genuine musicianship, his sensitive soul in communion with the music, were conveyed in movement and facial expression, ever so subtle, to his men, and each of them (every one an artist in his own right) caught his every mood, and interpreted it as he saw it.

The program opened with "Prelude and Fugue in B Minor" by Bach, originally written for organ, and transcribed for orchestra by Lucien Cailliet, a member of the orchestra. This masterpiece re-born in a happy manner in the glorious transcription for the orchestra, and one wondered as they played what Bach might have done for orchestral composition had the orchestra had its modern proportions in Bach's day. To hear the themes of the fugue entering in the different sections of the orchestra, each receiving individual tone coloring, was an interesting study for the auditor. And the clarity and precision with which the orchestra performed the work made it outstanding. The feat of conducting this work from memory—Ormandy conducts everything from memory—was an accomplishment within itself so intricate is the network of themes.

The piece of resistance and major work of the program was "Pathetic Symphony" (No. 6 in B minor), by Tchaikovsky. The interpretation of this great work by Ormandy and his orchestra was so marvelously beautiful, so wonderfully stirring, so majestically spoken in tone and quality, that any description would be pale in comparison. Thinking now I cannot remember hearing any performance that I felt was more inspired. Every note seemed to come from the very heart of the conductor and each player seemed to echo in the heart of each listener. It was uplifting in its greatness. One somehow felt a better person for having heard it.

Gamut of Emotion. The first movement of this immortal symphony, the gamut of human emotion, melancholy, nature, but so sensitively beautiful that it seemed the essence of beauty in music. The brass choir of the orchestra contributed to the glory of the performance in a manner that was rare for their tone color or was remarkable.

The second movement was a happy contrast to the drama and pathos of the first, and possessed a delightful melody and rhythm, exquisitely set forth by this orchestra.

The third movement reached a marvelous climax, being of a more brilliant character, and making tremendous technical and interpretative demands which were skillfully and impeccably met.

The fourth movement in passion and grief seems to be the complete revelation of the soul and its feeling before death. It was unfortunate that during the performance of this movement radiator pipes began knocking, interrupting the beauty of the music.

After intermission Sibelius' "The Swan of Tuonela" was the first offering. "Tuonela" is the Finnish name for Hades, and the tone-poem is based on the legend that those wending their way to "Tuonela" had to cross nine seas and one river, where sang and floated the sacred swan. The melody of the swan is one of unspeakable beauty, and the composition itself is a masterpiece, individual and characteristically an expression of Sibelius' genius.

GEORGIANS DRAFT PROGRAM TO HELP COTTON FARMERS

Congressional Delegation Also Works on Freight Rates and Relief During Early Days of Congress.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(P)—The cotton farmer, southern freight rates, and relief became the chief concern of Georgia representatives and senators during the first two weeks of the new session.

Members were determined apparently to provide additional money for cotton benefits, but there was no agreement—either in Georgia's delegation or in any other—about the means of raising it.

Processing taxes promised to become a major issue. Some Georgians said privately they were willing to "go along" with this plan if other prospective sources failed.

Senators George and Russell and Representative Peterson offered a plan to lift farm liens and to provide land for homesteading by farm families.

Senator George had three tobacco bills—one of them to refund penalty taxes paid by farmers in 1938—and Representative Pace introduced a series of measures dealing with cotton and peanuts. Pace was working on a bill to protect domestic oils, chiefly that produced from peanuts and cottonseed, from foreign competition.

Many Farm Plans.

Virtually every member of the delegation had a farm plan. They ranged from the domestic allotment plan for cotton to the development of new uses for peanuts. Representative Owen, taking his place as Georgia's only member of the agriculture committee, expressed determination to find some means of giving cotton growers a lift, but was not ready to offer his own plan.

Senator Russell prepared a bill to provide federal assistance in draining creeks in north Georgia as a means of preventing malaria. Russell held his chairmanship of the senate immigration and naturalization committee, turning down an opportunity to head the manufactures committee. Senators can serve as chairman of only one committee.

Representative Ramspeck, apparently Georgia's champion bill introducer in the opening days of the session, had a series of measures affecting the federal civil service system. He is chairman of the civil service committee.

Freight Rate Bill.

Ramspeck sponsored a bill, unsuccessful in the last session of congress, to equalize freight rates between the north and south.

The freight situation and the plight of the cotton farmer were described by Representative Brown as the south's two most pressing problems.

Representative Tarver was receiving congratulations this week end on the success of his relief bill amendment prohibiting sectional differentials of more than 25 per cent in the WPA wage scale.

Representative Cox assumed a spot of new importance with his elevation to ranking majority member of the powerful rules committee. Although he has been a critic of many New Deal measures, he predicted Georgia's house delegation would vote solidly for the President's defense program.

Representative Whelchel, laid up with a broken leg during much of the last session, was back on the

This is "Minnie," looking very sad and regretful after her Garbo act had been interrupted by an attendant who wanted to transfer her to another cage in the Grant park zoo. She bit him, and yesterday afternoon she was shaking her head and periodically sighing as if to say—"It was just one of those days."

Just One Thing After Another Puts Grant Park's Bear in a Garbo-Like Frame of Mind That Leads to Complications.

Grant park's 8-year-old Himalayan bear, "Minnie," was in a mood yesterday—she wanted to be alone. From early morning she realized that Saturday was going to be one of those days when people annoy her.

She had a bad taste, and she didn't feel like bothering with anybody. Besides, she hadn't fully recovered from a minor malady, and people ought to respect an ill bear.

Evidently she didn't think Attendant E. H. Shropshire was showing her the proper respect when he tried to move her to another cage for treatment. Maybe she wanted sympathy and she couldn't understand how transfer-

The delegation's only new member, Representative W. Ben Gibbs, of Jesup, said his first bill would ask federal assistance in acquiring lands for the Fort Frederica National Monument on St. Simons Island. Colleagues were trying to get Gibbs appointed to the house judiciary committee.

SEVERAL MESSAGES PLANNED BY RIVERS

Governor Expected To Delay His First One Until Monday of Next Week.

Governor Rivers probably will delay his first message to the general assembly until Monday of next week or maybe longer in order to permit the assembly to pass on the plan for a Milledgeville state hospital authority which will permit the state to obtain a loan and grant of $4,000,000 for the hospital.

The Governor's views on state problems will be presented to the assembly in a series of messages, personally delivered, during the course of the session. He is expected to take up one subject at a time, leave it with the assembly, and return for a discussion of another matter when the first is disposed of.

Legislative leaders have informed the Governor that they do not feel it necessary for him to deliver a message concerning the state hospital plan which has been given the right of way over all other matters because the federal government is asking final action before January 29.

Chairman Marion Ennis, of the house state hospital committee, said he and other members were ready to support the bill which already has been presented by Representative Frank Gross, of Stephens county, the administration's floor leader.

Governor Rivers plans to leave early tomorrow morning for Montgomery where he will be a guest of honor at the inauguration of Governor-elect Frank Dixon, of Alabama. The Georgian and Governor-elect Dixon have been fast friends for several years. He will return tomorrow night.

On Wednesday the Governor will participate in the dedication of the new Catholic Co-Cathedral of Christ the King, being a featured speaker at a dinner to be given in honor of visiting church leaders Wednesday afternoon.

Governor Rivers will leave Wednesday night for Washington where Thursday he will speak before the meeting of the National Conference of Governors.

The Governor said yesterday that he planned to draft his first message to the legislature on trains during his trips this week but that he was undecided when it would be delivered.

HIGH COURT RULE ON TVA PAST DUE

Justices May Decide on It and Child Labor on Monday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(UP)—The supreme court may present Monday its long-delayed decision on constitutionality of the Tennessee Valley Authority power program.

The TVA case is one of three pending before the tribunal on which decision has been delayed somewhat longer than the normal period.

The other cases concern the question of whether the child labor amendment to the Constitution is still legally before the states for ratification, and disposition of $586,000 fees impounded by the federal courts during litigation over validity of a rate order issued by Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace for handling livestock at the Kansas City stockyards.

WOMEN OF G. O. P. LUNCH IN VICTORY

Club Hears Optimistic Talk Concerning 1940; 1,500 Are Present.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(P)—The women behind the campaigning behind the votes which recorded Republican gains in the last elections held a "victory luncheon" today and heard hopeful talk of 1940 along with reviews of last November's results.

The occasion was the 18th annual meeting of the Women's National Republican Club and the speakers were a newly elected senator, Governor and national representative from widely separated states.

Seventeen states and the District of Columbia were represented among the 1,500 women who heard Governor Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts; Senator Alexander Wiley, of Wisconsin, and Representative Karl Mundt, of South Dakota, call for a re-

U. S. Attache at Shanghai on Speaking Tour.

Julean Arnold, of Shanghai, American commercial attache in the Far East, will visit Atlanta January 22-24.

Arnold is now on leave, and is making addresses on conditions in China and Japan in leading cities of the United States. He already has spoken in Los Angeles, Dallas and New Orleans.

In his address at Dallas, Arnold warned that Americans believing a Japanese victory in China would mean bigger American cotton markets there, were deluded. He explained that Japan plans to produce American type cotton in North China and to create a condition of economic self-sufficiency. A resident of the Far East for 36 years, Arnold last visited Atlanta in 1934.

122 WHITEHALL

MRS. ROOSEVELT IS MORE POPULAR THAN PRESIDENT

But Majority of American Voters Object to Post With Son's Firm, Gallup Poll Discovers.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, one of the most active women who ever lived in the White House, wins a strong vote of approval in a country-wide survey of public sentiment just completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

Asked whether they approved or disapproved of the way Mrs. Roosevelt has occupied the place of "First Lady" in the six years since her husband's election, an average of two voters in every three vote in her favor.

Mrs. Roosevelt is more popular with women than with men, and more popular with low-income and middle-income voters than with the well-to-do. But there are majorities on her side in all parts of the country and among all classes of people, among northerners and southerners, in a cross-section that included oil workers in California and bluebirds in Massachusetts.

Their recurring comments give a picture of what the public likes: "She lives a useful life and keeps busy."

"She sets a good example by encouraging church-while things."

"She has changed the public's traditional idea of a President's wife, but it's all to the good."

Although national elections and public opinion surveys give a clear pattern of President Roosevelt's own popularity, today's Institute survey is probably the first indication on a nation-wide scale of what the average American thinks of the President's wife.

Surprisingly, perhaps, the survey reveals that she is even more popular than the President. The President received a little more than 62 per cent of the major party vote on election day, 1936. The vote was one of the most decisive victories in American history, and much of that election day popularity has been retained. This month an Institute survey showed 58 per cent of the voters approving him.

But the actual vote for Mrs. Roosevelt in today's survey, which was conducted in the same way as the Presidential survey, is sharply higher.

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way Mrs. Roosevelt has conducted herself as 'First Lady'?"

Yes 67%
No 33%

It is interesting to note that, on this basis, Mrs. Roosevelt has the approval of about 30,000,000 voters, while the President polled 27,500,000 in 1936.

As Presidential majorities sometimes do, however, Mrs. Roosevelt's backers favor her in principle but desert her on a specific piece of policy. And the issue is one which Mrs. Roosevelt made herself:

How much independence should the wife and family of the President of the United States have in choosing their own activities, in business and otherwise?

The President's wife posed that question at a newspaper conference recently, after she had been criticized for accepting a position as a director on the board of her son James' insurance company, Roosevelt & Sargent, of Boston.

"Do you think the President's wife should engage in any business activity which interests her, if she doesn't do it for profit?"

Almost three voters in four agreed that she should, the exact vote being 73 per cent yes, 27 per cent no.

In Boston itself a newspaperman put his opinion this way:

"People ought to remember that her private life is really more important than her official position. One is temporary and the other is permanent. Mrs. Roosevelt is doing the kind of things she has always been interested in doing."

Some of these interests have included writing newspaper columns and magazine articles, broadcasting talks and speeches over the radio and sponsoring handcraft work, model housing and terpsichore.

But many of the voters drew the line at the actual post Mrs. Roosevelt recently accepted—that of director of her son's insurance company. The Institute questioned them as follows:

Mrs. Roosevelt has taken a position on the board of directors in her son's insurance company. Do you approve or disapprove of this?

Disapprove 56%

This time many of the voters objected that Mrs. Roosevelt was "taking part in something outright commercial," that "Jimmy's insurance business has already had too much publicity" or that "profit is involved." Not a few of the comments indicated that the insurance post is "a man's job" and that what would be permissible for the President's son would be "not quite right" for the President's wife.

The Institute's popularity survey shows that Mrs. Roosevelt is in highest favor with women, in less favor with men. On the question of general approval or disapproval of Mrs. Roosevelt as "First Lady" the vote is:

Women 73%

County Loses Cash By Enforcing Laws

Elimination of bug operations and prohibition repeal will cut into Fulton county's revenue to the tune of $110,000 for 1939.

This became apparent yesterday in estimates of receipts submitted by James L. Respass, of Respass & Respass, Fulton county auditors.

When anticipated revenues were being discussed at a meeting of county commissioners, a reduction of $99,000 was noted in receipts from fines in various divisions of the criminal court. When questioned about it, Respass said:

"Well, we don't have liquor law violators like we had before repeal, and the drive on lottery operators has just about cut off the revenue we formerly got in fines from there. I think our estimates are about in line. The county will lose about $110,000 from the two former sources of revenue."

Another $8,000 reduction in revenue was anticipated by Respass in a cut in the value of seized liquor cars, which under the law, are sold by the county.

COMMISSION BARS ALL SALARY RAISES

Breakdown in Allocations of $4,286,688 Ordered for Wednesday Session.

Fulton county commissioners yesterday barred all salary raises in a preliminary study of the 1939 budget and voted to meet again at 10 o'clock Wednesday to continue deliberations.

A further breakdown in the $4,286,688.72 allocations proposed by James L. Respass, of Respass & Respass, county auditors, was requested in order that the commission members may be as familiar as possible with operation and maintenance costs for each of the county departments.

Another motive in asking for the breakdown was an avowed effort to effect economies in order that the 13-mill tax rate suggested in the Respass report be held down if possible.

The 1938 tax rate was 12 1/2 mills while the 1937 rate was 10 1/2 mills. The county's contribution for relief purposes will necessitate a special levy for that purpose, it was pointed out. The total of $803,000 carried out all relief in the Respass budget would normally demand a three-cent levy, it was pointed out. The county proper proposes to operate under a 10-mill rate exclusive of relief.

Commission Chairman E. L. Almand yesterday designated Dr. Charles R. Adams, vice chairman of the county commission, as chairman to succeed George F. Longino, resigned, until a new commissioner has been elected and qualified.

Ordinary Thomas H. Jeffries, who under the law is a commissioner until Longino's place has been filled, yesterday visited the conference room where commissioners were studying the Respass proposals, found out what was going on and withdrew saying:

"I guess they don't need me for that."

Tax Collector T. Earle Suttles announced yesterday that 1939 tax collections to date amount to $4,019,530.67, which is $678,904.43 short of the $4,698,435.10 which the 1938 digest was to have produced. The figure, however, represents about 85 per cent of the amount due the county, and is a better record than the office produced in 1937. Settles pointed out.

General William George Van Horn Moseley will address a mass meeting of DeKalb county citizens at 7:45 o'clock Thursday night, January 26, in the auditorium of the DeCATUR Girls' High school on McDonough street.

General Moseley will speak on "Communism, Nazism and Fascism versus Americanism." The meeting will be sponsored by the Harold Byrd post of the American Legion.

Preceding the meeting, General Moseley will be honored at an informal dinner given by the post. The dinner, which will be attended by county officials, will be held at 6 o'clock at Hotel Candler.

At a meeting Friday night, members of the post conferred in resolution adopted by the DeKalb county grand jury (1) opposing any change in immigration quotas; (2) opposing any further admission of refugees to this country, and (3) urging deportation of aliens on relief and with criminal records.

The post also voted to write letters to Georgia's senators and congressmen opposing transfer to the Department of Justice of information secured by the Dies committee.

The Rev. Jarrett Fowler, of Cumming, will be the principal speaker. Special musical numbers and the reading of the proclamation by Burton A. Gaskin, grand sire, also will be included on the program. Officers of the lodge are W. B. Conn, noble grand; F. J. Smalley, vice grand; and T. W. Donahoe, secretary.

ODD FELLOWS' LODGE
120 YEARS OLD TODAY

Riverside Lodge No. 17, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, will celebrate the 120th anniversary of its founding at 11 o'clock this morning at the Lowrytown Baptist church on Bolton road.

The Rev. Jarrett Fowler, of Cumming, will be the principal speaker. Special musical numbers and the reading of the proclamation by Burton A. Gaskin, grand sire, also will be included on the program. Officers of the lodge are W. B. Conn, noble grand; F. J. Smalley, vice grand; and T. W. Donahoe, secretary.

SCHOOL ARRANGES WORK IN AVIATION

Atlanta Opportunity School Conducts Classes at Candler Field.

A class in aviation began last Monday night at 7 o'clock at Candler field in the Towers building, fourth floor, according to Major P. S. Woodward, principal of the Opportunity school, W. J. Ward, instructor at Tech High school, organized the class and selected the nights and hours most suited to those who enrolled. Mr. Ward has an outstanding record in aviation, and holds a pilot license with many hours to his credit as a flyer and as a glider. The class will offer instruction in theory, practice in ground work. The objective is to train employed men to become air motor mechanics and plane mechanics.

All persons interested in the course are invited to report to Candler field next Monday night, or telephone the Atlanta Opportunity school.

The trade sewing class this week began sketching fashions, and is continuing the drafting of various patterns. The group is finishing the unit with tailored shirts and will soon be working with silks and woolsens, in the making of spring dresses, suits and coats.

The trade millinery class in the school has placed eight students this week in local manufacturing plants for full-time jobs during the season, it is stated by Mrs. Edith Swearingen, teacher.

INMAN PARK SPONSORS GIVE PUPILS PRESENTS

The portable is finished and the children of High 5 and High 2 are enjoying their new rooms. There is a toy shop being constructed in High 2.

Dr. Davis, the sponsor of Low 3, came to talk to that class today. He was kind enough to present each of the children with tooth paste and a toothbrush.

Mr. H. Cates, sponsor of Low 4, gave two prizes, large boxes of toilet paper to the children writing the best letters on "Sanitation." Dorothy Norton and Floyd Brookshire won the prizes.

Mrs. W. A. Niall, another sponsor of the same class, sent each child a present recently.

ALBERTA WILSON.

CONNALLY BUYS RADIO
FOR USE OF CHILDREN

Connally school is going to buy a radio with the money our school received from the navy band concert.

Fourth grade pupils are making a snow man for their library table.

High sixth grade pupils are trying to get everything finished up so that they will be ready to go to Joe Brown in February.

WINIFRED LAMBERT,
ANNE STOWE.

Show Window at Smillie School

MUSIC COMPOSED AT SYLVAN HILLS

Contests Encourage Pupils To Write Original Compositions.

Activities at Sylvan Hills are many and varied. Music has been the inspiration for a number of them. In the fall, Miss Emerson offered a prize for the best original composition in music.

The contest was to be judged on the basis of originality, how well the music was written and how well it conformed to the pattern. Prizes were awarded at an assembly Monday.

Harry Harley, High 4, won first prize for his "Minute Dance." Harriette Garmon won second place for "Christmas Song," and Yvonne Croom was awarded a piece of music for her "Waltz in F."

The winners played their compositions at the assembly. Miss Emerson announced another contest which will close the latter part of May.

During the holidays a number of boys and girls carolled in the neighborhood. They gave the money they received to a charity sponsored by a local newspaper.

Thirty-seven boys and girls took part in the civic pageant, "The Divine Promise."

We used our check from the navy band concert to buy band instruments. We had a paper sale and used the money to pay on our new piano.

The magician, Rameled, will be at our school and give a show Friday, January 20. The price is 10 cents, and the public is invited.

MIRIAM QUIGLY.

PUPILS AT FORMWALT DRAW UP RESOLUTIONS

High 3 boys and girls have made New Year's resolutions and are trying hard to observe all of them.

One day 2 pupils are making a fudge candy in their "grandmother's kitchen" in their room.

Low 3-1 children are glad to welcome Jean Dalton from Couch school.

High 2-2 pupils are making tablecloths and napkins. This week the new one report to duty with the others. The next two weeks they report alone with the older children watching to see if the job is done well. They are trying hard to give their best service.

High 6, Miss Hogan's class, has enjoyed many Christmas games. On rainy days at recess, they play Chinese checkers, table tennis, fiddlesticks, bingo and many others.

Mrs. McClain's and Miss McKee's classes enjoyed an excursion to the Capitol last week, and they went also to see the museum at Emory University.

Low 2, Mrs. Davis' class, is enjoying the opera, "Hansel and Gretel."

Miss Berry's grade, Low 2, made a flower booklet. Joyce Gray is now in the hospital.

Miss McCloy's High 1 children are planning a party for their mothers. Their sponsor is coming to the party, too.

Low 3, Mrs. Standard's class, is reading about some of the great rulers.

GIRLS' HIGH TEAMS BEGIN BASKETBALL

Athletic Association Makes Full Schedule Among School Groups.

With Joyce Slate as manager and Alice Alhadeff, Virginia Tugle and June Speck heads of the freshman, junior and senior divisions, respectively, the Girls' High Athletic Association is entering into its annual basketball season.

The five weeks of practice, during which 10 games are to be played between the three divisions, started January 5. Following the practice games, the round robin tournament will be played, with players to be chosen from those participating in the practice games.

The climax of the season is the Cadwell cup tournament, to be played between the freshman, junior and senior teams, and the subsequent announcement of the mythical varsity team. Varsity members will be chosen by judges from outside the school from the Cadwell cup players who show greatest skill and proficiency in play.

Friday, January 13, all seniors were notified as to whether it will be necessary for them to take final examinations for promotions.

After school Friday the January graduates stayed for an extra music lesson in preparation for the graduation exercises.

CHILDREN AT KEY STUDY VOCATIONS

Parents Write Letters to Fifth Grade Telling of Occupations.

Key children enjoyed their Christmas holidays and are happy to be back in school.

Quite a number of new books have been added to our library and we know everyone is going to enjoy reading them.

High 6 came back from the Christmas holidays ready to work hard for promotion to junior high school. They are sorry that Jean Smith is still ill; also so many others in the class who are out on account of illness. They are busy checking for athletic buttons and trying to get ready to leave Key school.

High 5 children are enjoying their study of occupations. They have made a study of the occupations of their fathers. Some of the fathers have been interested enough in this study to write letters to the class telling something about their work. The class is glad to welcome Anna Hardy to Key school.

High 3 pupils are making clocks and the goal of the class is that each child be able to tell time before going to Low 4.

Low 2-1 has been learning to use finger paints. Each child has enjoyed trying his skill of creating a picture.

HIGHLAND SCHOOL HOST TO TEACHERS

Children Help To Entertain City Section Group.

The primary teachers and children acted as hosts last Wednesday to the primary teachers of the northeastern section of the city. We enjoyed having the teachers as our guests and hope they will come to see us again.

Children in Mrs. Hodges' room have a beautiful flower box which Frederic Thompson made with four blocks and a chess box.

Girls and boys in Miss Corley's second grade enjoyed the visit of their sponsor, Mrs. Emma Garrett Morris.

Elizabeth Eyles brought a beautiful starfish to school today which her grandmother brought to her yesterday from Jacksonville, Fla.

Miss Lawrence's class welcomes a new pupil from Lithia Springs, Janet Groover. She brings an all "A" report card, so we know she will be a good student.

High and Low 6 are having a good time making the social science room attractive. Low 6 is making a frieze depicting life during the Middle Ages. High 6 has been putting up some excellent maps and posting current events.

PEEPLS SCHOOL GIVES DOLL SHOW

Lee Children and Teachers Attend as Guests.

The pupils and teachers of Lee Street school were guests at our doll show. Five hundred dolls were entered. A souvenir of a doll was given to each child who attended the show. Mary Kay Suttles' doll wore a dress that was 30 years old. Joan Couch brought her doll in a doll cradle that has a music box under the mattress. The music box played "Rock-a-bye Baby."

In addition to the toy dolls there were live dolls. Margaret Wolfe, Betty Rae Olds, Patricia Medlock, Joy Woodland and Dorothy Snider were colonial dolls and danced the minuet. The Dutch dolls were Joan Couch and Jean Hardin. Jean Rasmussen was a Mexican doll, and Marjorie Hughey was an Indian doll. The guests were greeted at the door by Jane Lanier and Martha Hall, who were Russian dolls.

SCIENTISTS INTEREST CLARK HOWELL CLASS

High 6 pupils are especially interested in scientists and inventors of our present day.

'CROPPERS OUSTED FROM ROAD CAMPS

Demonstrators Comply Stubbornly; Wanted U. S. Homes, NEC Head Says.

NEW MADRID, Mo., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Southeast Missouri's bedraggled army of road-camping sharecroppers and their families gave way slowly and reluctantly today before the efforts of state highway patrolmen to end their dramatic protest against a low economic status.

Acting on orders of Dr. Harry Parker, state health commissioner, who said the situation constituted "a menace to public health," the patrol began breaking up the crude camps that have dotted 150 miles of highways in the "Bootheel" cotton county since Tuesday.

Comply Stubbornly.
The 1,300 men, women and children, who had endured inclement weather, lack of food and miserable living conditions in their makeshift highway hovels, complied stubbornly with the officers' command to "get packing in a hurry."

By nightfall only three of the 13 groups had been disbanded and it appeared the job of ending the demonstration would take another day or two.

State police planned to work through the night moving the demonstrators to their former homes, if possible; otherwise to temporary camps.

No Violence.
There were no reports of violence or disorder.

However, at Memphis, H. L. Mitchell, secretary of the Southern Tenant Farmers' Union, said he had been informed the Missouri police had escorted J. R. Butler, president of the CIO affiliate, and two organizers to the state line and had told them "to get out and stay out."

Earlier in the day, Captain A. D. Shepard, of the state patrol, said Butler had conferred with him at Sikeston, and had promised full co-operation in moving the sharecroppers back to their homes. He said Butler then left, presumably for Memphis.

Force Comment.
In St. Louis, Owen H. Whitfield, negro minister and tenant on the government rehabilitation project at La Forge, Mo., declared the police "probably will have to use force" before they can clear the highways. Whitfield had urged the mass demonstration.

Told that the camps were ordered broken up as "a menace to public health," Whitfield said: "Do you think those shacks my people have been living in are any healthier? If they are sent back to the conditions from which they fled, the same situation inevitably will occur again."

Federal Probe.
Landowners have demanded a federal investigation of the activities of Whitfield and of Hans Baasch, supervisor of the La Forge project. Baasch denied today he had any connection with the mass protest.

Robert K. Ryland, state director of the Federal National Emergency Council, returning to St. Louis, said he believed the demonstration was "fostered by subversive elements."

He said he had talked to "dozens" of negroes and all were waiting for "Uncle Sam" to give them a white house with a porch, a barn, well and a span of mules. None of those questioned, he said, had been evicted from their tenancies.

LODGE WILL HONOR CORONER DONEHOO

Battle Hill Group To Meet Tuesday Night.

Paul Donehoo, Fulton county coroner, will be honor guest at a meeting of Battle Hill Lodge No. 523, F. & A. M., at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night at the temple, Lucile avenue and Gordon street.

Horticultural Authority To Speak At Garden Club Mass Meeting Here

Hugh Findlay's Subject Friday Will Be 'Gardens To Live With.'

By YOLANDE GWIN.

Hugh Findlay, of New York and Scotland, a distinguished figure in horticultural circles throughout the country, will lecture next Friday at the Piedmont Driving Club under the auspices of the Neighborhood Garden Club of Atlanta, of which Mrs. Charles F. Rice is president.

"Gardens to Live With" will be the subject of his lecture, to which members of the following garden clubs have been invited: Peachtree, Planters, Mimosa, Habersham, Iris, Druid Hills, Rose, Piedmont, Primrose, Boxwood, Northwood, Cherokee and Mens.

He will illustrate his lecture with colored slides of some of the most noted estates in the country.

A native of Scotland, Mr. Findlay has wide knowledge of landscape architecture and horticulture, and has written several books on the subject including, "House Plants, Their Care and Culture," "Practical Gardening," "Handbook for Practical Farmers," "Garden Making and Keeping," and a book of poems on "Imperishable Earth."

He has served as professor of horticulture and agricultural botany, at the New York School of Agriculture, at Morrisville, as professor of horticulture at the Syracuse University College of Agriculture, and as professor of horticulture at the University of California, at Davis. He is now the assistant professor of landscape architecture at Columbia University and holds membership in the Royal Horticultural Society of England, and the American Society of Landscape Architects.

U. S. UNPREPARED, JOHNSON DECLARES

Assistant Secretary of War Describes Needs of the Army.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(UP)—The American army at the present time is not equipped or prepared to defend the United States, Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson declared tonight.

Speaking before the Washington chapter of the National Sojourners, Johnson said that for 20 years "while we were dreaming peace and working toward peace on this continent, the rest of the world turned its attention toward war and toward preparations for conflict."

Johnson spoke in support of President Roosevelt's $1,750,000,000 rearmament program. He said that it is "our job today to build our defenses so strong that our potential enemies will think twice, three times or even ten times before violating our rights and perhaps give up the thought entirely rather than risk possible defeat."

"The President has launched a drive to strengthen our defenses. He is insisting on a navy second to none. He is demanding an army small in size, compact in organization, fully equipped and with the best of modern arms and capable of expansion to meet any grave emergency."

"At present, our army is not prepared to defend America. It requires airplanes of every type. We need tanks and machine guns in greater quantity and of better performance."

"We must augment our new semi-automatic shoulder rifles which the world regards as the peer in small arms. We must add anti-aircraft guns. We must streamline our infantry and cavalry divisions. We must build up our reserves of munitions. We must fortify ourselves against the possibility of shortages in an emergency."

JEWISH VETERANS FIGHT COMMUNISTS

Militant Campaign Planned by Atlanta Post.

A militant campaign against Communism will be launched by Atlanta Post No. 112, Jewish War Veterans of the United States, following adoption by the national convention of a resolution opposing the menace and appointment of a national anti-Communism committee, Commander Harry M. Wengrow said yesterday.

Appointed as members of the national committee were Brigadier General Eugene Oberdorfer and Major Ralph Willner, both of Atlanta.

Commander Wengrow announced the appointment of Sam E. Levy, chairman; Jack Rapoport and Sidney Williams, former commander of the Cedarhurst American Legion post, as members of the local anti-Communism committee.

Attending the national conference were Willner, Commander Wengrow, J. B. Levettan, Harry Lever and Mack Frankel.

F.D.R. HEADS CONGRESS ON AMERICA'S ROADS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, today accepted the honorary presidency of the third Pan-American Highway Congress which opened Thursday at Santiago, Chile.

He cabled Francisco Martones, president of the congress, his "profound appreciation of the honor so generously conferred upon me" and his best wishes for the success of the parley.

HUGH FINDLAY.

Society of England, and the American Society of Landscape Architects.

Mrs. Reynolds Flournoy, of Columbus, president of the Garden Club of Georgia, will be a special guest attending the affair, as will Mrs. Robert L. Cooney, honorary president of the state organization; Mrs. Donald Hastings, national vice president of the National Council of State Garden Clubs; Mrs. Richard Johnston, state recording secretary, and Mrs. Francis Dwyer, state parliamentarian; Mrs. Phinizy Calhoun, a member of the advisory council, and Mrs. Murdock Eguen, assistant editor of Garden Gateways, official publication of the Garden Club of Georgia.

FIGHT IS FORECAST ON FLOOD CONTROL

Vermont's State Rights Contention Threatens Congress' 1938 Act.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The state's rights stand taken by Vermont's Governor George D. Aiken in behalf of a tiny backwoods hamlet (Union Village, Vt., population 50) threatened tonight to precipitate a congressional fight over revamping the government's $386,500,000 flood control program.

Senator Austin, Republican, Vermont, said he would introduce Monday a bill to "restore to the states the rights they exercised before the flood control act of 1938 was passed."

That act gave the government broad powers to condemn lands for flood control without the consent of the states.

There were indications, too, that some Democrats might support Austin's demand for amendment of the act. It was recalled that last session Senators O'Mahoney, Democrat, Wyoming, and Burke, Democrat, Nebraska, opposed the condemnation provision, contending it violated the rights of the states.

The hub of the controversy is the question whether the government can take enough land at Union Village to construct a $2,000,000 flood control dam and reservoir on the Ompompanoosuc river.

With regard to that question alone, the White House said President Roosevelt was ready to drop the $2,000,000 project rather than contest the right to federal acquisition of the lands.

That statement brought immediate replies from Governor Aiken in Vermont and Senator Gibson, Republican, Vermont, and Representative Ball, Republican, Connecticut, here.

RAILROADS DENIED STOP-SERVICE PLEA

Commission Rejects L. & N. Application.

The Georgia Public Service Commission has denied three applications of the Louisville & Nashville railroad for discontinuance of parts of its service, Chairman Walter McDonald announced yesterday.

The application of the road to operate trains No. 1 and No. 4 between Marietta and Knoxville, Tenn., instead of from Atlanta to Knoxville was denied as was the road's application to operate trains No. 31 and No. 34 between Etowah, Tenn., and Gartersville instead of between Etowah and Atlanta.

The L. & N. and the Western & Atlantic railroads were refused their application to discontinue trains No. 5 and No. 6, operating between Atlanta and Chattanooga.

PORTRAIT OF WILSON PRESENTED SCHOOL

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

ROBERTA, Ga., Jan. 14.—A large framed picture of Woodrow Wilson was presented to Woodrow Wilson Hall of the Roberta High school here yesterday by Stiles A. Martin, a native of Crawford county, graduate of the school, and now statistician of the Georgia Department of Agriculture. He was formerly state news editor of The Atlanta Constitution.

The portrait was presented for Mr. Martin by Mrs. F. E. Bentley, secretary of the local P.-T. A., at that group's monthly meeting held here. Miss Clifford Lovett, librarian, accepted the gift for the school.

Southern Loop Directors Hold Annual Meeting Here Monday

by Jack Troy

At the risk of opening my mouth and putting a size seven shoe in it, I feel constrained to heed the talk that is going around our town and suggest a series between the Jewish Progressive Club and Warren basketball teams for the poliomyelitis, or infantile paralysis, campaign.

It is just an idea and is presented here for what the people of the J. P. C. and the Warren company think it is worth.

There is no guesswork as to what a series between the teams would draw, even though they were just playing to decide the supremacy angle. With the added incentive of the poliomyelitis campaign, there is no telling what sort of crowds a three-game series would attract, say, at the city auditorium.

I fully understand that J. P. C. is planning to play Albany, and the spirit is well taken. But, in all fairness, it may as well be said now that the Progressives and the Albany team could draw only a drop in the bucket as compared with what the Progressives and the Warrens would do from the standpoint of crowd.

The details could be worked out by the two teams. They might play the first game on the basis of all proceeds going to the fund and then give a certain percentage out of the next two games.

There would be some expense involved in constructing a temporary floor if the games were played at the city auditorium. But the cost would be negligible.

I have always believed in giving the paying customers what they want and, judging by comment expressed all around our town, they would dearly love to see a series between the aforementioned teams.

Warren is favorable to such a series. The attitude of the Progressives is not known. But I imagine the Progressives would be all for it.

It really would be an attractive series and I am basketball fan enough to want to see it, too. Maybe it can be arranged. I sincerely hope it can.

We take pardonable pride today in presenting, on an accompanying page, one of the finest pictures of a point ever taken in the fields.

The dog is Peerless Blockem, a setter owned and handled by Louis Bobbitt, of Winston-Salem, N. C. Peerless Blockem will run at Waynesboro this week. Major Trammell Scott was judging at Pinhurst when the picture was snapped and he brought it back to Atlanta. The Major has been interested in field trials for more than 25 years and he says it is the finest picture he ever saw.

Peerless Blockem circled behind a pine tree and came to a perfect point on a single nestling in a bed of pine needles. It's perfection—from the picture standpoint, as well as from the standpoint of the work of the dog. The picture even shows the quail, with head turned and seemingly puzzled whether to fly or hold its ground.

Peerless Blockem won the members' derby and was third in the quail futurity at Pinhurst. And is figured to be one setter, among others, that will give the pointer clan a real battle at Waynesboro, starting on Monday.

FAMOUS SPORTS VISITOR.

Mrs. Lela Hall, comely national trapshooting champion from Strasburg, Mo., is a week-end visitor in Atlanta. She has dominated the trapshooting field, among the ladies, much as Helen Willis Moody was a dominant figure in tennis and Glenna Collett Vare was the feminine standout in national golf.

Mrs. Hall, guest of Mrs. William Farmer, of 2222 Peachtree road, is en route to Florida for trapshooting events at Tampa, Jacksonville and Miami.

In order to keep her famous shooting eye sharpened, Mrs. Hall visited the traps at the Capitol Gun Club yesterday. She was the cynosure of all eyes, especially the male eyes. She makes the breaking of the angle targets seem so ridiculously easy.

In addition to winning the North American women's championship for the fourth year in a row last year at Vandalia, Mrs. Hall had quite a record for the season's shooting. She fired on 1,600 registered targets for an average of better than 97 out of every 100.

It really isn't necessary to point out that this is a world's record for ladies. 'Tis said that Mrs. Hall, who weighs only 127 pounds, is the best shot since Annie Oakley. And her records justify that exceptional praise.

Incidentally, Glenna Collett Vare, whose feats in golf are comparable—she won the ladies national title six times—will be at Waynesboro next week for the field trials.

So Georgia will have two famous lady visitors of the sports world in the same week. Mrs. Vare is a real bird dog enthusiast, although she does not handle the dogs herself. She leaves that to Mr. Vare and enthusiastically follows the progress of the hunt on a horse.

REAL BASKETBALL INTEREST.

It was a very nice letter. And the gentleman in Gadsden, Ala., came through with a highly constructive thought.

"We wonder if it has not occurred to you that your readers crave basketball news from all over the country just as hungrily as football. We, your readers, like to read about all the major college teams of the country in detail previous to scheduled games, watch their records and conference standing, and then read the scores and some details of games and individual outstanding play."

The gentleman in Gadsden listed some of the schools—Illinois, Nebraska, Minnesota, Purdue, Ohio State, Northwestern, Kansas, Utah, Harvard, Kentucky, Washington U. (St. Louis), Mississippi State, Ole Miss, Columbia, Army, Navy, Princeton, Syracuse, DePaul, Butler, Washburn, Florida, Indiana, Georgia Tech, Washington U., West Virginia, Notre Dame, etc.

Late results of games scattered over the country are difficult to get in time for final editions, but we'll do the best we can.

The letter from Alabama, typical of a number received, indicates an increasing interest in basketball, a great sport.

LEAGUE HEADS WILL APPROVE 1939 SCHEDULE

Meeting To Be Held at Ansley; Major Scott Will Preside.

Routine business will be the order when the Southern league baseball directors hold their annual meeting Monday at the Ansley hotel.

Approval of the playing schedule is the main item of interest, according to Major Trammell Scott, president.

Opening dates and also the fact that clubs will make four swings, instead of the customary three, around the circuit, previously have been announced.

It is believed that shorter series will add more interest to the program.

Opening series of three games, starting April 14, are as follows: Chattanooga at Atlanta; Little Rock at Memphis; Knoxville at Nashville; and Birmingham at New Orleans.

An effort to form a professional football league in connection with the Southern league will be made at the annual meeting, but it is expected to die a natural death. Tom Watkins, Memphis owner, appears to be a leader in the pro league idea. Majority of directors are thought to be opposed to the plan, figuring they have enough to do supporting a baseball entry.

Orleans. These games will be played on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Monday is an off day. And then, on Tuesday, the second series of openers will be held, starting April 18, as follows: Atlanta at Knoxville; Memphis at Birmingham; Nashville at Chattanooga; and New Orleans at Little Rock.

Southern league directors who will attend the meeting and also enjoy breast of chicken at the noon luncheon include Roy Thompson, Little Rock; Billy West, Birmingham; Larry Gilbert and Fay Murphree, Nashville; Peckinpaugh, New Orleans; Tom Watkins, Nashville; Bob Allen, Knoxville; Joe Engel, Chattanooga; and Earl Mann, Atlanta.

President Scott will preside over the annual schedule meeting and depart afterwards for Waynesboro, where he will handle Bob Woodruff's dogs in the annual trials of the Georgia Field Trial Club.

Paul Waner Sees Return To Top in '39

'Big Poison' Thinks He Might Lead National League Hitters.

SARASOTA, Fla., Jan. 14.—(AP) Paul Waner let it be known today that he intends to be "Big Poison" again during the coming baseball season.

The hard-hitting Pittsburgh outfielder, whose batting average dropped to a mere .280 last season, said he expects to hit "around .350" this season and "I've never had a better chance to lead the league in batting."

"I've got just as good chance to hit well this year as I've ever had," he declared. "I feel fine and I'm in good shape. There's no reason why I shouldn't do as well as I've ever done."

And he has done pretty well in his 19 years of professional ball. Over a 12-year stretch he was one of baseball's top hitters, and pounded the ball for a .354 average in 1937, the season before his slump.

Last year, however, Paul's brother Lloyd was the "Big Poison" of the family combination, hitting .313.

Waner wouldn't alibi for his slump.

"I'm just a .250 hitter who was lucky for 12 years and last year was the 13th year," he said without crossing his fingers but with a perceptible twinkle in his eye.

"No, I'm not superstitious. I don't think that 13 carried any jinx. The whole thing is, I just don't believe in excuses."

Paul's optimism doesn't extend to the Pirates' pennant chances. He predicted New York and Chicago would show great improvement and fight for top place, with Pittsburgh and Cincinnati scraping for third and fourth positions.

Pittsburgh, he said, is no better than it was last season "and will be a third place team at best."

Waner has not yet received his 1939 contract, but as for the prospects of reaching an agreement with the club, he said:

BINGO! - - - - - ANOTHER GOLF BALL IN THE BAG FOR CHAMP RETRIEVER

There are famous retrievers in the dog world, but Personality Bingo, Boston Bull owned by Alex Dittler, is entitled to a place all his own because of a quaint contribution. Bingo retrieves golf balls—not necessarily those of his owner. See story below.

Boston Bull Is Great Retriever--of Golf Balls

Personality Bingo Won't Retrieve on Rainy Days—Unless Photographer Is Present.

By JACK TROY.

There is a wayward tee shot on a certain tee at Druid Hills. The ball zooms out of bounds and hits the road or bounces up into a yard.

Immediately there is a flash of brindle and white—a streak of gray in the morning or afternoon light.

Personality Bingo is on the job.

And another golf ball is in the bag.

It was about a year ago that Alex Dittler discovered a pile of golf balls behind the garage at his home on Clifton road—a home built by the late Al Doonan and originally intended for Bob Jones.

Alex thought at first, he said, that maybe the chauffeur was filching golf balls and questioned him. And that brought out that Personality Bingo, the bounding Boston Bull, had certain traits as a retriever.

WATCHES BINGO. Alex Dittler took to watching Bingo. He would notice the energetic little bull sit calmly on the hillside and eye a foursome approaching the tee.

Once a ball was knocked out of bounds, which is across the road, he would be off like a flash and presently return with another golf ball.

And he was pretty cute about it, too. Up to now golfers have never been able to figure out why they couldn't find the errant ball.

Alex Dittler does not use the balls himself since he gave up golf some time ago. They are retained as souvenirs of the hunt.

And as you may well imagine, there are quite a few souvenirs.

Personality Bingo's nature calls for warm summer days or he doesn't perform. He positively will not retrieve on rainy days unless there is a cameraman present.

SPECIAL OCCASIONS. It was enlightening to Alex Dittler to see Bingo retrieve in the rain the day we went out for the picture. He only does it, as said, on special occasions.

In this respect Bingo has more sense than a lot of humans. He knows enough to stay out of the rain.

There is an unusual feature, too, about the home of Alex Dittler on Clifton road. As said, it originally was built for Bob Jones and it is held together by wooden pegs—the shafts of golf clubs.

And it all fits in with the retrieving qualities of Personality Bingo, the ball-hawking Boston bull.

Not so very long ago, Bingo wandered away from home and reached Emory on the aimless journey. A friendly person noted the name and address on the collar and sent Bingo back home in a taxi.

Alex Dittler paid for the ride.

MRS. DAVE JONES LOSES SEMI-FINAL

Mako, Sabin Will Battle for Title in Florida State.

ORLANDO, Fla., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Gene Mako, of Los Angeles, seeded No. 1, and Wayne Sabin, of Portland, Ore., ranked third, will battle tomorrow for the Florida state singles tennis championships.

Mako, Davis cup star rated third among the nation's amateurs, eliminated Hal Surface, of Kansas City, in the semi-finals today, 6-4, 8-6, 6-2. Sabin walloped the defending titlist, Elwood Cooke, of Portland, 6-1, 6-3, 6-0.

Surface put up a hard fight in the first two sets but Mako found the back line frequently and his drop shots were perfect—falling barely over the net. Surface's control faltered at times and many of his returns went out.

Cooke failed to provide much opposition for Sabin and dropped several games by double faults. He committed a total of 11 in the three sets. Sabin lost the first game of the opening set but came back strong to take six in a row.

In the women's singles finals tomorrow, defending champion Marta Barnett, of Miami, will engage Pauline Betz, 19-year-old Los Angeles miss.

Miss Barnett defeated Mrs. Berta Norris, of Jacksonville, 6-0, 6-0, in the semi-finals today while Miss Betz turned in a 6-4, 6-2 triumph over Mrs. Dave Jones, of Atlanta.

Miss Barnett teamed with Catherine Sample, of Miami, to win the women's doubles championship. They beat Mrs. Jones and Gladys Vallebuona, of Atlanta, 3-6, 6-2, 6-1.

The men's doubles finals tomorrow will send Mako and Tidball, of Los Angeles, the top-seeded team, against Surface and Cooke.

SACRED HEART DEFEATS MACON

Sacred Heart's scappy basketball team outclassed the Mount DeSales five from Macon yesterday, 41 to 26, at the Y. W. C. A.

It was Sacred Heart's second victory of the season in two games played. In their initial contest they bested the North Fulton girls, 19 to 10, and Redron with 14 led the scoring for the winners. Isaf and McNellis tied for high point honors for Mount DeSales. They both racked up 11 points.

Crackers Buy Star Semi-Pro Chunker

Frank Ray Won 16 in Row Last Summer; 19 of 32 Atlanta Players Signed.

The Atlanta Crackers, reported as finished with buying player prospects, with the possible exception of another experienced pitcher, yesterday announced the purchase and signing of Frank Ray, 20-year-old right-hander who won 16 games in a row and 20 games all told as a semi-pro in New Orleans last season.

President Earl Mann said Ray is a great prospect. He stands 5 feet 11 inches and weighs 165 pounds. He won the 20 games pitching against all types of semi-pro competition, Mann reported.

The Crackers can't safely be said to be through signing likely talent at any time of the year. For when the scouts recommend a good prospect, President Mann is willing to listen to reason.

Besides, the Crackers are building up a pretty fair farm system. It's the club's big salvation, in view of the fact that Atlanta does not have any working agreements with major league teams.

Harry Johnston, the fine young right-hander who suffered a severe spike injury last summer, signed his contract yesterday. He was given the club doctor's okay Friday. Johnston now weighs 185 pounds and looks to be in great shape.

Johnston will be one of the Cracker starters next year and is counted upon as a big winner.

Dewey Williams, Atlanta's great second-string catcher, dropped into the baseball office late Saturday and signed his contract. Williams, like all the others, was well pleased.

That makes 19 down on the dotted line and only 13 more to go and the Crackers will be all set for 1939 to start.

BABY JACKETS DEFEAT AGGIES

Georgia Tech's freshman five, paced by Carleton Lewis, of Columbus, Ga., defeated the Monroe Aggies, 49-33, Saturday afternoon at the Flats.

The rangy Monroe five found the new Tech gym too large and due to a lack of practice could not cope with the accurate shooting Lewis, who shot 22 points, and Gardner, who added 9 to the Tech total.

Lamar Murphy paced the Aggie offense with 18 points, while the defensive work of Tommy Anderson, a brother of Tech's Junior Anderson, and Jimmy Hearn, a brother of Tiny Hearn, another former Tech athlete, played well on defense. George Webb, a former Monroe Aggie, played well on defense against his former mates for the Jacket frosh.

However, despite their outside interests, Elly and Johnny manage to put on quite a show on the tennis court. They will do so here on the night of February 3 at the auditorium, under the sponsorship of the Northside Tennis Club. Jitterbug and golfer notwithstanding, they play a pretty good game of tennis.

Annual Field Trials at Waynesboro Will Start Tomorrow

LEADING DOGS, HANDLERS OUT TO WIN PRIZES

Entry List Closes Tonight; Largest Field Is Expected.

By JACK TROY.

At break of day over dew-kissed Georgia fields, leading bird dogs will streak away in races Monday at Waynesboro in the annual trials of the Georgia Field Trial Club.

For three or possibly four days thereafter, owners, handlers and spectators will follow the dogs over the 16 courses in the various stakes which begin with the members' all-age and continue on through members' derby, open all-age and open derby.

The class of the dog world and leading professional handlers will perform in the latter two stakes. There is a prize of $1,000 for the open all-age, divided $500, $300 and $200. In the open derby the purse will be 75 per cent of entry fees, divided 50 per cent, 30 per cent and 20 per cent.

Member stakes embrace the most fun. The majority of the members will handle their own dogs and work just as hard as the pros, in quest of silver trophies.

BOTH WINNERS.

There were only two stakes last year and A. G. C. Sage of Alberta, Ala., had both winners. Chiquita won the all-age stake and Timberline the derby stake.

Mr. Sage will be back this year with a number of fine dogs, all pointers. He is one of the most enthusiastic members of the Georgia Field Trial Club.

While entries do not close until tonight, at the time of the drawing, present indications point to a very large field.

The Georgia club is of national importance and interest. It is one of the "big circuit" quail trials held in the south.

Among Atlanta pointer and setter fanciers who will attend are Ben T. Smith, with two pointers and a setter; Cecil Jamison, with a pointer; Dillard Lassiter, with a pointer; pointers from the kennel of Bob Woodruff, with Major Scott Trammell as handler in all-age and derby events, and Fred Jordan, with setter entries in both all-age and derby events.

STIFF COMPETITION.

A number of Georgia sportsmen will attend, Raymond Hoagland and Colonel W. H. McNaughton, of Cartersville, will be on hand. Hoagland dogs always offer serious competition.

Gerald Livingston, of Quitman; J. D. Crump, of Macon; Charlie Jordan, of Monticello; Richard Tift, of Siga Park; Joe Rosenberg and Hillsman Walters, all of Albany, will be on hand.

Other Atlantans interested in the trial purely as spectators are M. A. First, Oliver Healey and Bruce Hall. They plan to attend. Dr. George Myshall hopes to have an entry. But he is not sure. Friends are hopeful Dr. Myshall comes through with an entry. He is a colorful performer.

M. G. Dudley, famous sportsman from Greenville, S. C., who owned the great Equipse, a female setter, passed through Atlanta yesterday en route to Waynesboro.

Setter entries are headed by Hill-bright Peerless Dan, by Hill-bright Peerless Dan, by Hill-bright Peerless Dan.

Louis Bobbitt, of Winston-Salem, whose exceptional Peerless Blochem won the members' derby and was third in the quail futurity at Pinehurst last year.

FIELD CONTINUES. The older pointer-setter feud will continue unabated for three or four days. Good weather is in prospect and the fields are full of quail, according to reports.

Chisita, Luminary, Timbuctoo, Morpheus, Timson, Nepken, Carolina Jake, Tip's Topsy's Top, Hillbright Peerless Dan and many other great competitors will run in the competition.

The current trial of the Georgia Field Trial Club looms as one of the greatest.

Russell High Teams Defeat Fayetteville

Russell High basketball teams won a double-header from Fayetteville last night on the Russell courts. The boys' score was 33-20, and the girls, 29-17.

Dodd led the Russell boys with 15 points and Bowen turned in a fine floor game. White got 10 for Fayetteville. In the girls' game, Irvine, of Russell, led with 14. McElwaney, of Fayetteville, had 6 points.

FIELD TRIALS SET AT THOMASVILLE

Forty-Fourth Continental To Draw Nation's Best Dogs.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Jan. 14.—The forty-fourth running of the Continental field trials will begin January 23, Gerald M. Livingston, president of the Continental Field Trials Association, announced today.

The trials will be held at Livingston's 26,000-acre plantation in Brooks county. They will begin on Monday and will continue through Friday, January 27. The aristocrats of American dogdom will be entered in these trials and some of America's most famous sportsmen and handlers will be present for the event.

NATIONAL WINNER.

"Air Pilot's Sam," an Indiana pointer, who won the Continental last year at Grand Junction, Tenn., will head the list of thoroughbred bird dogs in this year's event, said Livingston, who expects about 35 entries in the open-age stakes and about 20 entries in the derby stakes.

"Air Pilot's Sam" is a liver and white pointer, owned by L. D. Johnson, of Albany, Ga. Bred and handled by Ed Farrior, the dog in 30 starts has won 23 first places. His victories include the free-for-all championship in 1936 and National championship in 1937. He is a direct descendant of "John Proctor," regarded as foundation stock of present-day leading pointers.

Livingston will enter several dogs, including "Ray's Jingo Joe," and Mrs. Livingston will enter her famous pointer, "Mail Rider." Other field trial enthusiasts who will enter dogs from their plantations in this section include Walter C. Teagle, Udo M. Fleischnman and Robert Woodruff.

BIG STAKES.

Prize stakes for the derby will be between $500 and $800; for the age stake, around $1,000.

Headquarters for the field trial men will be moved this year from Quitman to Thomasville, said the association president, with Three Tomes Inn designated as hotel headquarters for the owners and the Tosco hotel for the handlers.

Officers of the Continental Field Trials Association include Livingston, as president; Raymond Hoagland, of New York and Cartersville, Ga., vice president, and John W. Davis, of Downing, Pa., secretary and treasurer.

Motor Club Gets Speedway Details

Advance information on the annual 500-mile speedway classic to be held in Indianapolis, May 30, has been received by Belton E. Jennings, service manager of the Atlanta Motor Club.

Advance ticket sale will open Monday, January 16, but general admission tickets will not be on sale until May 28.

Georgia Tech Beats Vandy Five, 30 to 42

Junior Anderson and George Smith Instrumental in Handing Commodores First Defeat.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Fighting spirit and sheer determination not to be defeated gave Tech a 30-to-24 victory over Vanderbilt last night in both teams' opening Southeastern conference game of the season.

Junior Anderson and George Smith, only veterans on the Jacket squad, hawked the ball like cats in the last half and Smith shot his only two field goals in the final four minutes to hand Jim Buford's Commodores their first loss of the season.

Tech's teamwork was still ragged, but much better than in the Mercer game. Walter Haymans and Jim Williams substituted for Morris Bryan and Howard Burpo in the first half after Vanderbilt appeared headed for an easy victory and the new Jacket five clicked.

Tech's Jim Hughes broke the scoring ice by sinking a long field goal before Vandy could get her hands on the ball. Anderson added another and Tech got off to a 4-0 lead before the visitors could find the range.

15-9 MARGIN.

However, Vanderbilt came right back and built up a 15-9 margin with only five minutes left in the first half. It was at this point that Williams and Haymans replaced Bryan and Burpo and Tech immediately went to work, tying the score at 15-all with two free throws by Hughes a scant 20 seconds before the half ended.

The Jackets took up where they left off at the start of the second semester and Buford, evidently displeased at the way his regulars were performing, put in his second team, including Joe Davis, well-known junior tennis player.

Vandy managed to knot the count at 23-all but that was the closest they ever came to victory. After Smith's successful free throw, Anderson left his guard position, charged under the basket like a mad bull and batted one in to give the Techs a 26-23 lead.

FOUR MINUTES.

Four minutes were left and Smith took his turn leaving his guard position. He fired the final blasts from the Jacket guns, counting two field goals to cinch the contest.

A foul try by Rymer was all the visitors could do with the close-guarding Jacket defense. Coach Roy Mundorff started an unknown, Howard Burpo, at forward and moved Smith back to guard, his old position. The combination clicked fairly well but didn't get going until Williams and Haymans came in. From here, Williams looked best of the sophomore crop.

Anderson was again high-point man for the Techs, getting nine points while Jim Hughes trailed with seven, all in the first half.

HANNA STARS.

Ross Hanna, Commodore center, was the outstanding player for Vandy, making three difficult field goals and one foul for a total of 7 points. Tuney Ford, star football player, also looked good in the first half and many spectators

BULLDOGS RALLY TO BEAT 'GATORS IN SECOND, 25-18

Florida Loses Early Lead as Georgia Flashes Back; Series Even.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Bouncing back after a one-sided defeat last night, the University of Georgia basketball team turned in a 25-18 win over Florida here tonight to even their Southeastern conference series.

The 'Gators defeated Georgia last night 26-15 in the first conference game for both teams.

After taking an early lead from a hard-fighting Georgia quintet, Florida saw the Bulldogs flash back with four and a half minutes remaining in the first half to take a 15-11 lead at half time.

The 'Gators came within two points of the Bulldogs the last half in a desperate move to overtake the fast-stepping Bulldogs.

Georgia settled down to limit the Floridians to a single free throw for the final 10 minutes while the Bulldogs pushed their score up past the 20 mark.

"Vinny" Zdzankas, flashy little 'Gator forward, once again paced the Florida attack with seven points while Frank Yinshansin, Georgia's scoring was well divided between starters with Captain Cecil Kelly tops at six.

Florida goes out of town Monday and Tuesday to take on Southern College and Seldon University. Georgia's next match is with Chattanooga at Athens.

EAST LAKE BOGEY SPLIT SIX WAYS

Seventy-three proved most popular in Atlanta's golf shops yesterday afternoon for winners at both East Lake and Capital City had net 73.

Sharing the lead at East Lake was Alan Ward, W. O. Tumlin, Jules Soulie and Dr. E. L. Graydon, while L. O. West, L. E. Mock, O. J. Coe, George Suggs, A. M. Perkinson, Jackson Robertson, P. D. McCarley and J. T. Doonan were only one stroke away in second place.

Others in the prize list included Jack Papenheimer, P. G. Lombard, Judge Ralph McClelland, J. C. Shumate, B. E. Sale, J. E. McConnell, A. V. B. Gilbert, T. D. Alexander, R. A. Martin, D. C. Alexander, K. R. Oates and S. M. Haw.

Those in front at Capital City were Dan McDougald, Frank Sprattin, L. E. Allen, Dud Cook and Tate Earnest.

Second place at Capital City were D. C. Black, E. B. Adams and Frank Ridley Jr.

Sophs Beat Frosh At Junior College

The sophomores of Atlanta Junior College drew first blood in the opener of the intramural series with the frosh at Y. W. C. A., scoring a 14-11 upset victory. The teams will play a series of five games.

Turner, with 8 points, paced the sophs, while Ramseur sank 9 for the frosh.

These girls' teams will meet again Wednesday afternoon and on Friday afternoon the sophomores boys and freshmen will play. The University System's varsity boys' quintet will oppose Jackson Hill Baptist Monday and Columbia Seminary Thursday.

Modern Annie Oakley Visits Here

Lela Hall Rated Greatest Woman Shooter of All Time.

By THAD HOLT.

She's quite a gal—this Annie Oakley of 1939.

Lela Hall, the Missouri trap-shooter whose accomplishments have more nearly approached perfection than any woman in the history of the sport, is in our town. Mrs. Hall, winner of the Grand National for the past four years (no man or woman ever won it more than twice in a row) is visiting an old school chum, Mrs. William Farmer, at 2222 Peachtree road, and is en route to Florida for a bit of competitive firing January 18-February 17.

This blue-eyed lovely lady of Scotch-Irish-Dutch descent hardly looks big enough to tote that big 12-gauge shotgun. And yet she has gone further in her sport than any other woman has been able to go in any branch of athletics.

Naturally she was asked how and why she first took up shooting.

"There were three girls in my family and I decided to be the boy. My dad was a great huntsman and let me shoot for the first time when I was 15."

BWARE ALLIGATORS.

She weighs 127 and you would guess 118. She is, in addition to her trapshooting prowess, of which more about later, an expert hunter and always bags her share of quail, duck or whatever the game happens to be. She has been invited to hunt in Florida and wonders if it means alligators and snakes. "That would be okeh too," she grinned.

She is the wife of a roadside restaurant keeper. No, Mr. Hall doesn't mind her entering all the big shoots over the country.

Asked if she would shoot a burglar if one entered her home, she answered: "One night I told my husband a noise down the stairs. He said it was just the wind, but I thought otherwise. I loaded my shotgun and went down looking for trouble. I had shot the culprit in the leg, only my husband was right. It was the wind."

One of the home of Mrs. Farmer, the colored maid is so unimpressed by the presence of all those big guns in the corner she washed the dishes three times yesterday morning. "I hope the janitor sees 'em," said the charming host of the modern Annie Oakley.

TO THE RESCUE.

Lela is sure of eye and steady of nerve, but upon occasion she stammers a bit. Back in school when teacher asked a question, the trapshooting phenom seldom got out more than one word. Mrs. Farmer came to the rescue and finished the statement for her pal.

This is her first trip to Atlanta and the south and lovely Lela wishes she had come sooner. She first knew of Atlanta through the exploits of Mrs. Donald McCain, whom she describes as a "wonderful shoot."

When Mrs. Hall won the Grand National for the first time at Valada, Ohio, in 1935, Mrs. McCain and Bunny Sanders tied for second place, breaking 1890. Mrs. McCain, in the shoot-off, "That reminds me, I must see her before I leave Atlanta," exclaimed Lela Hall.

FAVORITE GUN.

She has a special gun she likes best of all. It is a pretty gun, anything but that, but she spurns the bright, shiny new ones for her favorite, which she is shooting in the above photo.

Lela has a style all her own. Success she admits comes with perfect co-ordination of mind, eye and muscles. But unlike other shooters she doesn't pull the trigger. In fact, she doesn't touch it until ready to fire; then she executes a snap of the finger.

"She's truly a 'money shooter,'" Lela has never lost a shoot-off in competition with men. She has won the men's title of her home state. She has won all of the eight state meets she has entered against women. No other woman has ever shot more than 19 yards back of the target. Lela Hall stands 23 yards back. She is that good.

In 1937 she shot at 1,600 registered target for an average of 97 out of every 100 (a world's record for women), and accomplished the unprecedented feat of breaking 284 straight at the Grand National.

In a special practice shoot Saturday afternoon at the Capitol Gun Club, Lela fired in her first skeet event and—well her score was not the worst of the lot. It was the first time she ever tried skeet and with a borrowed gun.

Firing in the skeet event were Dick Hull, Bill Ward, Clyde King Jr., Mrs. Ward, Lela Hall and E. L. Wright.

Lela fired in two events of straight traps, one with Clyde King Jr., Mrs. Donald McCain, E. D. Wallace and Clyde King Sr. and another with C. W. Tway, L. E. Grant, Bill McBride and Clyde King Jr.

It was quite a thrill to see Lela Hall and Mrs. McCain firing side by side. They fired together four years ago when Lela won the national title and Mrs. McCain was two birds back in a tie for second place, and lost in the extra shoot.

EUROPEAN CHAMP.

PARIS, Jan. 14.—(UP)—Edouard Tenet, French challenger, won the European middleweight boxing championship tonight with a 15-round victory over Champion Antoine Christoforidis, of Greece.

FOUR BOWLERS DEFEND TITLES

COLUMBUS, Ga., Jan. 14.—Four Atlanta bowlers will defend their titles in the third annual Georgia open doubles that will be rolled at Columbus on Saturday, January 28 with W. F. (Carnera) Lowry and Lowry Whisenand defending their titles in the men's division, and Martha Cleveland and Estelle Warrington endeavoring to equal or best their combined five-game total of 1,002 that won them the championship last year.

Bowlers from Columbus, LaGrange, Americus, Macon, Athens and Augusta will make formidable bids with the defending champions for first place honors as they roll in this pin meet that drew a record entry list last year.

The men bowl ten games, beginning at 4:30 p. m., with the women's five games being scheduled between the first and second block of the men's games, at 6:30 p. m.

Bowlers who are unable to roll Saturday, may compete in a special group that will be rolled Sunday afternoon, January 29, beginning at 1:30.

WARREN FIVE BEATS ROME BY 71-33 SCORE

ROME, Ga., Jan. 14.—The strong Warren five of Atlanta outclassed a scrappy Rome team here tonight to win by the one-sided score of 71 to 33.

Bradford, with 22, and Cope land, with 23, led the visitors' offensive. Rickman, of Rome, got 15 points to aid his teammates.

World Champion Celtics To Meet Warren Team Tuesday Night

LAUTERMEN FACE TENNESSEE CLUB THIS AFTERNOON

Celtics Expect Tough Game; Two Preliminary Tilts on Card.

By THAD HOLT.
The world champion Celtics—greatest basketball show on earth—make their appearance in Atlanta Tuesday night.

The masters of the hardwood will meet the strong Warren machine at Warren arena at 9 o'clock. A girls' game, between Miller Service and Cherokee Mills, will open the program at 6:30. Warren Reserves and Arno Mills, from Newnan, play at 7:30.

In the Celtic lineup will be such famous warriors as Dutch Dehnert, Davey Banks, Rusty Saunders, Nat Hickey, Bob McDermott and Pat Heilmy. Dehnert coaches the team and goes into the game to work the famous wheel play which he made famous.

This game definitely will not be an exhibition. Last year the pro champs left the court at halftime on the short end of the score and they had to battle for their lives to win by a three-point margin. Virlyn Moore was on fire that night, ripping the cords for 22 points. Dutch Dehnert tried to sign Virlyn after the game. He said it was the toughest game they had had in 13 years of southern invasions.

WARREN CAN WIN.
Shep Lauter believes his team, which has won 10 out of 13 games against strong foes, will have an outside chance to win if it is having a good night. By that Shep means his boys will have to be hitting 'em.

Virlyn Moore is in bed with a bad cold and a touch of the flu. If he can play Tuesday night at least a half, which he expects to be able to do, Warren's chances will be considerably brightened. Virlyn is the sparkplug of the team and when he is in there the entire squad plays superior basketball.

The foul rule will be waived. In other words, no players will be punished from the game for fouling, regardless of the number committed.

CAPACITY CROWD.
It is expected that a capacity crowd of 3,000 will watch the magicians of the court do their stuff against a team which will test them from whistle to whistle.

Warren has a real assignment on its hands this afternoon when the crack Copperhill (Tenn.) quintet invades Warren arena. Wayne Black, former Cracker, is a member of the Copperhill club, as are several former University of Tennessee stars.

Ruppert's Death May Break Up Yankee Empire

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(UP)—The baseball world wondered to-night whether the death of Colonel Jacob Ruppert would result in the breaking up of the Yankee empire, which he developed at a cost of $12,000,000.

There has been no official statement concerning disposal of Ruppert's baseball properties, valued at $10,000,000, but Ed Barrow, his business manager, indicated it was the colonel's wish that his heirs carry on with his nation-wide network of farms.

Important figures of the sports and business world were expected to attend funeral services Monday for the millionaire brewer, who died yesterday after a six-month illness. A solemn requiem mass will be held at 11 a. m. at St. Ignace Loyola church.

How Colonel Ruppert, a bachelor, had disposed of his estate—including millions of dollars of New York real estate in addition to his brewery interests—remained a matter of conjecture pending filing of his will.

Baseball men refused to believe that the Yanks and five affiliated minor league clubs would be sold. Even if the Ruppert family—his brother George and a married sister—were to sell, the Yankees and the children—wanted to sell, few buyers could be found for such an enormous enterprise.

George Ruppert, a partner in the brewery, is a baseball fan, and some sports authorities predicted that next week would find the Yankees in the hands of Barrow, an experienced baseball executive.

This year would have been Ruppert's 25th as owner of the Yankees. Since 1915 he had spent about $4,000,000 for players and paid out about $8,000,000 in salaries. His team had won ten pennants and seven world championships since 1921.

Maroons Beat Vols In Last Minute, 24-23

STATE COLLEGE, Miss., Jan. 14.—(F)—Ray McMahon's last-minute free throw gave Mississippi State College a 24-23 Southeastern conference basketball victory over Tennessee here tonight.

The visitors led, 18-11, at the half and increased the margin to 23-16 before successive field goals by Crawford Grisson, Walter Craig and Granville Harrison and a free throw by Harrison tied the score with six minutes to play.

Both teams shot recklessly but futilely to break the deadlock and McMahon, after missing three foul shots, sank the fourth for the winning score. Frank Thoms missed a free throw, which would have tied the score, with 12 seconds to play.

The world champion Celtics, who appear at Warren arena Tuesday night against the strong Warren team, still are featuring those grand old veterans—Dutch Dehnert, Rusty Saunders and Davey Banks, shown from left to right above. Dehnert also coaches the pro champions. The Celtics constitute the greatest basketball show on earth. Last year they were hard pressed to beat Warren three points after lagging at the half. Another real struggle is in prospect for Tuesday night. There will be two preliminaries.

DICK METZ HAS 5-UNDER-PAR 65 FOR 204 TOTAL

Harrison Is Next With 205, Followed by Fry With 206.

OAKLAND, Cal., Jan. 14.—(P)Two par-shattering scores changed the golfing picture here today as the field marched through the third round of the 72-hole, $5,000 Oakland open tournament.

Setting the pace at the three-quarters pole was handsome Dick Metz, of Chicago, with a 54-hole total of 204. His five under par 65 would have been the talk of the tournament had not E. J. "Dutch" Harrison, of Oak Park, Ill., barged in just ahead with a super-golfing effort of 64.

In the third place was Ben Hogan, of White Plains, N. Y., with 206. Mark Fry, of Oakland, followed with 207 and Marvin "Bud" Ward, Olympia (Wash.) amateur, was in fifth spot at 208. Hogan and Fry carded 68s and Ward a 70 today.

Horton Smith, of Oak Park, Ill., leader at the halfway mark yesterday with 136, slipped badly to take a 73 and fall back into a sixth place tie with Jimmy Demaret, Houston, Texas, at 209.

Practically out of the running for first prize at the end of 54 holes were such noted performers as Sam Snead, West Virginia, who was the leading money winner of 1938; Harold McSpaden, of Winchester, Mass.; Ed Dudley, Philadelphia; John Revolta, Evanston, Ill.; and Harry Cooper, Chicago, Mass. Snead and McSpaden were bracketed at 212; Dudley at 215; Revolta at 217, and Cooper at 218. Snead, with a 74 today, experienced the most trouble, with missed putts and misdirected fairway shots.

J. P. C. VETS RETURN TO SQUAD

Return of veterans Steve Browdy, left, and "Pony" Minsk, right, who were missing from the lineup at the start of the season, has strengthened immeasurably Coach Harold Bennett's Progressive quintet. Browdy, high-scoring center, played for the first time against Millsaps in the fourth game of the season, and has started the three tilts since then. Minsk, who played for the Macon "Y" against J. P. C. in the first game of the season, practiced with the Progressives for the first time last Monday night, and got into Tuesday night's game against Southern Bleachery as a substitute.

J. P. C. and Peerless Clash Here Tonight

Progressives Won in Extra Period Last Year; Play Charity Game in Albany Tuesday.

By MELVIN FAZOL.
Peerless Mills, the team that forced the J. P. C. into an extra period before dropping a one-point decision last season, will be foes of the Progressive quintet tonight at the J. P. C. court. The J. P. C. Cubs will clash with the Y. M. S. A. in a preliminary game, which is slated to start at 7:15.

The Progressives, who won two tough victories last week over Nehi and Southern Bleachery, will be seeking their seventh win of the season. They have lost only one game to date.

Peerless is ready for what they consider the stiffest test on their schedule. Starting off slowly last year, Peerless dropped several games before they came to J. P. C. But they pointed towards that game and almost pulled a major upset. They primed their defense to stop the Progressive attack and held tie at the end of the regular playing time. An extra period was required to determine the victor.

BEST IN 'NOOGA.
The Millers are tied for the leadership of the AA league in Chattanooga, the fastest in the city. They are undefeated in league play, and have lost only one game this season—to the Jacksonville, Ala., Teachers. They later evened the count with the Alabama quintet.

A veteran squad will start the game for Peerless. Fans will remember Clint Norman, Duke Hammond, Billy Cordell, Jack Bailey and Dick Osteen for their brilliant play here last year. The return of Browdy and Minsk has greatly increased the efficiency of the J. P. C. scoring machine. Both were missing when the team lost to Hogsansville, Coach Harold Bennett had to use a shifted lineup until the two returned. Minsk, veteran guard, has been working in Macon since last summer and just returned to the city last week. Browdy, ace center, missed the first three games on the schedule.

With Minsk back Coach Bennett faces the problem of dropping Hyman "Little Kitty" Katz, who is leading scorer to date, from the opening lineup. Hyman has been cracking down from all angles, having been the scoring spark in several of the games. Against Southern Bleachery, which was the first game in which Minsk appeared for the J. P. C. this season—he opened the season with Macon against them—Katz started and Minsk subbed, with Morris Katz going back to forward. This strategy worked admirably as the Progressives turned back the Red Flames by four points.

MINSK OR H. KATZ.
It is more than probable that this system will be employed Sunday. In case Minsk starts at guard then Captain Morris Katz and either Ginsberg or Hyman Katz will be the starting forwards. Browdy will be at center and Grisson at the other guard position. "Big Kitty" and Ginsberg were regular forwards last year, and "Little Kitty" was a reserve.

The J. P. C. reserves are limited. Kuniansky, Rubin and Paroz are three good subs who have showed up well, but the list stops there. There are several Cub players who can be inserted, but when the going gets tough Coach Bennett hesitates to take a chance with them.

Tuesday the Progressives journey to Albany to meet the Y. M. C. A. Blues in the first of two charity games on a home-and-home arrangement. The second tilt will be played here Wednesday, January 25 for the benefit of the Fight Infatigue Paralysis campaign.

WALLACE BUTTS TO START DRILLS ON JANUARY 23

Three Sophomores Figure Prominently in Bulldog '39 Lineup.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 14.—(P)Coach Wallace Butts, newly-crowned head football mentor at the University of Georgia, will begin spring training officially January 23, it was announced here today.

Coach Butts did not say how long the spring training session would last but it is generally accepted it will be for six weeks. Replacement of All-Southeastern Iron-Man Quinton Lumpkin at center; Marvin Gillespie and Carroll Thomas at ends, and Bill Badgett at tackle is the principal problem Coach Butts must solve and he will probably be able to ascertain just who will hold down these spots by the end of the spring drills.

THREE SOPHOS.
Candidates expected to figure prominently in Georgia's lineup next season include three sophomores, the brilliant Tommy Witt, center; Winfred Goodman, guard, and Tommy Green, giant tackle.

Replacement of All-Southeastern Iron-Man Quinton Lumpkin at center; Marvin Gillespie and Carroll Thomas at ends, and Bill Badgett at tackle is the principal problem Coach Butts must solve and he will probably be able to ascertain just who will hold down these spots by the end of the spring drills.

James Posey, a Red Devil last year who did not get into a single game; Alex McCaskill, the pass-catching Macon, Ga., end, who saw some service last year, and James Skipworth, a hard-hitting Columbus product, are others Coach Butts is counting on heavily for line duty.

Georgia loses not a single back from its last year's squad. Captain-elect Vassa Cate, pile-driving Jimmy Fordham, Bob Salisbury, Harry Stevens, Billy Mims and Earl Hise, one of the outstanding sophomore backs of last year, are the leading backfield candidates.

However, Bobby Nowell, a chunky Monroe, Ga., boy, who saw some service last year, is going to give Salisbury trouble and may wrest the starting post at blocking back.

Coming up from the freshman ranks are the following boys who will see service during the 1939 campaign.

TRUCK KIMSEY.
Cliff (Truck) Kimsey, a triple threat from Cornelia; Curtis (Spider) Nelson, former G. M. C. star who was out most of his freshman year with a broken foot; Ben Gentry, Nashville boy and a powerful fullback, and slinging Heyward Allen, hailed by many as a superior passer to Billy Mims; Green Keltner, Memphis, Tenn.; Will Burt, Macon, and Tommy Malone, Atlanta, all ends.

Many of Coach Butts' troubles will be solved if Big Joe Reid, former Marist College star, is eligible next year. Reid is in school but must pass every course he takes this and next quarter, in addition to attending summer school.

Veteran linemen returning are alternate Captain Smiley Johnson, guard; Knox Eldridge, end; Charley Williams and Albert Decharler, end; and Walter Wilford, tackle. Coach Butts has ordered all freshmen and a few of last year's reserves to report Monday afternoon for a week of preliminary training but plans no rough work for them until the others are ready.

Regular training begins around 7:30 p. m. and is expected to be out for the team.

Gridiron 'Queen' Announces He'll Wed Co-ed Editor

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 14.—(P)Husky Jack Brennan, gridiron star and famous humorist, announced his engagement to Dorothea Staebler, of Ann Arbor, women's editor of the Michigan Daily, student newspaper.

"That doesn't apply to Dorothea," he replied hastily when asked about his new famous remarks, "two years ago that 'four out of five women are beautiful and the fifth comes to Michigan.'"

Brennan apparently had recovered from his 15-minute reign as queen of the ice carnival last night. The reason the sinister six wasn't surprised when he was "elected" was because the unofficial campus organization admitted Brennan was chosen beforehand and the coeds who participated in the supposed contest never had a chance.

Vines Evens Series At 4 Wins Apiece
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 14.—(UP)Ellsworth Vines turned on his vaunted power here tonight to defeat red-headed Don Budge and knot the count in their professional tennis series at four triumphs apiece.

Budge used his backhand to advantage during the first set to win, 6 to 2.

The Vines eye and power came to his aid in the last two sets, however, and during the second set he literally blasted the red-headed star of the court.

In the final set Vines' control slackened, and he was at times in danger, but his power counterbalanced his lack of control and he won the deciding set, 6-4.

DOG NOTE PETER BOGGS

On one of the main streets of Pueblo, Colo., a small dog was violently thrown by an auto and lay helpless in the road as other cars were approaching. Suddenly a dog darted into the street from a near-by yard, took firm hold of the injured animal by the back of the neck, and dragged it off the street onto the sidewalk.

Many passersby gathered round, but it seemed as if no one knew what to do. When the dog realized that no aid was being rendered to the injured pup, he started to bark and run among the spectators. When this maneuvering failed to bring results, the rescuer darted away and disappeared around the corner. He returned in a few minutes followed by a policeman. They arrived at the same time as an ambulance from the local humane society, which had been summoned at last by a spectator.

Later investigation disclosed that the dog had trotted three blocks to where a policeman was on traffic duty, had run up to him and pulled at his coat with his teeth. Twice the policeman led the animal over to the sidewalk and told him to go home but each time the dog returned to the center of the street, darting in between traffic to tug at the policeman's coat. Realizing something was wrong, the officer finally left his post and followed the persistent dog. This is just another incident that proves to me that dogs do think.

Indigestion is an ailment commonly associated with human beings but dogs also are susceptible. When neglected, indigestion may cause other ailments, derangement of the bowels being the most usual concomitant. Often a dog will become excessively fat as a result and suffer from asthma and asthmatic coughing.

As in man, indigestion in the dog may be acute, chronic and passive. It is usually brought about by a diet of too rich foods, lack of exercise, irregular feeding, or over-feeding.

A dog suffering from indigestion will turn his nose up at wholesome food, or eat it mincingly, showing a preference for filth and garbage. He has considerable thirst, and at times has spells of nausea. Foul breath and inflamed gums are other symptoms that the animal is suffering from indigestion.

The best cure is to regulate his diet. This is more important than medicine. A small amount of bicarbonate of soda after meals is often helpful. But before you start dosing your pet, my advice is to see a veterinarian and allow him to prescribe.

The central fire station at Millburn, N. J., harbors a Dalmatian called "Smoke" who is considered a regular member of the department. His exploits are well known to many of the citizens of that New Jersey town.

Smoke doesn't only sit around the station waiting for alarms to come in, but in understanding about town he has discovered incipient blazes to which his excited barks have called attention. He has been seen as far as four miles from headquarters checking the situation but the sound of the fire siren brings him scurrying back. Smoke has a remarkable nose for a fire. He may arrive at the scene of a conflagration a half hour late, but he always gets there.

There are two telephones on the desk at headquarters. When one rings, Smoke sleeps peacefully on, but when the other rings he dashes to the desk and stands quivering, waiting to be told to jump into the chief's car. One phone is for ordinary calls, the other brings fire messages. How he can tell the difference is a mystery, as both bells sound identical. So Smoke differs from other "dog sparks" in that he has not only a nose but an ear for fires.

Question: I have heard people say, "How well my dog draws." What do they mean?—T. M.

Answer: Drawing is an art by which a dog approaches a game bird by the body scent.

Question: What is a good dry dressing for a surface wound?—H. F. N.

Purples Meet Typists, Smithies Play Wilson in Twin Bill Tuesday

PROCEEDS TO PAY HOSPITAL BILLS OF JAMES PARKS

Tech High Grid Star Who Died From Injuries To Be Honored.

By ROY WHITE.
Boys' High and Tech High's basketball teams will play a double-header at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon on the Henry Grady court for the benefit of the late Jimmy Parks Jr., a member of Tech High's football team who was fatally injured in scrimmage shortly before the end of the season.

Boys' High will play Commercial in the feature of the third round of the city prep schedule and Tech High plays Wilson High, of Tignall, Ga., in the other half of the twin bill.

All four teams in the double-header have agreed to donate their services. The officials as well will give their share to pay for the hospital bill.

In the other game of the third round, Marist plays G. M. A. at 3 o'clock on the College Park court.

In order that the student bodies of both Tech High and Boys' High may have a chance to participate in the benefit and see both games, classes will be dismissed a bit earlier than usual, for those who get tickets in advance.

Tech High and Commercial High are sharing the lead of the prep league with two victories each. They will determine the first half of the pennant winner Friday night in a double-header on the Henry Grady court.

Along with Tech High and Commercial in the lead, players from each team are well in front of the scoring.

Johnny Wyatt, flashy Commercial forward who led Tuesday's scoring with 20 points, was well covered in Friday night's game at G. M. A. and, relinquishing the league lead to Pounds, a Tech High forward who bagged 22 points Friday night in three periods of play against Marist College.

Pounds now leads the way with 34 points, followed by Stanford, of Marist, with 27. Wyatt, Commercial, is third with 21.

The Tech High-Commercial game will feature Friday night's twin bill, with G. M. A. and Boys' High settling a third-place dispute in the other game. The twin bill will be played on the Henry Grady court in the semi-final round of the first half of the title race.

RED FLAMES FAVORED.

With the Georgia state basketball championship tournament less than a month away, teams in Atlanta and other cities in the state are swarming up their programs in preparation for the big event.

The Georgia tournament will be the biggest major basketball tournament ever staged in this state. Teams will vie for the state honors from many nearby cities. The championship club will qualify to participate in the national independent tournament, scheduled here February 24-28. The state tournament dates are set for February 14-18.

State Commissioner John Phillips reports that interest in basketball this year is at a new peak and that tournament teams are available in almost every section of the state.

The powerful Southern Bleachers team of Taylor, S. C., that dropped a section to J. P. C. and then came back strong to shave Warren in an exciting battle will be the ruling favorite in the South Carolina state tournament. Coach Lyles' team will be greatly strengthened with the return of All-Southern Bert Hill, 6 feet 4 blond sharp-shooter, within the next few days. The Taylor quintet has an eye on the national championship.

SMYRNA WINS.
Led by the expert sharpshooting of Ethel Edridge, the Smyrna High girls won handsily from Marsh Business College quintet by a score of 28-19. Edridge led the winners with a total of 17 points. Starnes, of the losers, shot 9 markers. Smyrna girls have won every game of the season.

In the second game of the header, led by the flashy goal shooting of Harrow, the Austell High boys won an easy victory over the Smyrna five by a score of 38-15.

The lineups are as follows:

BOYS.
SMYRNA Pos. AUSTELL
H. Harper (1) F. (2) Harrow
Foster (3) F. (2) Johnson
Reed (4) C. (2) Williams
P. Harper (5) G. (2) Perry

Substitutions: Marsh, Galand, Camp, Eates, Referee, Bacon, umpire, Cagle.

JASPER TEAMS WIN.
Jasper, Ga., Jan. 13.—Petersen County High school boys and girls' basketball teams of Jasper won both games of a double-header from Lumpkin County High, of Dahlonega, here Friday night.

The score in the girls' game was 22-20, this being the Jasper girls' twelfth consecutive victory, with only one loss for the season, at the hands of Dahlonega earlier in the season. Elliot led Dahlonega with 23 points; Daly was best for Jasper with 16.

The score in the boys' game was 35-16. Wiley was high-point man for Jasper with 17 points; Ravan was best for Dahlonega with 6 points.

GOSUM, 19-1 SHOT, TAKES PASQUAL

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 14.—(P)—Shoving the big-name favorites far into the background, Nelson A. Howard's Gosum captured the $10,000 San Pasqual handicap at Santa Anita park today as Main Man, Esposa, Heffly and other short-priced top-notchers ran out of the money.

Jockey Archie Gray booted Gosum into a sensational burst of speed in the last sixteenth of the mile and one-eighth race and came on in to win by a length over A. A. Baroni's No Dice.

Further confounding the handicappers, Louis B. Mayer's Quick Devil ran third as the rest of the eligibles for the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap trailed in.

Esposia, the mare owned by William Zeigler, which had been installed a 5-2 favorite, finished tenth, while Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Heffly was tabbed in the seventh position.

Main Man, Quick Devil's stablemate, had a length lead going into the stretch, but faded and was ninth to the wire.

Major Austin C. Taylor's Indian Broom was fourth, while it took a photo finish to separate No Dice and Quick Devil.

The winner, never out of striking distance of the leaders, was timed at 1 minute, 50 seconds. The crowd of upwards of 40,000 wagered $139,749 on the race, and Gosum's win was worth $37, $13.80 and $8.20 across the board. No Dice paid $15.20 and $8.20 and Quick Devil $4.

UNIVERSITY, Ala., Jan. 14.—Charley Holm, Alabama fullback, has been named to the Southern California all-opponent team.

Holm was placed at his regular position by the Trojan players.

ATLANTA LEAGUE.
The Atlanta five is leading the Atlanta league with two wins and no defeats. They took a close game from the Piggy Wiggly last night, 18 to 13. They trailed at the half, 13 to 20, but rallied in the last half to emerge with the victory and a clean slate. Athens plays Commercial "B" Wednesday night. Six of the teams in this league have won one game and lost one, while Beck & Gregg is on bottom with no wins.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 14.—(P)—Baseball scribes in the South Atlantic league will gather February 5 to organize the South Atlantic Baseball Writers' Association.

President E. M. Wilder announced today.

The association, if formed, he said, will discuss uniform scoring rules and map plans for naming the mid-season all-star game teams and elect the official all-star team at the close of the playing season.

L. C. Warren (insert) said his ambition was to see Warren arena filled to capacity. He staged a free wrestling show Friday night and 4,000 cooperative fans overflowed the 3,700 seats and jammed every inch of room. A portion of the throng at the south's Palace of Sports is shown.

BRITISHERS SHED TEARS FOR FARR; BAER, NOVA SIGN

'Foreigner's Only Chance To Win Is by Kayo,' Write Scribes.

By SCOTTY RESTON.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—(P)—British sports writers went today for Tommy Farr and condemned the manifest skulduggery of the New York prize ring.

Of course, they didn't see Farr lose to Clarence (Red) Burman in New York last night, but they didn't let that interfere with their swivel-chair decision that Tommy was robbed.

For example, Ben Bennison writes in the London Evening Standard:

"After a close and analytical study of the details of the Burman-Farr fight, I am decided that the former British heavyweight champion did not deserve to be returned the loser."

Bennison goes on to explain to the British public that the only way for a foreigner to win in an American ring is to knock out his opponent. He also offered this explanation after Tommy's four other American defeats.

The writers now are urging Tommy to come home, where he can make more money and get fair treatment. They explain that under British boxing rules Tommy would have won the Burman bout when Jack Dempsey's protegee struck him a low blow in the third round.

The only drawback to all this is the fact that Farr must pay a $3,750 fine to the British Board of Boxing Control before he will be allowed in a British ring.

Len Harvey, who is 31, and Larry Gains, the 37-year-old Canadian, are expected to fight for Farr's British heavyweight title on March 16. London promoters hope to convince Tommy he should return to fight the winner.

Baer, Nova Signed
For May 25 Battle.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(P)—Max Baer, former heavyweight champion, and Lou Nova, promising California contender for the title, today were signed by Mike Jacobs, of the Twentieth Century Sporting Club, for a 15-round bout at the Yankee stadium, May 25.

The winner likely will get a shot at Joe Louis' heavyweight crown in September.

Duke Sub Guards
Defeat Navy, 44-37

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 14.—(P)—Two pint-sized substitute Duke guards teamed up for a second-half drive that gave the Blue Devils a 44-37 victory over Navy today.

Bergman and Swindell, just a pair of small boys when stacked up against Duke's elongated starters, turned on the heat after Navy led 13-14 at half-time. They used "Stork" Holley, Duke's 6-foot 6-inch center for a pivot and scored 21 points between them.

SCORES ALL POINTS.
DULUTH, Minn., Jan. 14.—(P)—When a basketball player rings up 18 points in a game, he usually rates some kind of notice. That's what Eugene Paulson, forward of the St. Peter and Paul quintet, did in a contest here today with the St. Margaret Mary cagers.

Paulson's 18 tallies figured largely in his team's victory, for the St. Peter and Paul team won, 18 to 13.

President E. M. Wilder announced today.

The association, if formed, he said, will discuss uniform scoring rules and map plans for naming the mid-season all-star game teams and elect the official all-star team at the close of the playing season.

L. C. Warren (insert) said his ambition was to see Warren arena filled to capacity. He staged a free wrestling show Friday night and 4,000 cooperative fans overflowed the 3,700 seats and jammed every inch of room. A portion of the throng at the south's Palace of Sports is shown.

THE DUFFER GETS SMART.

The duffer sat in his frozen den And dreamed of a blazing sun. Of palm and pine and a sun-baked spine, And maybe a hole in one.

"I wish I were there," the duffer thought. Then the duffer thought once more—"I'd pay the same old price for the same old slice And the same old hundred and four."

The Bomber and the Biscuit.

LOS ANGELES.—It isn't often that you find two champions as much alike as Joe Louis and Seapiscuit. They have two passions in common, which happen to be eating and sleeping. And they know how to relax.

They can sleep anywhere, at any time, under any conditions. But it is quite different in the ring or running around a race track. Both have to watch over weight. This is why Mike Jacobs, also Jack Blackburn, want to keep the Bomber as busy as possible. It is one of the reasons also that Charley Howard lets the Biscuit go to the post so often. They will probably finish as two fat fellows, stifling a yawn.

"I think he's a little sore now because we haven't raced him recently," Howard told me. "We'll have him ready for the next $100,000 shot—his third attempt—and it will take a lot of running to beat him. I mean on a fast track."

The soothsayers are already busy around Santa Anita trying to find some one who might nip the Biscuit in another photo finish. Photo finishes are his specialty, his trade mark. Some look to Al Vanderbilt's Heffly; Bing Sheld and Sears-Roebuck share the lead with two wins each and no defeats.

This week's schedule has Sears-Roebuck leading the fourth Chamberlains, Marietta Athletic Club. Schedule Thursday, January 19: 7:00 P. M.—9 Old Men vs. Haas & Dodd. 7:25 P. M.—Four Square vs. Robert. 8:40 P. M.—Sears-Roebuck vs. Parks-Chambers.

The Florida Classic.
Leading handicappers on the west coast don't believe War Admiral can spot Stagehand eight pounds in the $50,000 Widener Cup at Hialeah and get away with the undertaking.

"If Stagehand is right and ready," one of the inside experts said, "I believe that carrying 123 pounds he can beat the Admiral by two or three lengths." In any event it will be a race to look at.

Looking further ahead they are already lining up the next Kentucky Derby. January is a long way from May in sport, but most eyes are focussed on El Chino and Porter's Mite. Bill Boeing's fast little flyer has already made a deep impression along the Pacific.

They recall his photo finish a year ago as an 89 to 1 shot and he showed them a double armful in his last $10,000 cleanup a short while back.

Porter's Mite can run, and he has proved again that he could carry weight over a sticky track.

SCORES ALL POINTS.
DULUTH, Minn., Jan. 14.—(P)—When a basketball player rings up 18 points in a game, he usually rates some kind of notice. That's what Eugene Paulson, forward of the St. Peter and Paul quintet, did in a contest here today with the St. Margaret Mary cagers.

Paulson's 18 tallies figured largely in his team's victory, for the St. Peter and Paul team won, 18 to 13.

ATLANTA LEAGUE.
The Atlanta five is leading the Atlanta league with two wins and no defeats. They took a close game from the Piggy Wiggly last night, 18 to 13. They trailed at the half, 13 to 20, but rallied in the last half to emerge with the victory and a clean slate. Athens plays Commercial "B" Wednesday night. Six of the teams in this league have won one game and lost one, while Beck & Gregg is on bottom with no wins.

This week's schedule, to be played Wednesday night on the "Y" court, should be good all the way with the Athens and Commercial "B" teams holding the spot.

Schedule Wednesday, January 18.
7:00 P. M.—Commercial vs. Athens.

WPA LEAGUES.

WPA FUND SLASH TO CUT THOUSANDS FROM STATE LISTS

If Senate Upholds House Reduction, Georgia's Rolls May Be Pared to Support Only 39,800.

By The Associated Press.
If the United States senate sustains the house in paring $150,000,000 from the appropriation asked by President Roosevelt to carry on WPA activities from February 7 to June 30, several thousand Georgians are likely to be dropped from WPA rolls.

No exact figures were available yesterday, but the United States Conference of Mayors estimated last week that the nation's total WPA payroll would be $875,000,000, as the house did Friday night, would force Georgia to cut its WPA load to 39,800.

This figure was computed on the basis of 63,500 persons employed in Georgia by the WPA on December 31. The decrease represented Georgia's share of 1,151,300 persons that the mayors estimated would have to be lopped off WPA rolls to conform to the reduced appropriation.

Rolls Take Drop.
The total for Georgia might be even lower since WPA employment in the state had dropped to 61,000 by January 4, the last date for which figures are available, and the trend has been downward since November, when last week's peak load of 73,000 was reached.

The number of WPA employees in Georgia varies considerably with the seasons, since the state is primarily agricultural. With the start of the planting season around the first of March, the relief rolls usually decline, especially in south Georgia. So it is expected that the number of WPA employees in Georgia may decrease as much as 7,000 or 8,000 regardless of funds available.

Of the 73,000 peak load in November, it was estimated by WPA officials some 20,000 were farmers receiving payments under the WPA program to supplement the cash income of farmers. The reduction was attributed by some observers largely to curtailment of this program now that the planting season is approaching.

Tarver Provision.
The average number of Georgians on WPA rolls last year was 50,000, and the monthly cost of the program was approximately $1,500,000.

In addition to a smaller appropriation for the WPA than President Roosevelt requested, another factor that may force curtailment of the Georgia relief load is a provision in the house bill that pay for the same kind of work must not vary more than 25 per cent between states.

This was inserted at the request of Representative Taver of Georgia, who asserted that variations of as much as 500 per cent existed in some cases. He called the differentials a "grave injustice." His motion was supported strongly by southern representatives.

It was pointed out, however, that if the senate agreed to this provision WPA employees in the south might have to be paid more in many instances so that, unless more money were provided, the number employed would be less. On the other hand, payment in the south might remain the same and the differential reduced by cutting payments in other areas.

At least one Georgia representative thought a more drastic cut in the relief fund might be advisable. Representative Cox asked his colleagues to consider an appropriation of only $500,000,000.

In Biggs, Cal., Judge Kirk just couldn't resist the Christmas spirit. When K. Robert Wilson was fined $5 for speeding the judge remitted it on condition that he buy his wife a present with it.

Films May Take Jobs of Typists In Clerk's Office

Photographers may largely replace typists in the clerk's office at the Fulton county courthouse.

This developed yesterday when Walter C. Hendrix, county attorney, was instructed to prepare a "permissive bill" for submission to the Georgia legislature providing that the county may replace voluminous records with compact photographic records in all cases except deeds.

Although no definite steps were taken to institute the system it was regarded as a long-range move to reduce filing space and at the same time save labor costs.

One observer remarked it would be a boon to photographers, but a hardship on typists.
If the innovation is made operative, photographic negatives will be filed by number, and when it becomes necessary to refer to one of them, they will be taken from the cabinets, placed in an enlarging machine which will project an enlarged copy of the document on a ground glass. Copies could be made from the glass, or if the record were demanded by the court, the portable arrangement could be projected in a courtroom.

BUSINESS EXPERT WILL SPEAK HERE

W. F. Titus Will Talk Before Atlanta Cost Accountants.

W. F. Titus, vice president in charge of manufacturing of the International Business Machine Corporation, Endicott, N. Y., will speak on "Methods of Reducing Expenses in Business" before the Atlanta chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday night at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Since he became associated with the International Business Machine Corporation more than 25 years ago as mechanical serviceman, Titus has held the position of sales branch manager, district manager, general service manager and assistant to the president. He has dealt directly with cost reduction and efficiency methods in the various departments of the firm.

An authority on industrial education and industrial accident prevention, Titus has established several new records for efficient supervision of factories.

MISSION TO OPEN DOWNTOWN OFFICE

Directors' Meeting Set for Tomorrow Night.

Atlanta's Mission will officially open downtown headquarters at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night when its directors hold their annual meeting in its new office at 502 Chamber of Commerce building.

The mission is broadening the scope of its activities, according to Ret. Felton Williams, executive director, and many important decisions are expected at the meeting. Dr. Louis D. Newton has been chairman of the board for several years.

More than 100 adults are attending classes in good citizenship and home economics at the Mission's new community house at 265 Alexander street. Rev. Williams says. Slightly more than 400 underprivileged children are being transported to Sunday school each week, and within the past week instruction in both instrumental and vocal music has been begun as the result of the donation to the Mission of a piano by a local music house.

RALPH JONES SPEAKS TOAD CLUB WEDNESDAY

Guest speaker at the Atlanta Advertising Club luncheon Wednesday will be Ralph T. Jones, associate editor of The Atlanta Constitution, who will address the club on "Public Opinion," discussing how it is measured and influenced. The luncheon will be in Rich's tea room at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday.

Conducting the meeting will be the retail division of the program committee composed of Gus Jones, chairman; Chess Lagomarsino and Marvin Cannon, with Le-gare Davis, vice president, in charge of programs, as ex-officio member. President Fred Storey Jr. will preside.

SOLONS TO DINE WITH REALTORS

Fulton and DeKalb Delegations Invited to Luncheon Next Wednesday.

Fulton and DeKalb county legislators will be guests of the Atlanta Real Estate Board at its first luncheon meeting of the year, Wednesday, January 18, at 12:30 o'clock at the Athletic Club.

Senator G. Everett Millican, member of the senate from Fulton county, will be the guest speaker. Others invited to attend are Fulton County Representatives Helen Douglas Mankin, Paul S. Etheridge Jr., Cicero Kendrick, DeKalb County Senator Paul L. Lindsay, DeKalb County Representatives Murphy Candler Jr., Augustine Sams and A. Mel Turner.

The luncheon program committee which served so efficiently last year has been reappointed by President Hogan, and consists of Jesse Draper, chairman; Henry Robinson, secretary; Paul S. Etheridge Jr., and A. Mel Turner. This committee, at a recent meeting, made plans for some very unusual and interesting programs for the coming semi-monthly luncheon meetings, which are held on the first and third Wednesdays of each month. An idea has been worked out whereby one member of the board will be given a "free lunch" at each meeting, and at the end of the year, valuable prizes will be distributed to those who have been attending the luncheons. These plans will be explained in detail at the meeting Wednesday.

$95,435 IS SHOWN IN REALTY DEALS

Title Company Reports on Transactions Handled During the Week.

Total disclosed realty transactions by the Atlanta Title & Trust Company for the week were $18,675, while undisclosed transactions amounted to $76,760, making a total for the week of $95,435.

The disclosed summary follows: Mrs. Mae Anthony to Miss Mary M. Venable, No. 225 Fair street, S. C. $600; Union Trading Corporation to J. D. Malone Jr., No. 514 Winton terrace, N. Edwards, Nos. 1026-1028 Sells avenue, S. W.; B. T. Holder to Charles E. Thompson, 3511 Habersham road; Charles E. Thompson to B. T. Holder, acreage on New Marlborough highway; B. T. Holder to Charles E. Thompson, acreage on Roswell road; Charles E. Thompson to Hyman S. Jacobson, 35-37 Holcomb alley.

REACH 1929 LEVEL IN HOME BUILDING

Federal Home Loan Bank Board Official Predicts Great Gains This Year.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—"A nation which is eager to purchase well-built small homes will spur the construction industry to a point where it will influence greatly economic development in the next year, if the needs and demands of these low and moderate income are properly met," John H. Fahey, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, declared today.

"Present indications point to a very substantial increase in the volume of residential construction in 1939. This means that, for the first time in 10 years, residential building will approach the 1929 level."

The note of optimism in Mr. Fahey's message for the New Year is based on the improvement in general business conditions.

"National income is rising," he declared. "The average family now can afford better housing accommodations. Prospective home purchasers now have available the most advantageous home financing facilities there is, and the assurance of more ample funds, lower financing costs and more liberal loan terms than at any other time in our nation's history. More than ever before there are adequate safeguards of sound design and construction and of neighborhood planning and control."

"For the first time builders are beginning to tap energetically the vast potential market represented by families with annual incomes of $2,500 or less. Better homes than we have known heretofore are now being built at a cost of $3,000 to $5,000 and to the extent that the construction industry is successful in providing this type of home, to that extent we may expect a decided upswing in residential construction."

RAILROAD HEARING DATE IS POSTPONED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The house commerce committee will begin hearings on rail aid legislation January 24.

Chairman Lea, Democrat, California, said today that the date had been changed from January 17 because of delay in filling vacancies on the committee.

Lea introduced legislation yesterday to give an enlarged Interstate Commerce Commission jurisdiction over all forms of transportation.

'Life House' Remains Open for Public Inspection

Take a peep at the rear view of the model little "Life House," erected at Oak Knoll, sponsored by Davison-Paxon Company, Palmer & Sawtell, The Constitution, and others. It shows the pretty terrace and a part of the back yard, all enclosed in a white picket fence. It will open as usual today at 1 o'clock, and the public is invited to stroll through it, note the appropriately beautiful but inexpensive furnishings placed in it by the decorative department of the Davison-Paxon Company that makes it an ideal "dream home."

It has been open all week to the public, and thousands have enjoyed a visit to it, and have been delightedly surprised at its convenient arrangements and its correct furnishings for a home of its type and in its cost price. The plans were originally drawn by a nationally known architect for Life magazine, and were designed to suit the desires and purse of a family whose earning capacity ranged from $2,000 to $3,000 annually. To carry out the same theme from the standpoint of furnishings, these have been supplied completely for every room by Davison-Paxon Company. It is most interesting to stroll through it, and the public is cordially invited to visit it today.

Pig'n Whistle's New Home on Ponce de Leon Ave.

Here is shown the architect's drawing of the new and attractive home to be erected for Pig'n Whistle, corner Ponce de Leon and Argonne avenues. Construction work has already begun on it, and while it will take several weeks to complete it, service at the well-known place will not be interfered with during the progress of the work. It is of typical Old English design, both outside and inside. The kitchen will be finished with tile throughout, while the main dining room will be in white knotty pine, with an English grill downstairs for banquets and special parties. The building will cost approximately $25,000. Robert Logan, of Edwards & Sayward, is the architect, while C. R. Just is the contractor.

$55,250 IN SALES FIRST TEN DAYS

January Transfers Starts Off Well for Lipscomb-Ellis Company, Realtors.

Lipscomb-Ellis Company, realtors, announce the following transfers of properties through its office for the first 10 days of January.

Mrs. Elizabeth Ethridge Richardson traded her Jackson county farm of 183 acres, valued at $5,250, for No. 835 Bradley avenue, N. W., valued at $2,500, for an investment, to James N. Smith. This transfer was negotiated by J. W. Harris.

A residence at 547 Boulevard, S. E., purchased by the former tenant, B. H. McGee, for a home, from the owner, A. P. Akin; sales price, $2,000. Sale handled by C. R. Thrasher.

Purchased by F. A. Pittman, two small apartments at 742 Piedmont avenue, N. E., and 160 Fourth street, N. E., from the First National Bank; brokerage paid on $17,500. Negotiated by S. M. Weyman and Garlington-Hardwick Company.

Sale of three-story building at 130 Mitchell street, S. W., from Myra N. Graves to an unknown client; brokerage paid on $20,000. Handled by S. M. Weyman.

$15,000 LEASE MADE BY GRANT COMPANY

Venetian Blind Concern for Jones Avenue.

B. M. Grant Company announce the negotiation of a lease for the building at 364 Jones avenue, to be used as a southern factory for Thompson Shade Products Company, local Venetian blind manufacturers, who have merged with Western Venetian Blind Company, of New York.

The building has approximately 23,000 square feet, and for five years will bring rental of between $12,000 and $15,000.

The southern branch will be under the supervision of Wilmer B. Thompson, and John W. Thompson will be in charge of production. Local labor will be used entirely, and approximately 50 people will be normally employed with an estimated annual payroll of $50,000.

The Georgia company is owned by local capital, and will start operations when alterations are completed, about January 16.

WHITEHALL STREET GETS NEW BUILDING

$50,000 Structure To Go Up Near Alabama Street.

Work of razing the building at 62 Whitehall street, adjoining the Connally building, has begun by Lerner Shops, Inc., and after the wreckage a new two-story building is to be erected for the women's ready-to-wear concern, which it will be able to occupy about March 1.

The contract for wrecking the building has been let to Hudgins Contracting Company. The building itself will be erected through day labor for the new owners. It is understood the building will cost in the neighborhood of $50,000 when completed, and will occupy about 40 feet on Whitehall, known as Nos. 62 and 64.

MODERATE COST HOMES IN FAVOR

64 Per Cent of FHA Insurance Mortgages on Homes $6,000 or Less.

A highly encouraging sign for the building industry everywhere in this country in 1939 has been the steadily increasing volume of home building among the people of moderate means, according to Lockwood Rianhard, 128 Eighth street, this city, local representative of the Ruberoid Company, manufacturers of building products, who has just returned from attending the annual divisional meeting of the company at Mobile, Alabama.

"According to a recent analysis," Mr. Rianhard said, "approximately 64 per cent of mortgages accepted for insurance by the Federal Housing Administration were on properties having a valuation of $6,000 or less. This can only mean a growing general return of confidence in the economic future; and when it is considered that the home shortage in this country has been variously estimated at from 500,000 to 2,000,000, the immediate potentialities for increased residential building and for increased employment in the building trades are apparent."

"One of the most effective stimulants of residential construction, frequently overlooked, was the restoration by congress last February of the provision of the national housing act, making it possible for people of moderate means to provide at once for much-needed home repairs and modernization on an easy monthly payment plan. Because repairs and modernization work calls for a comparatively small investment, and involves little time for planning and virtually no delays in obtaining materials, the effects of this provision were felt almost immediately, providing a substantial initial impetus to the construction and building products industries as a whole. Recent reports show that property improvement loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration have amounted, since February, to more than $150,000,000. Taking into consideration the tremendous accumulation of house deterioration that has been piling up all over the country since the beginning of the depression years, the possibilities for increased activity in this direction are readily seen."

"The most significant data ahead for home owners and prospective home owners is July 1 of this year, writes Herbert U. Nelson, executive vice president National Association of Real Estate Boards. The family expecting to buy a house for a home and unable or disinclined to buy a new house in particular should keep this date in mind, for unless congress acts to extend the date, they will be unable after July 1 to obtain FHA financing for their purchase if construction on the date was begun before January 1, 1937."

Home owners who for any reason must sell their dwelling place will be interested quite as actively as home buyers in this date which means the end of FHA financing for practically all existing properties. For unquestionably, if new houses only are to be eligible for mortgage insurance, existing houses built before 1937 must, after July, enter the market at a marked disadvantage.

To say this, as simply as possible, should be enough to indicate the importance of action. Already the imminence of the date in mortgage insurance as a comprehensive home financing system goes out of existence has caused a very definite split in the outlook for sale of old and new dwellings.

Adams-Cates Company, realtors, through Henry Robinson, sales manager, announced yesterday sales for the week totaling $11,750. This included a residential lot on Habersham road sold by Mrs. Una S. Rivers to Thomas Howell Scott, through W. Hoke Blair; also three HOLC homes—one at 39 Twelfth street sold through the co-operation of Draper-Owens Company, one at 563 Ashby street through the co-operation of Bell & Arnold, and No. 1 Ridgewood avenue, N. E., sold through the co-operation of B. M. Grant Company.

Announcement was also made that W. B. Deatie, president of the Suburban Realty Company, had appointed Adams-Cates Company as exclusive sales agents for the new lots fronting on Pelham road, which has just been opened and paved from Piedmont west to Montgomery Ferry road. Pelham road fronting on Montgomery Ferry road. All improvements are down, a building line has been established, homes to cost $5,000 or more will be erected and the lots have a frontage of from 60 to 125 feet, and are being offered at popular prices.

YACHT CLUB TO GIVE FREE SAILING LESSONS

Landlubbers who want to become sailors can attain their desire by attending a free course in small boat handling and navigation taught by Cleveland members of the United States power squadron at a Lorain yacht club.

Dr. V. E. Barnes, the Vermilion, Ohio, power squadron's commander, who is in charge of the nautical course, said that the classes for sailors probably will extend over a 10-week period. The course will cover: Equipment, vessel lights, rules of the road, seamanship, compass, aids to navigation, charts, piloting, and customs regulation and maritime law.

BIG APARTMENT TO BECOME HOTEL

Bonaventure Arms To Be Changed Into Hostelry of 150 Rooms.

Bonaventure Arms, seven-story apartment of 90 units, at 789 Ponce de Leon avenue, is to be converted into an apartment hotel of about 150 rooms. An estimated $150,000 will be spent in making the change, and it is expected to have the hotel completed and ready for operation about June 1. It will be operated under direction of John H. Candler, with a manager in charge.

The property is owned by Briarcliff, Inc. Most of the 90 units now in the building are of three rooms. When changed into a hotel most of the one-room units will have a private bath. The main entrance now is below the level of the street, with stairs running down. This floor will be brought on a level with the street, and the dining room, which is now below the street level, will be moved to another location. Many other improvements will be made in the modernization plan, final details of which will be completed by Ralph W. Didschneit, local builder. Tenants of the apartment have already been notified to vacate by February 1st, when work will be started.

It is also learned that enlargement of the Colonial Terrace hotel, at 140 Peachtree road, is soon to begin. Fifteen additional rooms and 14 baths are to be added to the top of the building. It is understood work on this will begin at once.

July 1 Important Date To Keep in Mind

A most significant data ahead for home owners and prospective home owners is July 1 of this year, writes Herbert U. Nelson, executive vice president National Association of Real Estate Boards. The family expecting to buy a house for a home and unable or disinclined to buy a new house in particular should keep this date in mind, for unless congress acts to extend the date, they will be unable after July 1 to obtain FHA financing for their purchase if construction on the date was begun before January 1, 1937."

Home owners who for any reason must sell their dwelling place will be interested quite as actively as home buyers in this date which means the end of FHA financing for practically all existing properties. For unquestionably, if new houses only are to be eligible for mortgage insurance, existing houses built before 1937 must, after July, enter the market at a marked disadvantage.

To say this, as simply as possible, should be enough to indicate the importance of action. Already the imminence of the date in mortgage insurance as a comprehensive home financing system goes out of existence has caused a very definite split in the outlook for sale of old and new dwellings.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The stock market finished the week with a rallying swing today that lifted leaders ranging to around two points and a few several notches more.

Virtually all departments participated in the come-back which,

although relatively quiet, was highly encouraging to investors.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks had its best day since

December 29, pushing up 9 of a point to 51.3. On the week, though, the composite suffered a net decline of 1.1 points, the largest weekly recession since mid-November.

The ticker tape moved at a slow pace during the greater part of the brief proceedings, but picked up a little momentum near the close.

Transfers totaled 469,620 shares against 632,910 last Saturday.

Brokers attributed the reversal in direction partly to technical factors connected with the lengthy retreat and the belief of some speculative forces that the market had been "oversold."

Wall Street spirits, in addition, seemed to have revived with the successful opposition in the house of representatives to the President's WPA spending program. On top of this, lessening of war talk following the Anglo-Italian conference brought in some buyers who had feared Europe was on the brink of another explosion.

Electric Bond & Share was a strong performer in the curb, getting up 1 1/4 to 52.0. Others in the advancing column were American Gas, Cities Service, Lockheed,

Grumman and Gulf Oil. Sales of 9-Year High.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Industrial activity continued to hold close to its recovery high of early

December, although some of the major industries reported diverse trends.

The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index stood at 92 per cent of the 1929-30 average, compared with 92.5 the week before and 74.4 last year. The recovery peak—94—was established six weeks ago.

The slump in freight loadings was the result almost entirely of a drop in coal movement. The Eighteenth Century Music Is Selected For Hodgson Recital

Of interest to Atlanta music lovers is the announcement that Hugh Hodgson will appear in a recital of 18th century music on the evening of January 31 at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Mr. Hodgson will be assisted by several artist students of the University of Georgia in a program of variety and charm in a typically 18th century setting.

The concert is given under the auspices of St. Cecilia Circle of St. Luke's Episcopal church, the proceeds to go for the circle's charitable activities.

Reservations may be made through Mrs. Hal M. Davison, Hemlock 8717, or Mrs. Ryburn Clay, Cherokee 2412.

Miss Arnett Weds George Taliaferro.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 14.—Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Arnett announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Grizelda Arnett, to George Taliaferro, of Savannah and Portsmouth, Va., the marriage having taken place January 6 at the Baptist church, Walterboro, S. C.

Mrs. Taliaferro, a native of Richmond, W. Va., received her education in the Augusta schools and was for some time associated with the WRDW radio station, as announcer. For the past two years she has been society editor of the Tri-Publishing Company.

Mr. Taliaferro is the son of Rev. and Mrs. William Ashley Taliaferro, of Savannah. He is a graduate of the University of Georgia, and is associated with the Atlantic Cresson Company, in Portsmouth, Va., where the couple will reside.

Rose Garden Club.

Rose Garden Club met recently with Mrs. Henry Smith on Woodward way with Mrs. Bartow Morgan Jr. as co-hostess.

Mrs. T. H. Scott, president of the club, presided and read a bulletin from the Georgia Rose Society giving names of new roses grown successfully in this section, and suggesting ways of planting and spraying them.

Mrs. E. A. Cronheim read a paper on the care of the garden at this season, and displayed a complete line of garden tools.

The club voted to send $10 to Miss Nina Scudder, chairman of the memorial to the first Garden Club in America, the proposed memorial to be in Athens.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. Grady Lee announce the birth of a daughter on January 10 at Emory University hospital, whom they have named Dorothy Ann, after her paternal and maternal grandmothers. Mrs. Lee is the former Miss Dorothy Coleman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Coleman.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Wilkerson Jr. announce the birth of a daughter, Beverly Josephine, on December 30 at the Piedmont hospital. Mrs. Wilkerson is the former Miss Josephine Winfree.

Miss Mittle Florence Thomas is ill at Emory University hospital where she underwent an operation last week. Her mother, Mrs. G. W. Thomas, has returned to her home in Columbus.

ATLANTA, GA., JANUARY 15, 1939.

NEW OPPORTUNITY

Few, if any, cities in the United States have been more air-minded than Atlanta. As one of the major aerial cross-roads of the world, this city has developed a variety of activities centering around Candler field that now furnish the nucleus for still greater service.

The latest of these is the class of the Atlanta Opportunity School, conducted at the airport for the teaching of aviation principles pertaining mainly to ground operations. This new venture by the Opportunity School offers many a rich road to advancement, since it is inevitable that from Atlanta will extend wider horizons of aviation.

Georgia Tech has been designated for training of pilots selected from among its students. By this work and similar courses in other schools, the United States hopes to build up a pilot personnel quickly available for military training in time of need.

Development of a new type wing has progressed at the airport until quantity production of light planes utilizing it is almost assured. A craft that is light, low-priced and safe will transform civilian flying. It is significant that the leadership for this particular type has been furnished by Atlantians.

The only fly in the ointment rests in the oft-repeated warning that a larger field, or an additional airport, is necessary if the city is to keep step in the rapidly-extending field of air use. If more land is not acquired, Atlanta must be prepared to see rich new industries and services go to other southern cities which have had the foresight to prepare for this new era of aviation.

GERMANY'S MATERIAL GAINS

The year of 1938 will go into the histories of the future as the year of German domination, German success and German gains. In view of this it may be well, while the memory of 1938 is still green, to evaluate, in hard materialism, exactly what Germany did gain, and what she still lacks.

By the absorption of Austria and parts of Czechoslovakia, Germany increased her population by about one-seventh; gained five million acres of tillable soil, ten million acres of forest reserves, some small mineral deposits and a lot of potential, but undeveloped, water power.

It must be remembered, however, that Germany was overpopulated before the annexations, having approximately nine times as many inhabitants to the square mile as the United States, and that this problem has not been relieved by the additions in territory or people.

Germany still lacks many of the most important raw materials, either for domestic development or for war purposes. She is deficient in all important minerals except coal and potash. She has little iron ore, petroleum, copper or mercury; she has practically no bauxite, cotton, wool, silk or rubber.

Among her greatest needs, which were not helped by the annexations, are edible fats, iron ore, copper, oil, cotton, rubber, etc. Her scientists are striving desperately to push a program of ersatz, to provide synthetic imitations for many essentials. They are, today, making artificial petroleum and rubber, from coal or other materials plentiful within their own borders, but unbiased reports indicate that these substitutes lack much of the quality of the original products and are yet far from satisfactory.

It would seem that Germany needs trade contacts and agreements with many other countries—and a long period of peaceful commerce—before she can put herself in position to properly support the Hitleresque pose of defiance to all the world.

The upswept hair-do appears to have passed, without getting anywhere. It gave the wearer that look of surprise which no blouse modern ever confesses.

Researches at the University of Cincinnati prove that women have more nightmares than men. And what is more, put them on their heads.

H. G. Wells can imagine no more tiresome noise than that of the nightingale. Still, there is the coloratura who believes she is a nightingale.

THOMAS PAINE

Political oracles have been given, of late, to calling upon the shades of Jackson and Jefferson, some to the extent of giving the impression that these United States stemmed full grown from the works of these staunch Americans. While it is useless to debate the depth of their contribution, it is well at times to recall that this nation was fused in the pen of Thomas Paine and the sword of George Washington; that in these were found the direction the country has taken through the years. Jackson and Jefferson are but panels in the mural of the years.

The goal of the yet-unborn republic was outlined in the words of Paine—a goal which the nation has not yet attained. It was said of the author of Common Sense that Washington's sword would have been wielded in vain had it not been supported by the pen of the broad-browed, sharp-tongued liberal.

It was Paine who built upon Plato's Utopian Republic the framework which made it practical; he saw beyond the 13 colonies and their 13 provincial concepts to the union necessary for the building of a mighty republic; he had the courage to pour forth his fire in the face of ridicule and persecution; his pamphlet was regarded in that time as radical and unorthodox, yet so powerful were its words it drew Washington himself from his efforts to find a basis for conciliation with the mother country to this new dream of republic. The circulation of this little booklet touched 150,000 copies—equal today to a sale of 6,000,000 copies. Its effect was electric. Just as it changed the outlook of Washington, it fired the resistance of the colonies from lethargy to truculence.

When the fire he had set flickered under the first impact of British martial might, there came from his pen the first Crisis—"These are the times that try men's souls . . ." and, read by Washington's order at the head of every regiment, those opening words became the watchword of the little army at the Battle of Trenton. The British general, Howe, sulking in his nest after that engagement, issued a pretentious proclamation, promptly answered by Paine, who prophetically said: "The United States of America will sound as pompously in the world or history as the Kingdom of Great Britain." Recalling the history of the past year, and the shadow of history cast over this year, need more be said?

Jackson and Jefferson may be called the titans of the Democratic party. But that is but an institution of an American republic which would not have existed had it not been for this alien, an immigrant from England in the early 1770's, who fired the words heard 'round the world.

VANDALS AT WORK

A decade or more ago a group of public spirited women residing, for the most part, within a neighborly radius of Westminster and Lafayette drives, wearied of observing, day after day, what they might aptly have termed an unsightly hole in the ground. Plans were drawn, landscape artists put to work and when the job of grading, pruning, planting and digging was completed, a thing of beauty emerged. It was named, euphoniously, the "Iris Garden."

During the course of a year thousands of people not only give passing glance, but stop to enjoy and admire, at closer range, the shrubbery, the flowers, the trees, the tiny waterfalls, the lily ponds—all blended into one esthetic whole.

Queerly enough, however, there are some people, an unidentified and equally undistinguished few, who do not approve of the Iris Garden, nor, perhaps, anything else of genuine beauty. This has been demonstrated, time and again, to the disheartenment of those who, year after year, voluntarily have assumed the responsibility of maintaining the garden.

Flowers have been ruthlessly trampled upon. Limbs have been broken from the shrubbery. Old papers, tin cans, boards, paper boxes, all sorts of rubbish deliberately have been thrown into the flowering ponds, seemingly for no other purpose than to indicate a morose disdain for all things beautiful.

During the holidays a Christmas tree, decorated and lighted by the Iris Garden Club for the edification and pleasure of all who passed that way, was given similar vandalous treatment. Some of the lights were smashed, others torn from the tree and dashed into the nearest pond.

This type of vandal—whether man, woman, adolescent or child—is badly in need of education or more wholesome parental influence. If neither are effective then the law necessarily must be invoked. Such depredations must be brought to an end, not only in the Iris Garden, but in other parks where similar acts of vandalism are reported to have taken place at regular intervals.

Again from Hollywood comes the old, old story of the great screen lover who never talked shop around the house.

Correcting a report that Tony Lazzeri was leaving the Cubs to go back to baseball, it turns out to be Brooklyn.

Proof: That of which, in the event that it is unfavorable to the politician who is talking, there is no scintilla.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

WHAT PRICE COUNTIES? Georgia has 159 counties. Georgia needs less than a tenth that many. Many are parasite counties, existing chiefly on what they obtain from the state. A part of the gasoline tax is sent to the counties.

These parasite counties give no real government service. They have a few hundred voters. The county officials keep alive a false pride, an unworthy sectional prejudice, and continue themselves in office for no good reason.

There is a tremendous inertia in Georgia as well as in other states. The people know civil service would give more efficient and less costly government. They know, in Georgia, that 159 counties is a ridiculous number.

There has never been and is not now, a concerted public demand for civil service or consolidation of Georgia's counties. The first patriotic politician who advocated reducing the number of counties would commit political suicide. Those who seek to arraign city against the rural areas, deliberately have sought to make the poverty-stricken counties retain their separate parasitical existence. It would be interesting to know what the people who live in a county which has less than 500 votes and which supports a county government, think of it. And why they do not desire to remedy their problems? Apparently they do not. It is just possible that now, when there is such an aroused interest in taxes and in government, there may be an opportunity to start a movement and give it the necessary momentum to go ahead with the job.

The fact that Fulton county has an opportunity to consolidate county and city governments into one government, probably will be fumbled because of selfishness. Certainly there will be desperate efforts to beloud the issue. Unless the people become aroused and demand it there will be no consolidation.

RESTRICTIONS ON SPENDING. Counties really cannot have efficient government even though the county officials be willing and themselves efficient. The direct jurisdiction and powers of county boards of commissioners are restricted to roads, public property, care of the poor and the setting of the tax levy. There are many levies. The commissioners control three items, roads and the chain gangs, buildings and bridges, and the poor.

There has been little or no change in county government in more than a decade and yet the scope of county government has increased many times.

Georgia's set-up is a relic of reconstruction days. There are 10, of the many counties, with a total annual income from property tax of less than $10,000. There are 12 counties with an annual income of less than $20,000. There are 47 counties receiving less than $25,000.

Since the passage of the reasonable household exemption bill, this income is even more precarious.

Obviously there is no opportunity for them to render service to their citizens. Just as obviously there is no reason for their continuance as counties.

There yet is no public demand for this consolidation. Even the people in the parasite counties do not seem aroused; make no complaints, and do not lead the demand for a change.

"Home rule" a reasonable solution of many ills, does not receive the serious consideration it merits.

The fault lies with the people. Not with the politicians. They follow every whim of the people.

SALES TAX REVENGE. Yesterday, I talked with a gentleman who occupies a high position in political influence. He is not now in public office. He discussed the possibilities of a sales tax, saying, if other taxes were removed and if the sales tax did not have exemptions to weaken it, it would be the fairest tax which could be imposed.

"It would especially reach those many counties which live off the people in other sections," he said. "There are approximately 135 counties in Georgia which could not get along if it were not for the gasoline taxes collected from people in other counties. Of this number, about 40 are nothing more than parasite counties. The people in these 40 counties contribute nothing to the state. They receive. They do not give."

He said sales tax is the only tax which would reach them and make them contribute their share to the cost of government in the state. Opinion seems to be about evenly divided in the state as to the merits of the sales tax. Meanwhile the legislature must meet Tuesday to begin efforts at economy, eliminating waste and at the same time finding the money to spend on health, education and social legislation.

The legislature is going to find the money. They know the people want to pay for education, health and social legislation. The problem is how to find it. It is a difficult problem. Because the problems for which the money is to be spent themselves are difficult.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

*Better times are coming,
They shout too much, I fear,
Let's say, emphatically,
Better times are here!*

As You Think—

There is a large, and growing, school of thought among us, nowadays, which decries thinking about trouble. They argue that if you hold the thought of trouble in your mind, that in itself tends to create the reality you fear.

For instance, the other day heard an acquaintance talking about a very minor operation he is planning to undergo shortly. Shouldn't keep him in the hospital for more than a couple of days, at the most. But he said, facetiously, he hoped he'd be compelled to stay there for at least ten days, because look at the vacation from work that would be.

Another present spoke up seriously, and told him he shouldn't permit such thoughts in his mind, even jokingly, because the mere thinking of them tended to make them come true—and really he didn't want the operation to develop serious after effects.

I simply he a case of looking through the wrong end of the mental telescope. When some one says they had a premonition of a certain event, before it happened, isn't it possible that it was the thought and the fear and the mental suggestion of the event which caused it to happen? That, in fact, it wouldn't have happened at all if no attention had been paid to the fleeting thought called premonition, if it had been promptly forgotten and wiped from memory?

Thinking Defeatism. Certainly, it is true that the man who is filled with constant fear that he is going to fail at some undertaking, will fail. Confidence is a prerequisite for success.

And it may be that he who is always dreading an accident which shall break his leg, is going to meet just such an accident for the simple reason that he is predisposed to circumstances making such an accident probable.

All this stuff about premonitions is simply a case of looking through the wrong end of the mental telescope. When some one says they had a premonition of a certain event, before it happened, isn't it possible that it was the thought and the fear and the mental suggestion of the event which caused it to happen? That, in fact, it wouldn't have happened at all if no attention had been paid to the fleeting thought called premonition, if it had been promptly forgotten and wiped from memory?

Neither Coue Nor Pollyanna. Of course, there is no need to get too Pollyannish about this subject, nor yet to go to the extremes of old Dr. Coue, who preached that we could solve all mortal problems simply by saying over and over again to ourselves, "I am getting better and better, every day." Or something like that.

But it must be conceded that right thinking is at the root of all right action.

There is no action which was not first visioned in thought. Thus the quality of our actions is determined, directly, by the quality of our thoughts.

The inventor must see his completed invention in thought before he begins creation of the working model. The general sees the battle in imagination as he maps his strategy.

Even the lover envisions a life of perfect bliss before he asks his inamorata to be his, and the murderer must picture a dead victim before he pulls the trigger of his gun.

Fear Makes Hitler Powerful. It is not Adolf Hitler who threatens the world. It is the fear of Hitler and what he may do that creates the evil power that today hangs like a sword of impending doom over the freedom of humanity.

If fear of the dictator theory and of Hitler's fantastic complexes could be wiped from the thoughts of the imagination of all the world, there would be no more threat.

So let us all try to so control our thoughts, our fears, our emotions, that the danger now before decent humanity shall fade away like the mist it actually is.

But we can't control the thinking of an entire world, overnight. No more than we can change the thoughts of a vicious criminal into the idealism of a saint, just by wishing it. Therefore, we must be ready for any emergency, in world affairs, just as we try to be ready for fresh outbreaks of disease.

Because we know, theoretically, that right thinking would bring the millennium, doesn't cause us to abolish our police forces, our jails and prisons and criminal courts.

Nor should that ethical knowledge, even though correct, blind us to a very real danger the whole world now faces. We need arms to protect against well-armed world criminals, just as we need the policeman to protect us against the thug with a gun.

Let us, therefore, think right. Thus we shall bring about, eventually, a whole world that acts right. In the meantime, however, don't let us become helpless victims of the unreformed.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today. From the news columns of Thursday, January 15, 1914:

"The Sigma Phi college fraternity will hold its annual convention for 1914 in Atlanta, November 23, 24 and 25, according to the announcement of Fred Houser, secretary of the Atlanta Convention Bureau, Wednesday."

And Fifty Years Ago. From the news columns of Tuesday, January 15, 1889:

"Vicksburg, Miss., January 14.—Jefferson Davis arrived here last evening. Tonight a large number of citizens, mostly young men, headed by the Volunteer Southern cornet band, marched to the Porterfield mansion, where Mr. Davis appeared on the balcony and returned thanks for the courtesy extended him."

Text and Pretext

By M. ASHBY JONES.

RELIGION AND DEMOCRACY. It is so usual for public speakers to allude to religion in pious but meaningless phrases, that the most profound sentences of President Roosevelt's message to congress have been almost ignored.

Indeed, if we will read carefully, these sentences form the thesis of that address, and upon its truth rests the importance of all else which follows.

"Storms from abroad directly challenge three institutions indispensable to Americans, now as always. The first is religion. It is the source of the other two—democracy and international good faith." Before we consider the policies and suggestions which follow in this and other messages, we would do well to pause and question the truth of this startling statement from the President, and the greatest democracy on earth. Is religion the source of democracy? Just a few paragraphs further on, the President calls attention to a most significant and undeniable fact in support of his statement. "Where freedom of religion has been attacked, the attack has come from sources opposed to democracy. Where democracy has been overthrown, the spirit of free worship has disappeared."

Definitions. Democracy, in its last analysis, rests upon a belief that man is so constituted that he is capable of self-government, and that he has been created with the right to govern himself. It is a faith—a faith in the essential possibilities of human life. It may well be termed a definition of a person. If Lincoln's definition of democracy be true, "a government of the people, by the people, and for the people," then human life must be the kind of stuff out of which an enduring government can be built. Here the emphasis of value is placed upon a man rather than upon a government, and the individual is raised to the highest degree of dignity, as he becomes the source of authority.

Where shall we find the justification for such a faith in mankind? When we have found the source of this faith, we shall have found "the source of democracy." The source of such a faith can only be found in religion. It is the belief that God created man "in His own image." It is a faith that within every man is the ability to make a choice between two alternatives, and with it the inviolable right to a fair chance to make such a choice. It is the faith that somewhere within the mystery of his personality, there is the sense of "I ought," summoned into the consciousness of responsibility by the alternatives of choice. It is a faith that the character of the person can only grow and develop into a responsible being with the exercise of freedom of choice. So democracy not only finds its source in religion, but religion can only find its freest and fullest expression in democracy.

As I have often insisted in this column, the most important question one can ask himself is, "Who am I?" Because one can only play the role which he believes he has been assigned in the drama of life. If the answer be that he is only an animal, even though he be a higher animal, then he will follow the summons of his five senses, and live in obedience to the impulses and appetites of his animal nature. But if the answer be that he is a child of God, created "in His image," then "noblesse oblige," he must strive to live worthy of his sonship. Of equal importance is the question, "Who are you, the other man?" Because the answer to that question will be determined one's whole attitude to others. The President, in justifying his thesis truly and well, said: "Religion, by teaching man his relation to God, gives the individual a sense of his own dignity, and teaches him to respect himself by respecting his neighbors."

Dynamic of Religion. Only from this standpoint can we clearly understand the fierce attack of totalitarianism against religion. Wherever the state—whether its form be Communism, Nazism or Fascism—seeks to master, suppress, and mold the individual will of its citizens into subservience to the will of the state, religion is its most deadly enemy. Freedom to worship a God who is father of all men, inevitably carries with it a consciousness of kinship between all His children, without discrimination in creeds and races, rendering racial and religious terrorism against minority groups an impossibility.

Walter Lippmann, commenting on this part of the President's address, says: "It has been demonstrated, first in central Europe, and then in the western democracies of Europe, that to dissociate free institutions from religion and patriotism, is to render them unworkable, and, in the last analysis, defenseless." We dare not say that it can not happen here. Just so long as it is possible for religious differences to be stirred into religious hatreds, and for conscienceless men to coin racial prejudices to gain, faith in God the Father and the brotherhood of His children will fade into impotence, and democracy will be left defenseless against its foes.

They who would save democracy must first save religion, guarding its citadel of safety from every attack, from any quarter, against its freedom of expression. Let it be sounded aloud, that any group, no matter how pious or patriotic its pretensions, which seeks to discriminate against other groups of our citizens because of their religious faith, is a traitor to democracy. The call of the hour is for a united front of all those who believe that God is the Father of all men, and that His children are brothers.

Wars on Cats. The League of Youth of Australia seeks to have the number of cats reduced. In one instance, cats imported to kill rabbits, destroyed all the birds on an island.

THE COSTER-MUSICA CASE

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY.

In the good old days in China, when Chinese New Year came along, every man paid his debts. Every effort was made to meet that problem. Family and friends helped; things were sold or pawned if necessary. But the debts were paid. Nothing was held over for the next year.

Would that we had some such system—some way of putting behind us the ugliness and nightmares of yesterday! Would that none of the madness of 1938 followed us into 1939! Yet, as I sit here and write this piece, I think of this morning's newspapers and it seems as though the parties and excitement and horns and kisses of New Year's Eve were part of an interlude on the stage and we, its mummies, for the news is the same. The nightmares are with us. The names and faces are the same. If only we knew how to get rid of some of them!

Take, for instance, the Musica-Coster business. That bothers me no end. Philip Musica is dead and so they can pile all the blame onto him. But somehow, I have it in my bones that he alone is not to blame. And I have it in my mind that although there are all sorts of investigations and hearings and trials, we shall not get to the bottom of this matter at all.

AREN'T DIRECTORS RESPONSIBLE? And what is at the bottom? It is not, in my opinion, that Philip Musica was a clever swindler. That hardly interests me. There have been clever swindlers before. It is rather that he succeeded over a long period of years in distorting the books and accounts and audits of his company. And that his associates, fellow-directors, bankers, auditors did not discern what he was doing. Were they dopes? Were they babies? Were they his partners in crime? How do I know? How do any of us know?

I am a defender of the capitalist system but I cannot defend the remark of one of the McKesson & Robbins' directors that he was a director and not a paid employee and, therefore, he was not responsible. Well, if a director is not responsible, who is? How can our economic system stand up if directors are not responsible for more than a decade of systematic swindling? If they are not responsible, is something not very twisted in our laws?

And then I read what seemed to me so silly, the remarks of one director that he gave no credence to Waddill Catchings' suspicions because he thought that Catchings wanted to push himself into Musica-Coster's job. Now, that is part of the ad homine logic which is so current. Suppose that assumption is correct, is there still any reason for not watching diligently over the accounts of a company?

WITHOUT SPOT-CHECK. And then there is this Price Waterhouse business. We know that in Canada, which is not at the other end of the world—two heavy-laden warehouses turn out to be nothing more than mailing addresses. Yet, an inventory amounting to millions of dollars is accepted by the auditors, year after year, without a spot-check. Why were these warehouses not audited? Why were the goods in them not insured? Was there a sinking fund to protect them? Why did not the auditors conduct a spot-check? They would have discovered that the warehouses did not exist.

Suppose, the investigations, hearings and trials find that Price Waterhouse is absolutely blameless—may they be. Then where are we? How can we accept any audited account by any firm of accountants? How do we know that anything is true? We are absolutely up an alley then, with nowhere to go.

Surely, this is a problem which the leading organizations of business men should take up immediately. I make the point here, that ultimately American business must voluntarily police itself, it is superior to anything the government can impose. Business can exercise the most potent of all pressures on crooked or crook-ridden companies, by providing no credit and no custom to those who are even borderline cases. And that ought to be done, because decent firms will suffer by the McKesson & Robbins mess, if the public comes to believe that all business is done that way.

THEN THERE IS C. R. And finally, I wonder what the S. E. C. has to say for itself. The tale that they discovered Philip Musica's swindles is nonsense. An associate of his, who apparently suspected what was wrong for a long time, at a certain moment decides to disclose his suspicions. Is the S. E. C. not in some way responsible for the accuracy of an audited statement? I am not a lawyer, but it seems to me that it was to protect the stockholders and bondholders that the S. E. C. came into existence. Well, what exactly has it done in this direction? Are the stockholders and bondholders of McKesson & Robbins any better off than they would have been had there been no S. E. C.?

There is one nightmare that I should like to see washed away—not whitewashed. I should like to make sure that whatever weakness in the business structure this case discloses, is corrected. Business should do the correcting in its own interests. It should make sure that no one is protected, nothing is guarded, no errors are overlooked. Whoever and whatever it is to blame should be punished.

The problems raised in this article become increasingly important as more and more business leadership faces frankly and fearlessly the necessity of voluntary codes of fair practices. American business has never in its long and constructive history, resorted to dishonest and low methods, but in every period there have been Philip Musicas whose conduct has been accepted by the public as typical of all business.

"THE ANNUAL REPORT" TO MEAN SOMETHING. As a matter of actual fact, he appears in the news simultaneously with the publication of such a book as "Making the Annual Report Speak for Industry," which is perhaps the first attempt to show how American business is using the annual report to give the public, the stockholders, the workers and the customer a full and accurate picture of the state of the enterprise.

Robert L. Lund, of the Lambert Pharmaceutical Company, says of this: "Each individual company has an affirmative and constructive story to tell of its social and economic contributions. Too often this story goes unreported or is interred in a maze of statistical statements. Few laymen indeed have the knowledge, ability or desire to dig out the constructive facts about a company which are buried behind income accounts and balance sheets."

Merrilee Ruker, a business student of American business problems, discussing the same subject, says:

"A new language has been developing in the United States in the form of financial statements, which simplify and reclassify accounts in order more truthfully and more dramatically to reveal the 'take,' out of corporate receipts, which goes to taxes, salaries, as well as that of thirty persons who provide savings out of which the tools are acquired."

AUDITORS MUST BE TRUSTWORTHY. But all this work falls if audited statements are not to be trusted. They must be so truthful and complete that no scoundrel can get away with murder and no black-magic can buy a few shares of stock and organize a minority stockholders' group to take advantage of errors of fact in annual statements. This is being done all the time by combinations of sleek lawyers, tricky accountants and avaricious clients. The company that leaves loopholes in its audited reports for this gentry deserves to suffer; the auditors who do it should not go unpunished.

"I am told that an auditor is not an appraiser; that he possesses neither the responsibility nor the skill to determine the value of goods in inventory; that that is an appraiser's job. But this, in no way, can explain away the fact that in the McKesson & Robbins case the goods did not exist at all. It is a far cry between being in a position to determine what Nux Vomica is worth today and permitting anyone to say that the Nux Vomica was in a specific warehouse at a specific time—when at that time neither the warehouse nor the Nux Vomica was in physical existence."

The business world owes it to itself and the public to see to it that this case is fought to a bitter finish. I do not mean the McKesson & Robbins case. I mean a broader, more important case, namely, that no falsification, no misstatements of fact, no unchecked inventories work their way into annual reports. The signature of an auditor to a business report must be made a guarantee of truth. Less than that makes the annual report meaningless.

Dream of One Crippled

I dreamed I walked again
And oh, I danced on lacy clouds
A wild, mad, dreamy dance
So untamed was the feet of motion
I danced in the air
And I ran in frenzied madness
In joy—in terror
I saw a fearful thing catch up with me
And pull me down
Down from reality
But pity me not on waking.
For dreams are with me always,
And my mind is a great grace
Than mere limbs ever could.
Pity me not. My dreams are beautiful.
—JANELL JONES.

Autobiography.

Perhaps this is a strange story
Coming from just a tree:
Now that I am old and hoary
And not what I used to be.
In the southland I reign as king,
Tall and majestic I stand;
While my subjects sing and sing
And trill joy—a happy band.

The Law And the People

By PEYRE GAILLARD.

As I hustled down the hall, on the way to the office of one of the square table debaters, I detected the smell of fresh paint and the faint pat-pat-pat of brushes against the wall. And sure enough, when I walked in, there was my old friend, the head painter and his assistant—beautifying the room as they had so ably done last week in my office.

Nobody was in except them. So I sat down, ostensibly to wait, but in reality to listen and probably fall heir to a bit of doubtful wisdom, such as had come to me previously from the same source. As a shaman, I opened the final edition of the morning paper, which, of course, I had already read—not wishing to create the impression I was eavesdropping. But that was exactly what I intended doing.

Something, however, seemed different about the head painter. Perhaps I had misjudged him. He appeared to be particularly quiet. That is, compared to the last time I saw him. His brush was caressing the wall as if carefully nurturing some idea which I began to feel was taking form in his mind. So I kept my ears cocked and my eyes open. But there was no doubt as to the assistant painter being in the normal state. I could see by the bulge in his cheek that he had already cut himself a chunk and soon would be looking around for a target to shoot at, viz., the cuspidor.

"It Ain't Right."

"Listen squint!" the head man observed at last. "I got thinkin' last night. It ain't right passin' laws agin' so many things which they been doin' up in Washin'ton."

This obvious change in his political and economic philosophy surprised me. It was only last week that he wanted a law passed—and how!—against women working. But in principle, it seemed, he was not unlike other men. I realized that. He wanted to outlaw only those things which affected him adversely. His sister, he felt, couldn't get a job because some other woman—a married woman who didn't need work—was filling the position. Probably if Pearl had had the job herself, everything would have been okay. No law would have been wanted.

"Take this law agin' sellin' munitions to farn countries," he went on, spanking his brush sharply against the inside of his paint can by way of emphasis. "It don't ston no wars!"

The assistant painter, with all the accuracy of a well-trained sharpshooter, cut back from the front, hit the bull's-eye—ker-plunk!—and grunted.

"Them farners 'll fight without our munitions," the head painter concluded. "Just like reglar people."

Ring of Finality.

There was a ring of finality in his voice which indicated nothing more was left to be said on the subject. And the two brushes pattered busily up and down the wall as if to make up for lost time. I had about decided it was time to leave—that the discussion was over.

"Look!" the head painter suddenly resumed. "Supposin' I haul off an' smack you in the eye with this here brush."

Startled, I got half way up, expecting a fight as he waved a belligerent brush in the neighborhood of the assistant painter's nose. The latter gulped and almost swallowed his quid.

"Are you gonner fold up, are you gonner out, are you gonner let me sit away with it—'cause you ain't got no machine gun!"

The assistant painter managed to take a quick, nervous shot in the direction of the cuspidor, but missed.

"No!" the head painter emphatically answered his own question. "You'd smack me back an' I'd smack you agin'!" the head painter went on, emphasizing each word with a wave of his brush. "We'd use brick-bats. An' if there wasn't any brick-bats handy we'd use fists. Look at Caesar! Wud he fight with?"

The assistant painter relieved his feelings with a perfect bullseye and grunted something that sounded like "who?" I wasn't quite sure. But I was sure of one thing: I'd learned more from the head painter than I'd found the square table debater at his desk.

NEW FIRE STATION BUILT FOR COUNTY

WPA Completes Structure on Bankhead Highway.

Completion of a new fire station at Bankhead highway and Hollywood road, constructed by the Works Progress Administration in co-operation with the city and county, was announced yesterday by Lee Barrett, Atlanta WPA engineer.

The new station, erected at a cost of approximately $17,000, is a one-story residential type structure. Accommodating two pieces of fire-fighting equipment, it has sleeping quarters for the crew, a dining room, kitchen and office. After final inspection of the building, keys were turned over to county officials. This is the second new fire station constructed by the WPA in the metropolitan area. The other is in the Lakewood Heights section.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

The thought that we must begin to spend hundreds of millions for armaments is not in the least attractive to the American mind. It is not only that we object to spending either our own money or that of our children for so unproductive a purpose. It is that our people are past the point where they believe war to be glorious, heroic or anything else except barbaric and stupid.

Our generation has gone through one war, and since the side that we were on won it we have no illusions about it. It left us with infinitely more problems than we had when we started. Our conception of patriotism is not related to national glory.

We would like to make a decent civilization in this country. We are seeking new social inventions by which we can preserve freedom and make a more reasonably organized social order and integrate more intimately and efficiently the various components of our society—business, labor, government and voluntary group activity.

All this is a hard enough task for our generation and the one that will follow it. By itself it will demand much sacrifice.

DEMOCRATIC DESIRES.

What we are trying to do all the Democratic countries are trying to do, and because of this all Democratic countries have been reluctant to increase their armaments.

This was particularly true of Great Britain and of France and of the Scandinavian countries and Switzerland.

The Democratic countries as a whole have no ambitions beyond their own territories. There is no reason why they should have. They already own and control the larger part of the globe. They own nearly half of the surface of the earth, command all of the oceans, govern more than half of the world's population, control more than half of all essential raw materials, own practically all of the gold and conduct more than two-thirds of the world's total trade.

The territories which they hold are by no means fully exploited. The British Empire has huge areas in Africa capable of supporting white men where neither the land nor the things in it have been put to use.

Elsewhere in the world, notably in South America, are whole areas capable of supporting enormously augmented populations.

INJUSTICE TO OTHERS

And in Europe are Germany and Italy, with a population between them of 130,000,000, which are industrialized, virile, dynamic peoples with limited areas in which to expand their energies. And in Asia is Japan.

These countries have made up their minds that the distribution of wealth and power in the world is disproportionate and unjust. I believe that no matter what governments should happen to be ruling these countries they would, if they were strong governments, have the same feeling.

No one who knows Germany could possibly believe that, whether democratic or Nazi, or for that matter Communist, she would ever settle down to the kind of restricted life designed for her by the Treaty of Versailles.

The German capacity for organization—above all the capacity of the ordinary German for work—could not be artificially confined, nor should the world wish to see Germany artificially hemmed in. The German qualities are qualities which the world can use. Love of work and pride in work, imagination, the infinite capacity for taking pains over small things, technical efficiency, robustness and tenacity—these are worthy of everybody's admiration. They have commanded mine always. I speak of Germany because I know it well and because I believed for 20 years that it was a country due to come into its own.

PAYING FOR SMUGGLES.

We must admit that the democratic nations had for 20 years complete world power. And they failed to use it to even approach a solution of the world's greatest question—and that is how to use the resources, raw materials, money and labor of the world reasonably and justly with a view to the prosperity of everybody.

Now we are paying for our smugness, our lack of imagination and even for our lack of ideas.

We are paying because these countries have started out totally to change the distribution of economic and political power. In effecting that change they are prepared to overthrow every existing political or cultural institution, and they have mobilized every possible instrument of aggrandizement, including propaganda on a war-time basis, trade and monetary warfare, and, finally, overwhelming force of arms. This is made possible by a new form of state—the perpetually mobilized nation, mobilized financially, economically, socially, morally and militarily.

The question is not whether these countries are going to have a larger share of world power than they had a decade ago.

The question is not even whether they ought to have a larger share of world power.

The question is whether they are to have it on terms under which the rest of the world can live and retain the institutions dear to it.

It is a paradox, but I think it is true: The democratic world must arm in order to make a peace which is not a peace of Carthage. The democratic world must arm in order to prevent a worse world peace than Brest-Litovsk or Versailles—a peace, that is to say, which can only lead to another prolonged era of world war.

EQUALITY IN BARGAINING

In order to make world peace with economic justice there must be some equality of bargaining power.

There was no equality of bargaining power at Munich. The fact stood out at Munich that the British empire, with all her far-flung world, Germany, Italy and Japan, and money, not only could not stand up to Hitler but, more important, could not even sit down with Hitler.

The fact was that at Munich the British and French together had perhaps a fifth of the airplanes of Germany and Italy had together.

The fact is that the German penetration of South and Central America is proceeding with amazing swiftness and there is absolutely no guarantee that within a few years Germany will not have a few Czechoslovakias on this hemisphere—and be as unprepared as democratic Europe was last September.

And certainly none of us can believe that terms dictated to a world by Germany, Italy and Japan under their present regimes would assure greater justice than those dictated at Versailles 20 years ago.

The terms will be infinitely worse, and the world which emerges will be infinitely worse, and the settlement of the real issue, which is how we can all live together, will again be postponed into an even more distant future.

PEOPLE DON'T WANT WAR

The German people do not want war any more than any other people. Certainly the general public, which went through the last war does not.

It is, therefore, extremely important that we should make peace before that generation is dead, for what youth with no recollection of the last war and brought up in a glorification of war as a normal way of life may do baffles the imagination.

We can only make peace by coming to terms on resources, trade and money policies with all industrially developed nations. Such a peace cannot be made without the United States. And no reasonable peace can be made unless there is equality of bargaining power—unless every nation knows what not making peace is going to cost.

CREDIT EXECUTIVES TO SPEAK TUESDAY

National Leaders Will Address Atlanta Association.

Two national leaders in the field of credit will address the Atlanta Association of Credit Men at a dinner-meeting at 6:15 o'clock Tuesday night at the Lawyers' Club in the Citizens & Southern Bank building.

The speakers will be David A. Weir, assistant manager of the National Association of Credit Men, whose subject will be "Low-Rate Your Sights," and Roy A. Colton, director of the Central Credit Interchange Bureau, of St. Louis, Mo., who will speak on "Raise Your Sights."

Before joining the National Association of Credit Men, Weir was professor of finance and assistant dean of the College of Commerce at Notre Dame University. He joined the national association as director of research and education in 1931 and in 1932 was advanced to the post of assistant executive manager.

ATLANTA COIN CLUB TO HEAR EXPERT

T. L. Elder Will Speak at Banquet Wednesday.

Annual banquet of the Atlanta Coin Club will be held at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday night at the Henry Grady hotel.

T. L. Elder, of New York city, former president of the American Numismatic Association, will deliver the principal address. He is a well-known authority on ancient, medieval and modern coins. Dr. R. Sanders, president of the Atlanta Club, will preside.

Democrats—whether they belong with those who have or with the have-nots.

Happenings In Church World

By DR. HERMAN L. TURNER

Ex-Kaiser quoted as calling Hitler "Man without God"—Wilhelm II, former Kaiser of Germany, is reported in an article in Ken, national magazine, as having broken his long silence on the subject of Hitler, his successor, by deploring Hitler's godlessness, among other things. The remarkable statement appears in an article by W. Burckhardt, who reports that he interviewed the Kaiser at the former monarch's retreat at Doorn, Holland. The question, "And yourself, sire, what do you think of him (Hitler)?" evoked the terse reply, "Nichts!" But that was not all, according to Mr. Burckhardt. He quotes the Kaiser as exclaiming: "There's a man alone, without family, without children, without God. Why should he be human?" And later: "He builds legions, but he doesn't build a nation. A nation is created by families, a religion, traditions: it is made up out of the hearts of mothers, the wisdom of fathers, the joy and exuberance of children."

"It is a long road from 1772, when the first Baptist church was organized in the state of Georgia in the southeastern section and name Kiokee, to last Baptist church that was organized in Atlanta only a few weeks ago," comments Dr. W. H. Faust, secretary, department of evangelism, Georgia Baptist convention. "In the interim," continues Dr. Faust, "we find 4,092 negro Baptist churches organized into 129 district associations with 5,308 preachers and 552,249 members; 502,868 white church members in 2,575 churches working in 96 district associations with 2,020 preachers. This gives a total of 1,055,117 Baptist church members in the state of Georgia."

The Home Mission Council calls our attention to the religious and moral poverty of the backward portions of America: "Notwithstanding all that has been done, there are still 10,000 villages in America without a church of any kind—Protestant, Roman Catholic or Jewish; 30,000 villages without a pastor; 13,400,000 children under 12 years of age who are receiving no religious instruction; more than one-half of the population of the nation today not connected with any institution representing organized religion."

Addressing a recent session of the University of Pennsylvania's Christian embassy, former United States Senator George Wharton Pepper stated: "You cannot preserve a free state unless the people of that state are endowed with adequate religious freedom. The need today is for a more vital patriotism, and a more dynamic religion, each ministering to the welfare of the other. There is plenty to criticize in the churches, but the most vigorous criticism must be reserved for those who stand aloof and give no support to the religious life of the nation."

At the annual conference of the world council of Seventh Day Adventists an appropriation of $4,534,984, an increase of $189,984, over last year, was set aside for missionary activities during 1939, according to a recent item in the church press. Adventist missionaries now use 714 languages in their work, an increase of 65 over last year.

The Rev. Dr. J. T. Cox, one of the principal clerks of the general assembly of the Church of Scotland and an honored leader of the church, has caused a stir by some statements he has made in an address regarding Presbyterianism, which, he says, while almost perfect in theory is far from being so in practice, although he considers the Episcopal system worse. Referring more especially to the need for supervision of the ministry he declares that there will never be efficiency until an order of superintendence is established. He desires a full-time superintendent for every synodical district who would also be a permanent moderator of the synod. There is a growing feeling amongst laymen that such an office is required. They believe that the present system of supervision is inadequate. A similar situation exists in the Scottish Episcopal church, the bishops of which, as recent cases have shown, do not possess the necessary canonical power to exact discipline.—Press Bureau Church of Scotland.

An unparalleled spirit of co-operation among Protestants, Catholics and Jews in this country in the face of the threats of totalitarian states, is stressed by Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, director of the national conference of Christians and Jews, in his annual report. Dr. Clinchy cited the recent widespread protests by American churches against Nazi persecution of Christians and Jews, and the participation of churches and synagogues in thousands of communities in a day of prayer for the oppressed, as evidence that "a new and glorious chapter in interfaith relations in the United States has been written." He said members of all faiths were increasingly uniting against "political party machines, led by Nazi Hitler, Communist Stalin, and Fascist Mussolini" which "deny the sovereignty of God above all else, pour contempt on the spiritual values of the Judeo-Christian tradition, and refuse to recognize those natural rights of freedom of conscience, freedom of church, press, and pulpit, and of religious organization."

He's a little shy about being called high-brow. "Now, look here," he says, "there's always a market for Shakespeare. Shakespeare is the closest thing there is in show business to money in the bank. A producer turning to a great elocutionist and Shakespeare isn't being high-brow. He's just playing safe. He won't get rich, but he won't get poor, either. Anybody who writes Shakespeare writes make plenty of sense, don't you think?"

NO TIME WASTED

Since September, Mr. Dowling has been the busiest man in town. He started the year as a producer on a big scale. Then he missed the job of putting his ideas into a play, so he became a director as well as a producer. After that he missed having an audience, so he became an actor as well as director and producer.

In the meantime, his private life, out in Bayside, L. I., went roaring on. Two-year-old Mary Maxine, his and Rae Dooley's daughter, was starting to put words into sentences. He wanted to hear those wonderfully warming sentences. Jack, his 22-year-old son, was busy having his appendix extracted. He had to shepherd the boy through the hospital. He's had to chase "Shadow and Substance" out on the road, chase "White Steed" in off the road, see to it that Eva LeGallienne and "Mme. Capet" got a hearing, and produce and take the leading role in "Here Come the Clowns."

To give you an idea: The night "Mme. Capet" was opening in Philadelphia, "Shadow and Substance" was opening in Boston, "Here Come the Clowns" was being cast in New York and Eddie Dowling was wandering through a fog somewhere in between. These last weeks, Eddie Dowling has been rising at 7:30 in the morning to spend some time with his wife and daughter, darting off uptown to see his boy in the hospital, scampering away to Philadelphia to chase "White Steed" through a rehearsal, and then

In Georgia

Dark sails slip over the sun-speckled waters near Savannah, Ga. Lazy holiday days pace contentedly away, drifting on the gentle breeze, soaking in the warm balm of the southern coast. This picture may arouse thoughts of summer, rather than of January, yet it is good to be reminded of the good days to come, of the glories of Georgia climate all around the calendar.

New York Skylines

By CHARLES ESCOURT JR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Coming up the hard way! In a restaurant, that might mean eggs or steak; but, on Broadway, that means Eddie Dowling, who sings, dances, clowns, writes, acts, produces, directs and got the first big campaign contribution for Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt.

That contribution came from a Wall Street broker, and it was a check (no bounce, no stretch to it) for $10,000. Political students may be interested in the argument that came to Mr. Dowling, as follows:

"Eddie, do you think he's a good man?"

"Ben, it's Eddie that's telling you he's one of the best guys in the world."

"It's practically in the bag."

"All right, here's ten."

"And there was ten," says Eddie.

"And later ten more, and ten more after that, and then ten more, and the sweetest, greatest guys in the world. It's Eddie that's telling you."

IT'S SAFE TO BE HIGH-BROW

The value of coming up the hard way in anything, says Mr. Dowling, is that it teaches you your business. "And when it comes to show business, there isn't anything I haven't done. I've painted scenery, sold tickets, pasted up four-sheds, sobered up the drunk on leading lady, danced between the acts, played Shakespeare."

"That was in the old days—the 'Darkest Russia' and 'Slaves of Russia' and 'My Friend From India' and 'Yellow Ticket' days—before Mr. Dowling discovered that the public liked to see him doing the best clowning around and doing that little, agile, flat-footed walk of his. And now, in the new days, he has made a leap across the gulf that separates the hoover and the high-brow. Maurice Evans, in 'William Shakespeare,' 'Richard III' was the business that this Broadway comic was up to last year."

He's a little shy about being called high-brow. "Now, look here," he says, "there's always a market for Shakespeare. Shakespeare is the closest thing there is in show business to money in the bank. A producer turning to a great elocutionist and Shakespeare isn't being high-brow. He's just playing safe. He won't get rich, but he won't get poor, either. Capet" got a hearing, and produce and take the leading role in "Here Come the Clowns."

To give you an idea: The night "Mme. Capet" was opening in Philadelphia, "Shadow and Substance" was opening in Boston, "Here Come the Clowns" was being cast in New York and Eddie Dowling was wandering through a fog somewhere in between. These last weeks, Eddie Dowling has been rising at 7:30 in the morning to spend some time with his wife and daughter, darting off uptown to see his boy in the hospital, scampering away to Philadelphia to chase "White Steed" through a rehearsal, and then grabbing a 6 o'clock train in order to be back on Forty-fifth street in time to speak Clancy's words in "Here Come the Clowns."

IT COST HIM MONEY

If you add it all up, Mr. Dowling would have been considerably richer if he hadn't done anything at all this season. "Mme. Capet" was a flop. "It cost me $70,000," he says. He'll never get it back on the other three plays. "Shadow and Substance" was one of the finest plays produced last year.

"Here Come the Clowns" and "White Steed" are expected to be on all the best-ten lists, but if such high-brow stuff gives you back 6 per cent of your money, it's being generous.

"What the hell," says Mr. Dowling. "If an actor was out for the money, he wouldn't be an actor, he'd open up a drugstore. I remember back in the old days, I was dancing in a show touring the summer colonies in New England. I was down in the books for a salary, but I never got it. I never got a dime. By the time we got into Hyannis on Cape Cod, my dancing pumps were cracked and the white socks were showing right through the patent leather. 'Look,' I said to the stage manager, 'I can't go out in front of all these swell people like this. You've got to buy me some money to buy a pair of shoes.' 'My boy,' he said, 'you're right. I'll fix that up in a minute.' In a minute he was back with some shoe polish. He blacked over my socks so that they wouldn't show through the pumps. 'That fixes it, doesn't it?' He said, 'It sure does,' I said, and went on dancing."

So what fixed it for this season of 1938-1939? "I'll tell you," replies Mr. Dowling. "When I get out there on the stage in Act Two of 'Here Come the Clowns' and feel that audience out there, silent, not a cough, not a whisper, not a rustle—1,000 people, 1,200 people sitting together in darkness, silent as a tomb, held, lifting up their faces to the stage, taking in the words as if they were precious. . . . there's nothing in the world that can pay for that. The silence, the darkness, they're wonderful. They're blood in an actor's heart."

Oh, audiences, drink with your eyes, feast with your ears, sing with your hearts—and Eddie Dowling and the people like him who make the theater go 'round want care how much money they have in their pockets—want care within reason, that is.

Crisler - Lawrence Wedding Date Set For February 3

CANTON, Ga., Jan. 14.—Miss Florence Evelyn Crisler and Harry Terrell Lawrence have set February 3 as the date for their marriage, the ceremony to take place at 8:30 o'clock in the evening at the First Methodist church here. Miss Crisler chose this date for the reason that it marks the twenty-fifth anniversary of the marriage of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Crisler.

Dr. Elan F. Dempsey, who performed the ceremony for Mr. and Mrs. Crisler 25 years ago, will officiate. He will be assisted by Rev. N. P. Manning of Atlanta. A musical program will be presented by Miss Rochelle McClure, of Canton, and Mrs. Henry Tart Jr., of Jacksonville, Fla.

The bride-elect will be given in marriage by her father, C. M. Crisler. She has chosen her only sister, Miss Maxine Crisler, as her maid of honor. The bridesmaids will include Miss Mary Heard Summers, of St. George, S. C.; Miss Joe Estes, of Gay; Miss Grace Brown, of Macon, cousin of the bride-elect; Miss Louise Lawrence, of Toccoa, sister of the groom-elect; Miss Rachel Pettit and Miss Katherine Thomson, of Canton. The flower girls will be Katherine Teasley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Teasley, of Canton, and Nancy Manning, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. N. P. Manning, of Atlanta. Miss Evelyn Rawlins, of Rebecca, Ga., will keep the bride's book.

Clinton Lawrence, of Toccoa, will be his brother's best man. The groomsmen and ushers will include Jack McNeely and Joel Cross, of Toccoa; James Leitch and Robert Pringle, of Atlanta; Dr. Charles Johnston and Tom Jones, of Canton.

Mr. and Mrs. Crisler will entertain at a reception for members of the wedding party, the families, and out-of-town guests, following the church ceremony.

Adamsville O. E. S. To Install Officers.

Howard Jr.; organist, Mrs. Suttie Turner; Adah, Mrs. Rachel Louise Carson; Ruth, Mrs. Doris Wallace; Esther, Mrs. Gertrude Thompson; Martha, Mrs. Ethel Cater; Electa, Mrs. Lilly McGee; warder, Charles J. Thompson; sentinel, Uri Johnson.

Parish Council Plans Cooking School.

Parish Council of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Philip will sponsor a three-day cooking school at the chapter house Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 11 to 12:30 o'clock. Mrs. Elizabeth Broach will conduct the school. New recipes, new garnishes, intriguing ways of using left-overs and serving favorite dishes will form part of the program. Nationally advertised foods will be used in the cooking school by Mrs. Broach. Prizes will be given each day. There is no admission charge, the school is open to all who are interested.

Mrs. Charles T. Nellans, president of the parish council, is being assisted by the officers and chairmen of the council in this school.

O'Keefe Glee Club To Give Concert.

The O'Keefe Junior High Glee Club and chorus will give its sixth annual concert in the O'Keefe auditorium at Sixth street and Techwood drive on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. A group of 175 singers supported by an antiphonal choir and soloists will render a varied program. Special lighting effects will add to the effectiveness of the performance.

Soloists for the occasion are William Layton, Larry Dean, trumpeters; Owen Seitz, trombonist; Katherine Dozier, violinist; Sarah McGarrity, pianist; Betty Styron, Madison Vann, vocalists.

The program is under the direction of Denver Shackelford, director of music at O'Keefe, and Stanley Hastings, principal of the school, will be in charge.

The couple will reside in Savannah, where Mr. Butler is connected with Strachan Skyways, Inc.

Like a Page from England's History
(A. D. 1763)

This gracious, hand-made Sterling Silver Soup Tureen typifies the reaction in art that set in soon after George III ascended the throne of England in 1760. Robert Adams had just returned to London after extensive study and travel on the Continent, and was appointed King's Architect. Among the artists who accompanied him in his journeyings was a noted English silversmith named Emick Romer. It was he who fashioned this lovely Tureen—more than 170 years ago!

Romer deftly worked into his handiwork fascinating bits of Italian and French artistic trends, notable among which was the pomegranate design, an Italian influence derived from tales of ancient mythology.

The finished article is nothing less than a masterpiece of scrolled beauty and hand-fashioned loveliness, worthy of a place of honor in the collection of every lover of fine old silver.

Miss Mulkey To Wed Thomas Neal, Millen

MILLEN, Ga., Jan. 14.—Of interest is the announcement made today by Dr. and Mrs. Quincy Arnold Mulkey, of Millen, of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Miriam Angie Mulkey, to Thomas Francis Neal, of Millen.

The bride-elect is the elder of two daughters, her sister being Miss Jane Mulkey, a student at Wesleyan College. Dr. Arnold Mulkey, of the Mulkey hospital in Millen, is her brother.

She is a native of Millen and received her early education in the Millen schools. She attended the Georgia State College for Women in Milledgeville and received her bachelor of science degree in the class of 1936. Since graduation she has been affiliated with the Mulkey hospital in Millen.

The groom-elect is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Zachariah Edward Neal, of Millen. His sister is Miss Mary Neal, a student at Besse Tift College in Forsyth.

He graduated from Millen High school and attended Davidson College, in North Carolina, and is now associated in business with his father in the Millen Furniture Company in Millen.

Thomasville Rites Inspire Interest.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Jan. 14.—Miss Jennie Sue Harrell and George Stanley Owens, both of Thomasville, were quietly married here Saturday by Rev. Mack Anthony at the Methodist church.

The groom is assistant manager of the Foremost Dairies plant here. Miss Marian Eugenia Bell, of Thomasville and Miami, became the bride of Hans Johnsen, of Arcadia, Fla., Sunday. The ceremony being performed by Rev. Bruce Hall.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Williams, of Miami, formerly of Thomasville, and is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Brinson, of near Thomasville, who observed their fifty-first wedding anniversary on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will reside at Arcadia, where the groom is connected in business.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Evelyn Cooper, daughter of Mrs. L. M. Cooper, of Thomasville, to Woodrow Singleton, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Singleton, also of this city, the marriage having been performed on December 23, 1938, at the home of Judge G. A. Bird, in Monticello, Florida.

Mrs. Andrew Fiore, who before her marriage on January 3 was Miss Miriam Lee Kinard, of Bamberg, S. C. The ceremony was solemnized in the study of the Second Baptist church in this city. Dr. Ryland Knight performed the ceremony in the presence of members of the immediate families and a few close friends. Miss Gwen Altman was the bride's only attendant and Harry Zaban was the groom's best man. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Fiore will reside at 11 Sheridan drive.

Miss Folsom, of Carrollton, Weds Paul F. Fite Jr. at Noon Ceremony

CARROLLTON, Ga., Jan. 14.—The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Folsom to Paul F. Fite Jr., of Dalton, took place at the Methodist church here Saturday at noon. Rev. C. M. Haynes, pastor of the church, officiated. The vows were spoken before an altar banked with ferns and palms. Seven-branched candelabra on each side of the altar held tall white candles and floor baskets were filled with white gladioli. The candles were lighted by the ushers, Joe Hamilton, of Dalton, and W. T. Perkins Jr., of Atlanta.

A program of music was furnished by Mrs. Louis Camp, organist, and Mrs. J. G. Collins, of Gainesville, aunt of the bride, as soloist.

Miss Alma Folsom, of Atlanta, the bride's sister, was her only attendant. She wore rose beige crepe with lace of the same shade introduced in the waist. Her hat, gloves and bag were of wisteria and she wore a cluster of sweetheart roses and valley lilies.

The bride entered with her father, Joseph R. Folsom, by whom she was given in marriage, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Bill Bowen Jr., of Dalton.

The bride wore a two-piece spring costume suit of aquamarine wool crepe, trimmed with red fox. Her shoes, gloves and bag were a new tan shade while her aquamarine felt hat was veiled in this same shade of tan. Her flowers were gardenias and valley lilies.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Folsom, wore an aquamarine dress with black hat and other accessories, and a shoulder spray of red roses and valley lilies. Mrs. Paul B. Fite Sr., mother of the groom, was gowned in black velvet, with a black hat and gloves, and a cluster of gardenias.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Folsom entertained at a wedding breakfast at their home for members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests. The bride's table was overlaid with a cutwork cloth and the central decoration was a silver bowl of white carnations, lilies of the valley, narcissi and fern.

Mrs. W. C. Cantrell presided at the coffee service. The hostess was assisted in entertaining by Mesdames B. F. Boykin, T. A. Herndon, Carl Stevens, E. C. Bass, W. C. Cantrell and L. S. Ingram and Misses Sue Folsom, young sister of the bride; Ann Ingram and Libby Jo Folsom, of Jacksonville, Fla.

Mr. Fite and his bride left for a motor trip to New Orleans, after which they will make their home in Dalton, where the former is secretary and treasurer of the Dalton Brick & Tile Manufacturing Company.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Paul B. Fite Sr., Miss Martha Fite, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stancil, Misses Grace and Frances Flemister, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hamilton, Misses Gwendolyn Brooks, Dorothy Cutts, Elise Belcher, of Dalton; W. T. Penikeseon Jr., of Atlanta; Bill Bowen Jr., of Dalton; Mr. and Mrs. Manley Smith, of Dublin; Miss Flora McGuire, of Montgomery; Mrs. J. R. Folsom Jr. and Libby Jo and Joe Folsom Jr., of Jacksonville, Fla.; Mrs. J. G. Collins, of Gainesville.

Miss Julia Cole Marries H. C. Seaton.

QUITMAN, Ga., Jan. 14.—The marriage of Miss Julia Virginia Cole, of Fort Gaines, and Hillard Clay Seaton, of LaGrange, was solemnized December 31 at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mrs. Carl Rhodes, in Quitman.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. C. Kiser, pastor of the First Baptist church of Quitman, in the presence of the immediate families.

The bride wore a model of teal blue wool, a hat of teal blue trimmed with wine, and matching accessories. On her shoulder she wore a spray of purple orchids.

After the ceremony the bride and groom left for a motor trip to Virginia, returning to LaGrange on Saturday. They are residing with Mrs. R. T. Segrest, 311 Vernon street.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Cole, of Fort Gaines. For the past several years she has held a position with the Georgia Power Company, in Richmond.

Mr. Seaton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Seaton, of Cohutta. After his graduation from Cohutta High school, he attended the University of Georgia, where he received his degree of bachelor of science and agriculture engineering. Since that time he has been connected with the Federal Soil Conservation Service in this state.

Annual B.W.M.U. Board Meeting Reports Show Splendid Increase

The love, loyalty and labors of the Baptist women and young people of Georgia was shown in reports made at the January state board meeting of B. W. M. U. held at the Henry Grady hotel.

According to the report of the executive secretary—treasurer, Miss Mary Christian, W. M. U. contributions for December totaled the encouraging sum of $42,223.25, which is an increase of $5,400.35 over the same period in 1937. The Lottie Moon foreign mission offering reached $18,908.91, an increase of $2,490.01 over 1937. Eighteen new organizations were reported.

New year greetings of the president, Mrs. Frank Burney, to the executive board was one of peace, good-will and Christian love. Following the devotional, led by Mrs. E. E. Steele, based upon the Scripture passage, "For ye have not passed this way heretofore," resumes were made of some departments of the union's work and plans outlined for the year.

The board eagerly and enthusiastically discussed plans and programs for the state convention which meets in First church, Atlanta, on March 21, 22 and 23.

Miss Miriam Robinson, young people's secretary, reported talks made to various organizations and conferences held in connection with official duties. Miss Robinson is anxious that the young people's leader, district and association, of the state have the privilege of special study for their work and that annual conferences be planned for their benefit. Also annual Y. W. A. house parties or something of that nature be planned. Miss Robinson was given permission to select place and work out plans and programs. The field worker, Miss Dollie Hiett, has had varied duties the past month. She visited three associations in December.

Departmental reports were given by the following chairmen: Mrs. Ryland Knight, training school trustee; Mrs. D. Talmage Ellis, Margaret fund; Mrs. E. E. Steele, mission study; Mrs. W. H. McClain Jr., messages, and Mrs. A. B. Couch, publicity.

Vice presidents of divisions present were: Mrs. W. O. Mitchell, of Atlanta; Mrs. J. L. Clegg, of Dalton; Mrs. E. V. Deaton, of Columbus; Mrs. Adkins, of Augusta. All are planning for associational meeting to be held in the near future.

Members present were: Messrs. Frank Burney, Paul S. Etheridge, George Westmoreland, E. V. Deaton, W. O. Mitchell, J. L. Jackson, Emory S. Caldwell, A. B. Couch, J. W. Dalhouse, R. E. Smith, A. S. Johnson, D. Talmage Ellis, Ryland Knight, R. B. Adair, C. A. Laird, J. M. Wright, J. W. Awtrey, Roger Howell, J. L. Clegg, Joe G. Senn, W. H. McClain Jr., G. C. Green, E. E. Steele, W. A. Adams, Misses Mary Christian, Miriam Robinson and Dollie Hiett.

Garden Lovers Plan Pilgrimage For Early Spring

By Sally Forth.

EVEN before the arrival of spring, garden enthusiasts are busy making plans for the annual pilgrimage sponsored by the Garden Club of Georgia each March, when some of the state's handsomest homes and most noted gardens are open to hundreds of visitors. The pilgrimage opens March 22 at Thomassville, the city noted for its rose gardens and for the rose carnival presented each spring in the south Georgia town.

Savannah is scheduled for the garden pilgrims' second stop, when they will view on March 23 and 24 the magnificent gardens cultivated in Georgia's coastal city. "Wormsloe Plantation," ancestral home of Mrs. Craig Barrow, near Savannah, will be open to the visitors, who will gaze upon world-famous azaleas, japonicas and moss-hung trees.

On March 25 and 26, those making the pilgrimage will stop at Augusta and among the historic homes to be visited is "Azalea Cottage," built in the last part of the eighteenth century. The home is owned by Thomas Barrett Jr., the former Louise Broyles, of Atlanta, who has developed the gardens in keeping with the period of the home which houses a veritable treasure trove of antiques.

Proceeding north, the travelers will arrive on March 27 in Milledgeville, where some of the state's most historic homes are surrounded by gardens typical of the south. On March 28 gardens in Macon will be visited and March 29 and 30 the visitors will spend at Columbus. In the latter city the travelers will be given the rare privilege of seeing the interior of "Dinglewood," one of the state's most beautiful old mansions owned by Miss Annie Hinde and Miss Frances Adams. En route to Newnan from Columbus, the garden lovers will stop at LaGrange to view the beautiful Callaway gardens, noted for their boxwood and the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fuller Callaway Jr.

March 31 will be spent in Athens, where early southern architecture prevails in the Classic City, known for its homes with stately white columns. Among the magnificent Athens homes to be opened is that owned by Mrs. W. F. Bradshaw.

The pilgrimage ends in Atlanta, where the visitors will spend the first three days of April visiting gardens situated on a number of the city's best-known estates. Historic "Mimosa Hall," at Roswell, now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Gus I. Tolson, is one of the nearby beauty spots to be visited. The home was built in 1838 by

SPORTS ENTHUSIASTS PERFECT BADMINTON TECHNIQUE

Regardless of the thermometer's verdict, sports enthusiasts cling fast to their favorite recreations, and can be found throughout the day engaged in their pet exercises. On this page is pictured a group of popular belles and beaux enjoying a game of badminton on the private court owned by Mr. and Mrs. David Prince, on Roswell road.

Miss Rosalie Brooks and Al Bayliss are shown in the left corner of the page as they cheer the active players and await their turn on the court. Miss Brooks and Mr. Bayliss are popular members of the college set, and can be found on numerous occasions indulging in a rapid game of badminton, or obligingly keeping score for their friends in play.

All photographs on this page were made by Constitution staff photographer—Slayton

"It's my serve now!"

The adorable tot pictured above is Princess Prince, diminutive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Prince, who is pleading for an opportunity to show the participants how to play badminton. Princess' engaging smile and sunny disposition have established her as a coming champion of the popular English game.

James Dunwoody and is renowned for its classic dignity.

The very capable Mrs. Green Warren, of this city, is chairman for the pilgrimage, with Mrs. D. C. Shepherd, another Atlanta garden enthusiast, as assistant chairman.

Assisting Mrs. Warren as chairman in the 10 pilgrimage cities are Mrs. Robb Pardee, Thomas-ville; Mrs. John Seymour, chairman, and Eric Stetson, publicity chairman, Savannah; Mrs. George Traylor, chairman, and Mrs. Carroll Jack, publicity chairman, Augusta; Mrs. J. T. King, chairman, and Mrs. Nelle Womack, Hines, publicity chairman, Milledgeville; Miss Madge Sherling, chairman, and Rabbi I. E. Marcussen, publicity chairman, Macon; Mrs. C.

B. Glover, Newnan; Mrs. Linton Jamagin, Athens; Mrs. Beverly DuBose, chairman, with Mrs. Jesse Draper and Mrs. R. B. Pegram, co-chairmen, and Mrs. Everard Richardson, Atlanta, publicity chairman. The chairman for Columbus will be announced at a later date. Mrs. Reginald Fleet, of Atlanta, is serving as general publicity chairman.

MRS. PAUL RANDALL and her aunt, Mrs. Norman Miller, recently returned from an enjoyable visit to Central America, where they reveled in the scenic beauty and exhilarating altitude of ancient Mexico City.

The most exciting spectacle witnessed by the Atlantans was a bullfight during which eight bulls were killed in one afternoon!

The pair also attended a religious festival at Oahaca, which was climaxed by a fiery ceremony comprised of a tower of blazing bamboo. The latter part of the ritual took place at midnight, and produced weird effect upon the spectators.

ARTHUR LAWS is the envy of his playmates when it comes to owning unusual mementos and souvenirs. Arthur is extremely fond of horses and in his room in the Habersham road residence of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Clarence Laws, there are numerous photographs of famous race horses, while other equestrian appointments serve as decorations.

Added to this collection is a bit of the forelock from that famous race horse, War Admiral, which Arthur has had framed. His aunt, Grace Powell, gave him the hair which she obtained from none other than War Admiral. Grace, you know, will marry Ed Hammond, of Baltimore, on January 28, and with her fiancé she was a recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Riddle at their estate, "Glen Riddle," on the eastern shore of Maryland. The Riddles own War Admiral and Man o' War, whose names will go down in turf history. "Glen Riddle" is the Riddles' training farm and it was there that Grace was able to secure the horse's hair.

Annual Executive Board Meeting To Be Held in Macon January 20

By Miss Mary Lizzie Wright,
Of Elberton, Editor Georgia
Division, U. D. C.

January will prove a very active month in U. D. C. division work, the semi-annual meeting of the executive board to meet in Macon, January 20. The meeting opens at 10 o'clock (eastern standard time) at the Dempsey hotel and will continue in session until the luncheon at 1 o'clock which will be served in the dining room of the hotel. All officers and chairmen are urged to attend.

The calendar of division work for the year, as mapped out by the division president, Mrs. Clyde F. Hunt, and mailed out last week to chapter presidents, is unusually full. Mrs. Hunt says: "As we begin the new year, let us turn our thoughts to some of the main objectives of our organization. First, the welfare of our veterans; we must get an increase in pensions for our Confederate veterans. May we also show a greater interest in the women of the Confederacy."

"Do not forget that we are going to build the World War Memorial cottage at Rabun Gap this year. I am sure that all would like to have a small part in this, the most worthwhile of our educational projects. We still have a long way to go to reach Georgia's apportionment in the sale of 'Rise and Fall of the Confederate Government,' by Jefferson Davis. Every library and every home should have this book. Daughters, won't you help with this? Send orders to Garret & Massie, Richmond, Va."

"We should pay our quota of 20 cents per capita to the Jefferson Davis Memorial at Montgomery, Ala. Make an effort to reinstate members. Make a survey of your town for new members. Make your slogan, 'Every eligible woman a Daughter, and every Daughter's daughter a Daughter.'"

"With love and thanks for your loyalty in the past and many good wishes for the future."

Members of the division will be happy to learn that Mrs. Charles T. Tillman, first vice president, is recuperating at her home in Quitman, after a stay in the hospital. Mrs. Tillman has done invaluable work in caring for the veterans, as this is very dear to her heart. The official bulletin has entered its second year of publication, and it is hoped that all chapters will send in renewals at once to the general chairman, Miss Anne V. Mann, Box 575, Petersburg, Va. The price is 50 cents for the year (January through December) and this amount should be sent with the order, plainly stating if it is a new subscription or renewal. Please do not send stamps as Miss Mann states she has an overabundance already. Use either check, money order or cash. Generous prizes have been offered both the division and the chapter sending in the most subscriptions, so get busy and help the division to win a prize, by sending in your subscription and getting a friend to subscribe at once! One paid subscription is required for a star chapter.

Woodland Chapter, at its recent meeting, had on display the Margaret Carter Hunt Cup, which it won for securing the largest number of new members. Mrs. W. J. Braddy, president, also displayed the Gold Star Flag won for excellence of work. The president appointed Mrs. J. E. Peeler chairman of a committee to send a box to the Soldiers' Home in Atlanta. The program was presented by Miss Kate Peeler. Hostesses were Mesdames W. T. Holmes, L. B. Slaughter and Ola Daniel.

Charles D. Anderson Chapter, Fort Valley, featured southern songs and poems of the Confederacy at its recent meeting, with the following taking part on the program: Mesdames Maxwell Murray, W. B. Norton, Russell Houser, W. A. Wood and Miss Sarah Lowe. Vocal selections were rendered by Mrs. J. E. Hollingsworth, accompanied by Mrs. Frederick Egan. Miss Wilma Orr, president, appointed committees for the new year. Baskets of fruit were sent the veterans and widows at Christmastime.

Members of the Ida Evans Eve Chapter, Thomaston, were thrilled at the loving cups on display at the recent meeting, which had been won by the division and its president at the general convention in Tulsa. Mrs. Hunt gave a comprehensive report of the convention and spoke of her justifiable pride in both the Daughters and the children and the showing they made at the general. Mrs. W. C. McCombs presided over the business session, when Mrs. Ira E. Farmer reported four new members of the C. of C. The program was "Christmas Time With Southern Writers" and was presented by Mesdames Annie Lee Walker and Mary Hartley.

Mrs. A. Belmont Dennis, third vice president of the division, was honor guest at the recent meeting of the Dixie Chapter, Eatonton, when Mrs. Frank A. Dennis was hostess. Mrs. Dennis reported the general convention giving great praise to the splendid executive ability of Mrs. Walter D. Lamar as a presiding officer, and telling of her happiness in bringing back to the Georgia Division C. of C. the coveted Katie Jordan Dennis Cup, presented by the Dixie Chapter to the general during the term of Mrs. Frank Dennis as third vice president general. Mrs. R. C. Whitman presided and welcomed Mrs. Johnnie Holt as a new member. A memorial edition of the "Rise and Fall of the Confederate Government," by Jefferson Davis, was presented to the library in memory of Mrs. J. S. Turner, organizing president, which was received by Mrs. E. F. Griffith. Reports were heard from the Christmas remembrances for the widows in the county and the veterans in the home as well as the Christmas party given the C. of C.

Mrs. H. E. Martin, of Athens, Honored On Recent W. C. T. U. Broadcast

By Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, Of Atlanta, Editor, Georgia
W. C. T. U.

Athens W. C. T. U. president, Mrs. H. W. Birdsong, in the weekly broadcast over WGAU, dedicated last week's program to Mrs. H. E. Martin, Athens, the woman who never lost interest in the cause through all the years, and who never faltered no matter how hard the battle nor how many the deserters. She has meant more to the Athens W. C. T. U. than any one woman.

It was fitting that the union, now so prosperous, should honor her. Mrs. Birdsong spoke to Mrs. Martin as follows: "Mrs. Martin, you have stood for temperance almost alone, and never stopped work for this great cause. You never gave up, you never quit. We let you fight many battles alone when we should have been by your side, doing our part. Many times you were the only light shining for temperance. We are so thankful that you had the courage and determination to carry on as you did. Now that you have had to drop some of your activities, we look back and see what a wonderful work you have done, and the entire membership of the W. C. T. U. and many others rise up and call you blessed."

An appreciation of Mrs. Martin written in rhyme was given by Mrs. S. C. Moon. Mrs. S. J. Reid spoke on her life and character and especially praised her unselfish devotion to the church and the W. C. T. U. At the close of the broadcast, Mrs. Bishop Douglas and Mrs. B. D. Nicholson sang "Long Long Ago," a favorite of Mrs. Martin. From 8 to 10 o'clock Tuesday evening, Mrs. Max Hubert kept open house for Mrs. Martin.

The new union at Summerville, Mrs. Harry Marks, president, was the first to welcome the national visitors, Miss Lily Grace Matheson, national organizer and field secretary of the W. C. T. U., and Miss Lenadel Wiggins, national L. T. L. secretary, to Georgia. They spoke to students at the school at Summerville, and held a conference with a group of W. C. T. U. workers there. They went on to Rome.

Miss Annie Todd, president of the W. C. T. U. of Rome, arranged for the national workers to attend two services on Sunday, a meeting with the W. C. T. U. women to discuss methods of work, talks over the radio and to the schools. In all these the new comers won golden opinions.

Monday, Misses Matheson and Wiggins were the star speakers at the Seventh District W. C. T. U. rally at Cartersville. This rally was also enlivened by the presence of three state workers, Mrs. Mary Scott Russell, state president; Mrs. Marvin Greene, secretary of the State Y. T. C., and Mrs. George Bondurant, secretary of L. T. L. branch.

Mrs. E. A. Cawthon, of Atlanta, reproduced the skit given at the state convention last fall, "Mrs. P. A. Budget." Plans were made for the centenary year which will be widespread. Mrs. Russell spoke with her usual force and brilliance and stirred those present to a renewed interest in citizenship, budget and prompt payment of dues. Rev. W. G. Crawley, pastor of the Sam Jones Memorial church, where the meeting was held, was present. The district president, Mrs. J. T. Hamby, is in Florida for some weeks, so Mrs. J. W. L. Brown, secretary, will act as president pro tem, until Mrs. Hamby's return. Mrs. Annie Laurie Cunyus, musical director for Georgia

W. C. T. U., and local president of the Cartersville union, brightened the meeting with her presence and blessed it with her songs. Lithonia W. C. T. U. met recently. Mrs. R. H. McDougall, state vice president, and Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, editor of the Georgia W. C. T. U. Bulletin, were present and spoke of the rainbow centenary membership campaign. New members secured were "Frances E. Willard members" and Mrs. McDougall presented each with a button bearing Miss Willard's likeness and with a beautifully engraved card. Mrs. McDougall is the leader of the membership campaign in this state.

Farewell Parties Are Planned For Mrs. Callaway and Mrs. Miles

Among the interesting events featuring the social calendar for the week is the tea at which Mrs. Ben Barron and Mrs. Curtis Dixon will entertain on Tuesday at the home of the former on Camden road. The affair will be a complimentary gesture to Mrs. Harry Callaway, who leaves February 1 to make her home in La Grange, and to Mrs. Fanning Miles, who will also leave Atlanta on that date to establish residence in Chicago, Ill. The calling hours are from 4 to 6 o'clock, and the tea will assemble a group of friends of the honor guests. Assisting Mrs. Dixon and Mrs. Barron in entertaining their guests will be Mesdames Charles Moses, McDonald Brittain, Thomas J. Monroe, French Snelling, T. M. Forbes, Wayne Rivers and Thomas B. Moore, of Bolton. Another farewell gesture to Mrs. Callaway is the bridge-tea which has been planned by Mrs. Grady Miller and Miss Annie Mary Fuller for January 21. The party will assemble at the Sixteenth street home of Mrs. Miller. Mrs. Callaway will join Mr. Callaway in LaGrange early in February to complete plans for building a home there. Their lovely young daughter, Miss Harriett Callaway, will remain at Washington Seminary as a boarding student until school is out in June. Mrs. Miles and her young daughter and son, Mary Stewart and Fanning Jr., will leave early next month to join Mr. Miles in Chicago, where they will make their future home.

Fulton County Council of P.-T. A. Gives Public Welfare Program

The Fulton County Parent-Teacher Council met on Wednesday. The program was presented by Mrs. Robert Rankin, chairman of the public welfare department.

Mrs. R. H. Hankinson, out of the experience and service of the state presidency of the organization a few years past, gave a ringing challenge to the membership of the local organizations to maintain an independence of thinking and to become a contributing force to the policies of the national organization. She stressed study on the part of the membership, and particularly in regard to the relation of the child's education to the role he would play in life as an adult.

The inspirational given by Mrs. Elmer Slider, president of the Fifth District Council, stressed the magnitude of the National Parent-Teacher organization and its potentialities. Mrs. Charles Trowbridge, president of the council, asked for requests and reports from chairmen. It was announced that Red Cross classes in nutrition, first aid, etc., were still available to any group which would organize as many as 15 in a class.

Mrs. Katherine Weathersbee urged co-operation in humane education programs on the part of the organizations in general, because of the illness of the council chairman, Mrs. Philip Werner. She invited all to take part in the annual meeting of the Georgia State Humane Education Society on January 28 at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Miss Mary Neil Shannon, chairman of health, announced the mailing of blanks to be filled in and returned to the state chairman in regard to the annual summer roundup. The details of competition for the Hardeman Health cup would also reach local presidents this week. It was announced. Presidents were urged by Mrs. Trowbridge to look into all obligations and reports in order to be ready to close the Parent-Teacher year in good standing by late February.

Presidents' Club.

The Fulton County Presidents' Club met on Wednesday with the president, Mrs. J. R. Burns, presiding. Each local president gave splendid reports on the activities of the various schools. One outstanding feature reported by Mrs. H. G. Bridges, of Fairburn, was the well baby clinic being sponsored in that community.

Mrs. Pickens, program chairman, introduced J. Lee Horne Jr., WPA recreational director, who gave an inspiring talk on the need of recreation, stating some provision was being made by Fulton county and the city of Atlanta co-operating with WPA for more recreational centers. Mrs. Elmer Slider, Fifth District president, was an honor guest and Mrs. E. H. Potter, of Smokemont, N. C., mother of Mrs. Burns, was a visitor.

Bass Junior High P.-T. A.

Looking to greater safety on the streets for school children the group, under the direction of Mrs. W. L. If the versatile president of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs wants to go into business when she retires from her present office, all she will have to do is offer for sale those wonderful pecan nuts she prepared and was so generous with at Christmas. Home grown pecans caramelized in maple sugar are toothsome dainties. Thank you, Mrs. Albert Hill.

Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, of Athens, spoke in Philadelphia on January 13, to the Pennsylvania assembly of family relations, Field Army for Control of Cancer. From there she goes to Washington, D. C., to serve in her official capacity as recording secretary for the General Federation of Women's Clubs executive committee, and for the meeting of the board of directors.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland B. Daniel, of Columbus, are on an extended trip to Mexico and other points of interest. Mrs. Daniel has prepared her program of work as chairman of the family relations, which will be accepted by the executive committee in session this week.

Business and Professional Women's Club, which is federated with the Columbus City Federation, will continue to have a Christmas savings plan. The sum this past year went toward sending a young Columbus girl to college in America. Savings are directed through the department of education, of which Miss Martha Set is chairman. Miss Miriam Denson is club president.

George Washington, who experimented with every kind of plant he could get, was the first American to raise the domestic apple which was referred to as "a very bad weed," in one encyclopedia. George seems to have found them delectable enough and may have anticipated modern dietitians in his estimate of the value of this article for food.

Dorothy Junior Woman's Club of Eton has underway the "Club Neighbor" plan, which is being drawn to some one. Names are being taken at each meeting, telling members to visit them, especially kind. Evelyn Gregory entertained the recent meeting.

Twelve new appointments have been made in the General Federation during the past month and chairman are translating their ideas into definite programs so that the work of all nine departments may be carried on with

Notification of appointments. When a committee has been appointed in reference to a particular object, it is the duty of the secretary of the assembly to make out a list of the members, together with a certified copy of the authority or instructions under which they are to act. The presiding officer usually certifies and gives the papers to the member first named on the list of the committee, if convenient, but otherwise to any other member of the committee. (It is best to give this to the first named on the committee if possible.)

Who is chairman? The person first named on the committee acts as its chairman, or presiding officer, so far as relates to the preliminary steps to be taken, and is usually permitted to do so through the whole proceedings, but this is a matter of courtesy, every committee having its right to elect its own chairman, who presides over it and makes report of its proceedings to the assembly.

Meetings. A committee is properly to receive directions from the assembly, as to the time and place of its meetings, and cannot regularly sit at any other time and place, and it may be ordered to sit immediately, whilst the assembly is sitting—and make its report forthwith.

When committee cannot sit. When no directions are given, a committee may select its own time and place of meeting, but without a special order to that effect, it is not at liberty to sit whilst the assembly sits; and if a committee is sitting when the assembly comes to order after an adjournment, it is the duty of the chairman to rise instantly, on being certified of it, and with the other members, to attend the service of the assembly.

A committee which is under no directions as to the time and place of meeting may meet when and where it pleases, and adjourn itself from day to day, or otherwise, until it has gone through with the business committed to it; but if it is ordered to meet at a particular time, and it fails in doing so for any cause, the committee is closed and cannot act without being newly directed to sit.

(To be continued next week.)

Miss Luna Johnston Weds L. D. Jarrard

CLARKESVILLE, Ga., Jan. 14. Miss Luna Virginia Johnston, of Clarksville, became the bride of L. D. Jarrard, of Clarksville and Detroit, Mich., at a ceremony solemnized December 30 at Clarksville Baptist parsonage. Rev. Douglas M. White officiated.

The bride wore a smart three-piece brown shetland tuxedo suit with matching collar and an eggshell satin blouse. Her hat and accessories were of brown alligator.

Mrs. Jarrard is the youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Fred N. Johnston. For the past several years she has resided with her sister, Mrs. Enoch M. Fry. She graduated from Clarksville High school and has for the past few years been connected with Stovall Stores.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Jarrard, of Clarksville, and graduated from Clarksville High school. For the past few years he has held a position as superintendent of W. J. Miller Company of Detroit.

After their marriage the couple left on a wedding tour through North Carolina, Virginia and Caro, Mich., where they will reside.

Brooks Club Hears Program on Bible.

Bible program, with pageant, was enjoyed recently by Brooks Women's Club, which met at the home of Mrs. J. B. Wood, with Miss Mary Hewell assisting hostess.

The president, Mrs. J. I. Woolsey, opened the exercises with a prayer offered by Mrs. Wilson Haynes. Members answered roll call with appropriate quotations, and reports of unusual activity were heard from the child welfare, charity, social, and ways and means committees. Article from "The Clubwoman's Guide" was read by Miss Alice Bullock. It was decided that each member adopt a "sister" for the year, to whom to be especially attentive; names drawn will not be revealed until December, 1939.

Miss Eloise Woolsey presented the program using as theme for her introductory remarks God's saying, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but My Word shall not pass away." Opening number was a reading by Harvey Horton and an essay on the Bible by Mrs. Harold McKinney. Professor Harold McKinney gave an address on "Great Bible Characters and Their Contribution to the World." "The Song of the Bible" were presented in pageant. Taking part were: Reader, Mrs. Charles Woolsey Jr.; vocalists, Mrs. William Malone; soprano, Mrs. L. L. Haynes, tenor, and Miss Louise Drewry, alto. Piano accompanist, Mrs. J. I. Woolsey.

Impersonations were Mrs. W. N. Stephens, Hannah; Mrs. Henderson, as Rebecca; Marie Drewry, as Pharaoh's daughter; Cinda Jeanne Woolsey, as the "Poor Widow"; Ruth, Grace Leach; Esther, Dorothy Coffey; The Madonna, Mrs. Wilson Haynes. Following the excellent program the hostesses were assisted in serving the guests by Grace Leach, Marie Drewry, Ann Henderson and Martha Wood.

Douglas Club Holds Meeting.

Douglas Woman's Club met at the clubhouse for the January meeting with the president, Mrs. J. W. Wallace, presiding. Pledge of her boys and girls. The truth of the matter is, such conditions are partly due to our schools and our business world. Happily, the George-Deen act is an attempt to do something for youth through vocational training. To be sure, we are your duty as well as mine to see that such funds are administered in the most efficient way possible. An additional splendid service is being rendered us by the NYA and club members, let us co-operate with this agency in our various duties.

Beyond a doubt, the lack of employment plus shorter working hours for those who are employed give our youth much time for play-recreation in other words which molds their characters slowly but surely. As a result, we as club members are confronted with that which amounts to practically a crisis. The point is—Are we awake and on our toes? Are we seeing to it that only movies of the best quality are being shown? Are we giving through

Students' Club of Columbus is listed among the clubs in Georgia Federation contributing one dollar a member to Tallulah Falls school, this action having been taken at the January meeting, held at the home of Mrs. B. Littlejohn. Motion was made by Miss Edwina Wood, chairman of the department of education. Public welfare committee, through the chairman, Miss Daisy Tichnor, reported a voluntary contribution of $15 made by members for Christmas seals in addition to purchases made through other agencies.

Mrs. George Burrus, the president, distributed collateral reading on the program which has as its theme, "Islands of the Sea." These books will be exchanged "Moby Dick," by Melville; "Leaves From a Greenland Diary," by Ruth Bryan Owen; "Social Customs in Old New England," by Mary Caroline Crawford; "Golden Isles of Georgia," by Caroline Couper Lovell, and literature concerning the Hawaiian Islands.

In opening the meeting, Mrs. Burrus gave a new year's greeting in verse and the members recited the club collect in union. Report was made of the "Book Parade" given recently by Columbus City Federation. Continuing the year's topics, Mrs. Walter Cargill told of the Azores, Canary and Madeira Islands. She exhibited pictures and pieces of handwork from these islands where her brother had been stationed during the World War. Mrs. C. L. Mullin illustrated her talk on Balearic is-

Youth Co-operation Is Discussed By State Federation Chairman

MRS. H. A. CARITHERS.

By Mrs. H. A. Carithers, Of Windsor, Chairman of Youth Co-operation.

To you, federated club members of Georgia, I extend best wishes for the New Year. Too, I urge each of you to join me in seeking to be a better clubwoman, in that you and I will let readers of the club page know what our clubs are doing. How about it, ladies? Now, may I briefly and sincerely write to you of the division of conservation of youth. Right here in Georgia we women are given the opportunity to help our young people solve their many and complex problems, thus enabling them to become better citizens of our state. Their problems may well be treated under the four divisions: Youth and Unemployment, Youth and Recreation, Youth and Crime, and Youth and Home.

Appalling indeed are the statistics showing 4,700,000 young people out of school, unemployed and seeking jobs. Certainly there is something radically wrong in a civilization which shuts the door of hope, thus curtailing the efforts of her boys and girls. The truth of the matter is, such conditions are partly due to our schools and our business world. Happily, the George-Deen act is an attempt to do something for youth through vocational training. To be sure, we are your duty as well as mine to see that such funds are administered in the most efficient way possible. An additional splendid service is being rendered us by the NYA and club members, let us co-operate with this agency in our various duties.

Beyond a doubt, the lack of employment plus shorter working hours for those who are employed give our youth much time for play-recreation in other words which molds their characters slowly but surely. As a result, we as club members are confronted with that which amounts to practically a crisis. The point is—Are we awake and on our toes? Are we seeing to it that only movies of the best quality are being shown? Are we giving through school and county libraries good magazines and books to be read? Are we establishing and promoting community centers with directed play? In brief, if we are not doing all these things, we need to be doing them. Starting is the knowledge that 20 per cent of the crime in the United States is committed by youth of less than 18 years of age—that means that some 700,000 boys and girls are cut off from happy and normal life. Where fault is this?

J. Edgar Hoover says, "Parents have become too concerned in enjoying the fleshpots of the age to give proper attention to their offsprings." Hoover's accusation is a dreadful one, club members. Let us overcome it! Let us have as major objectives of each of our clubs an attempt to stop crime at its source, let us put character building educators in our schools, and finally let us continuously work for better homes!

At this time, let us turn our thoughts to the hundreds of agencies at work trying to break down our form of government in this country. Three simple but effective things are suggested by Mrs. J. L. Whitehurst, past chairman of education in general federation, for us to do in order to stop such harmful propaganda. They are to shake off the apathy that surrounds us; to inform ourselves as to existing conditions in our country today; and to join forces with all agencies working to preserve our democratic form of government.

In conclusion, we as individuals and as club members can do much to help our youth of today, but our real hope is that they themselves will attempt to better their conditions, remembering that this country was founded by a people and for a people who wanted to be free. May we pray that our boys and girls will not permit themselves to be led by those representatives of groups or individuals who would level in the complete destruction of a foundation carefully laid by a courageous, honest, God-fearing people—our forefathers!

Columbus Club Gives One Dollar Per Member to Tallulah School

Students' Club of Columbus is listed among the clubs in Georgia Federation contributing one dollar a member to Tallulah Falls school, this action having been taken at the January meeting, held at the home of Mrs. B. Littlejohn. Motion was made by Miss Edwina Wood, chairman of the department of education. Public welfare committee, through the chairman, Miss Daisy Tichnor, reported a voluntary contribution of $15 made by members for Christmas seals in addition to purchases made through other agencies.

Mrs. George Burrus, the president, distributed collateral reading on the program which has as its theme, "Islands of the Sea." These books will be exchanged "Moby Dick," by Melville; "Leaves From a Greenland Diary," by Ruth Bryan Owen; "Social Customs in Old New England," by Mary Caroline Crawford; "Golden Isles of Georgia," by Caroline Couper Lovell, and literature concerning the Hawaiian Islands.

In opening the meeting, Mrs. Burrus gave a new year's greeting in verse and the members recited the club collect in union. Report was made of the "Book Parade" given recently by Columbus City Federation. Continuing the year's topics, Mrs. Walter Cargill told of the Azores, Canary and Madeira Islands. She exhibited pictures and pieces of handwork from these islands where her brother had been stationed during the World War. Mrs. C. L. Mullin illustrated her talk on Balearic is-

Augusta Club Hears Richard Reid.

Richard Reid, outstanding journalist and Catholic layman, recently addressed the Augusta Woman's Club on "Conservation," choosing from the many connotations of the word the idea of conservation of the ideal principles of the government of the United States. He reviewed history of the ages through which those principles have come down to the present generation.

Mr. Reid talked at the invitation of the division of conservation, of which Mrs. R. C. Balie Jr. is chairman, and the department of education, Mrs. A. B. Von Kamp, chairman. The speaker stated that he saw no cause for pessimism, as the United States is too large to be dominated by either of the harmful ideologies that are rampant: Nazism, Fascism and Communism.

Music for the luncheon-meeting was rendered by Miss Margie Mulferin, pianist, and James Punaro, violinist. In presiding over the business session, the president, Mrs. I. R. White, introduced as one of the visitors present, Miss Katherine Lanier, of Athens, state extension specialist in food preservation and co-chairman of Urban-Rural Co-operation. Committee in charge of decorations was composed of Mrs. Jim Woodall, chairman; Mrs. Foster Sego and Mrs. R. J. Wilkerson. A snow scene featured the speakers' table and "sugar plum trees" were on the individual tables.

Monroe Club Hears Address.

Legislation was featured at January meeting of Monroe Women's Club and Mrs. Lena Felker Lewis, as chairman, had Mrs. Marvin Medlock, Atlanta attorney, as speaker. Accompanying Mrs. Medlock to Monroe was Mrs. Harvie Jordan, executive secretary of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, who was introduced by Mrs. Lewis and spoke of the work rendered clubwomen from state headquarters in the Henry Grady hotel.

Mrs. Medlock, who is state chairman of legislation, discussed bills of special interest to women which are to be presented to the legislature now in session. Included were: 1. Taking care of syphilis cases, and physical examination prior to marriage. 2. Jury duty for women. 3. Domestic relations court. 4. Birth control. 5. Psychopathic hospital. 6. Secret ballot system. 7. Uniform traffic laws. 8. Uniform divorce laws. Mrs. Medlock urged the members to study these measures and be prepared to use their influence intelligently.

The president, Mrs. Willis Wells, presided over the business session, hearing a report from the building committee. A clubhouse is the ambition of the club and a nucleus for the building has been set aside and will be augmented by future endeavors. New members enrolled since the first list was sent to the treasurer to receive membership cards are Mesdames J. W. Butts, A. C. Mobley, E. A. Caldwell, Ed. Durkin, J. E. Wright, A. B. Preston, C. E. Chick, W. P. Perry, D. I. Barron, and W. O. Dean. Social period was enjoyed in the school auditorium and the hostess committee included Mesdames James D. M. P. Green, Edwin Goodwin, Dennis Ford and Dupree Hendrix.

Professor Strozio Addresses Club.

Covington Woman's Club held its January meeting at the home of Mrs. C. A. Sockwell, Mrs. R. M. Mobley, president, presided, opening with the song, "Georgia Land," and reading the club collect. Reports from officers and standing committees were heard. Following the business session, the meeting was turned over to Mrs. C. A. Sockwell, who presented Miss Betty Jane Randall in a reading, "Jane Goes to Ball Game." Speaker for the night was Professor Walton E. Strozio, of Emory-at-Oxford College. Mr. Strozio gave a splendid address on "The American Home," outlining the bases on which the home is founded, and also stressing the fact that such degradation and lack of pleasure is caused from mad-seeking pleasures and lack of religious atmosphere.

Refreshments were served by the committee in charge, Mesdames Sockwell, J. C. Upshur, G. Lou Biggers.

Georgia Club Leaders To Attend Meeting in Washington, D. C.

Club leaders from Georgia who will go to Washington this week to attend the meeting of the General Federation board of directors are Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, of Athens, recording secretary for the General Federation; Mrs. Albert M. Hill, of Greenville, state president of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Ralph Butler, of Dallas, General Federation director for Georgia. As one of the officers of General Federation, Mrs. Ritchie will be in the receiving line on January 18, when the board members will be entertained by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt with a tea at the White House.

Mrs. Sadie Orr Dunbar will preside over the sessions of this, the first board meeting of her administration as president. New legislation, new projects and new projects will be the order of the meeting. With the keynote of the administration, "Adjusting Democracy for Human Welfare," in mind, the chairman of the nine major departments will work to present their programs for the coming three-year period: "American Citizenship," Mrs. F. H. Clausen, Wisconsin; "American Home," Dr. Josephine L. Peirce, Ohio; "Education," Mrs. Wiley Morgan, Tennessee; "Fine Arts," Mrs. Carl L. Schrader, Massachusetts; "International Relations," Mrs. Frederic Beggs, New Jersey; "Junior Clubwomen," Mrs. David

S. Long, Missouri; "Legislation," Mrs. Gustav Ketterer, Pennsylvania; "Press and Publicity," Mrs. Fred R. Lufkin, Illinois; "Public Welfare," Mrs. Edwin Bevens, Arkansas.

Mrs. Roosevelt will be an honor guest and principal speaker at one session, her subject being "Clubwomen and Publicity." Their Responsibility to Democracy." The subjects of public interest and concern, including federal aid for education, will be discussed, both sides being presented by well-known authorities. Plans for the national council of the General Federation, to be held in San Francisco, May 8-14, will be presented by the chairman of the program committee, Mrs. Frederick G. Balz, of Indiana, and Mrs. Duncan S. Robinson, president of the California Federation, and Mrs. Edward Dexter Knight, of California.

There will also be plans for the post-council tour of Alaska. Instead of holding the sessions at the historic headquarters of the federation, which once was the home of General Nelson A. Miles, the sessions will be held at the Hotel Mayflower, beginning with a huge reception to which members of both houses of congress have been bidden, each invitation carrying the card of the General Federation director from his state. In addition, many others high in social and governmental circles are invited, the company averages numbering more than 1,000.

Clubwomen Will Assemble Here For Board Meeting February 2

By MRS. HARVIE JORDAN, State Federation Press Chairman.

On Candlemas Day, the second of February, the executive board of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs meets in Atlanta, and the prompt members who will be in their places in the Henry Grady hotel at 9:30 a. m. may see the members emerge from his hurried after he wakes from his winter sleep. If the sun is shining so that he can see his shadow, it is a sign that spring will be late, and Mr. Groundhog will go back to winter quarters for another six weeks nap. If the weather is cloudy and he sees no shadow, spring will be early, and he therefore remains in the open.

This is a modern version of a very ancient superstition according to which Candlemas Day in the church calendar is one of several "key days" of the year that presage the weather of subsequent months. Originally the prognosis was furnished merely by the prevailing weather, without reference to any animal. Rain or shine, February 2 will be a "key day" of Georgia Federation, and the deliberations of the executive session will largely determine the success of the months to come. Already indications point to a full attendance and those who wish to present resolutions have been notified to send them to the secretary, Mrs. A. P. Brantley, 51 Inman circle, Atlanta.

Each month as space permits, the official organ of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, The Clubwoman, carries brief letters of interest, information and inspiration to readers. Current issue prints a message from Mrs. Almeron W. Smith, chairman of federation extension, which every board member and individual clubwoman should ponder and absorb. If it reads "If," and says: "When one reads Mrs. Dunbar's message in The Clubwoman, G. F. W. C., when one studies the plans of the department chairman, there is one word in the English language that assumes tremendous importance, that word, "If."

"If" I will do this, "if" you will do that, our federation will grow in numbers, our power for good will increase, our plans will be successful. True it is that joining an organization indicates interest and good will. But does it solve you from responsibility for its success? We cannot all be presidents, directors and chairmen at once. We need members, active, progressive membership. We cannot all be one to make a motion, we need some to second and some to say "aye."

Demorest Club Hears Artists.

Demorest Woman's Club, at the January meeting, sponsored a piano and voice recital at Piedmont College auditorium. Music department, directed by Mrs. Allan Jones and Mrs. R. H. Philip, was in charge of the program. Guest artist was Miss Ruth C. Mendenhall, in another so great in significance. So, let us erase that word "if." Let us say, "I will" and "you will," let us assume our part of the responsibility for the fulfillment of the program planned. Let us resolve this January, 1939, that the bothersome "if" is to go.

College Park Club On Radio Program.

The College Park Woman's Club will be featured on the "Ace of Clubs" program on January 31, at 8:30 to 8:45 o'clock over radio station WATL. The program will consist of a discussion of what the club as a civic asset means to the community and what it means in its various activities to the individual clubwoman.

Rainbow Assembly To Install Officers.

Officers for Lebanon Rainbow Assembly No. 9, Order of Rainbow for Girls, will be installed Friday evening at 8 o'clock in the Capitol View Masonic temple, Stewart and Dill avenues. Mrs. Lessie Ulmer, worthy grand matron, Grand Chapter of Georgia, O. E. S., will serve as grand installing officer; Mrs. Geneva Foddrill, associate grand matron, Grand Chapter of Georgia, O. E. S., will be grand marshal; Mrs. Martha Simons, worthy matrons, Lebanon Chapter, O. E. S., will be chaplain; Mrs. Sara Belle Isle, junior past matron, Lebanon Chapter, O. E. S., will be recorder; Mrs. Gussie Tripp, past matron, Lebanon Chapter, O. E. S., will be organist; Mrs. LaVert Mitchell, soloist.

Officers to be installed are: Miss Dorothy Joiner, worthy advisor, who has also been recently appointed to the office of grand confidential observer in the grand assembly of Georgia; Miss Dorothy Brannon, worthy associate advisor; Miss Norma Foster, charity; Miss Mary Lynn Duncan, hope; Miss Jacquelyn Ross, faith; Miss Sarah Jones, recorder; Miss Mary Johnson, treasurer; Miss Jacquelyn Jaudon, chaplain; Miss Eleanor Webb, drill leader; Miss Dorothy Summer, the station of love; Miss Katie Stewart, religion; Miss Ruth Pruitt, nature; Miss Louise Spurlin, immortality; Miss Anita Eppinger, fidelity; Miss Mary Frank Phillips, patriotism; Miss Ruth Shepard, service; Miss Ruth Sane, confidential observer; Miss Jane Waites, outer observer; Miss Eloise Paschal, musician; Miss Bessie Mae White, choir director.

The newly elected mother advisor of the assembly is Mrs. Ruby Dodd and the board members are: Mrs. Sara Belle Isle, chairman; Miss Jessie Terry, Mrs. Onice Fitzgerald, Mrs. Eva Lyle, Mrs. Florence McGee, Miss Carolyn Stovall, Mrs. Martha Simons, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Jaudon, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Cathey, P. S. Stovall and S. H. Awtry.

Atlanta Rainbow drill team will give a drill after the installation.

The camel can travel three to six days without drinking mainly because it has chambers for water storage in the walls of its stomach.

MRS. W. L. REYNOLDS JR.

MISS LUCILE ALLEN.

MRS. GEORGE W. STONEY.

Mrs. Reynolds, whose marriage was a recent event, is the former Miss Mildred Brannon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Brannon, of Melbourne, Fla. Miss Allen's engagement to Charles R. Edwards is announced today by the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Lucy Allen. The date of the marriage and the wedding plans of the couple will be announced later. Mrs. Stoney, of Newnan, was before her recent marriage the former Miss Everlina Dyer, of Newnan. Mrs. Parker was before her recent marriage Miss Letha Herrington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Herrington, of Bellville, Fla.

Brenau College.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Jan. 14.—Midyear examinations will take place at Brenau College January 23-28. Registration for the second semester will take place January 30.

The Cotillion Club, of Brenau College, announces the election of the following new officers: Miss Rebecca Harrison, president; Miss Frances Kelley, vice president; Miss Ida Lightman, treasurer; Miss Dot Allin, secretary. The annual Cotillion Club dance will take place April 1.

Miss Lois Gregg Secor recently entertained officers of Alpha Chi Omega at dinner. Present were Misses Adel Jenness, Bette Grigham, Matha Tallant, Dorothy and Gerry Graham.

Misses Matalice Youmans, Leah Mosley and Bette Cassidy attended the concert of Philadelphia Symphony orchestra in Atlanta, Saturday. Misses LaTrelle Otwell, Rebecca Otwell and Matha Tallant will attend the President's ball in Cumming on January 28. Miss Elsie Pelton will attend the Tech midwinter dances in Atlanta February 1.

Miss Ann Alvey was recently pledged to Alpha Chi Omega.

Miss Anne Highsmith and Raymond Solomon, of Macon, attended Miller alumnae camp during the holidays. Miss Lenore Reichmuth recently worked on the staff of the Gainesville Eagle.

Misses Betty Lou Ford and Lucy Spurluck spent the week end with Miss Elizabeth Anne Hosch at the Hosch cabin, near Gainesville.

Miss Billie Wilkinson recently attended the Delta Sigma dance at Auburn College, Auburn, Ala.

Miss Margaret Hill is spending the week end in Atlanta, and will attend the Philadelphia Philharmonic orchestra concert. Miss Dora Ann Cordero, former Brenau student, recently visited Miss Anne Green Porterfield.

Miss Frances Rogers, Brenau '38, has returned to Gainesville to teach at Gainesville High school, after having taught for three months in Orange, Texas.

Jewish Council.

Mrs. Donald Oberdorfer, president of Atlanta section, Council of Jewish women, announces a "business and board" get-together luncheon at the Standard Club on January 16 at 12:45 o'clock. Reservations can be made through Mrs. Joseph Freitag, Dearborn 8731. Bridge and Mah Jong will follow the luncheon. Council members are invited.

Miss Fisher Bethothed to Mr. Crum

MISS EMILY FISHER.

LAGRANGE, Ga., Jan. 14.—Of interest to friends throughout Georgia is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Emily Elizabeth Fisher to Remer Hamilton Crum, of LaGrange, formerly of Cordele, made today by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Orr Fisher. The marriage will be an interesting event of February 11 at the First Baptist church.

Miss Fisher, only child of her parents, is a descendant of the Wakefields, Bonds and Jenkins, of Virginia and the Carolinas. Both her paternal and maternal grandparents settled in Franklin county, Georgia. They are the late Macena Shirley and Levi Branson Fisher and the late Millie Talulah Hemphill and Joseph Russell Ayers.

The bride-elect moved from Atlanta with her parents in 1924, and has since that time been prominently identified with the social life of this community. Following her graduation from LaGrange High school, she attended Shorter College, at Rome, and the University of Georgia, from which institution she was graduated with an A. B. degree, being a member of the Thalian Blackfriars' Drama-

Club and the Kappa Delta social sorority. Later, she studied at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, in New York city. She is a member of the LaGrange Cotillion Club.

Mr. Crum is the elder son of the late Judge and Mrs. D. A. R. Crum, of Cordele. His mother, the former Sara Florence Hamilton, was the daughter of Mary Whitehead and James Milton Hamilton, of Hawkinsville and Vienna. His paternal ancestors are the Mallettes and Crums, of North Carolina. Charles Crum, of Cordele, is his only brother, and his sisters are Mrs. T. G. Gleaton and Miss Lily Crum, of Cordele; Mrs. R. P. Moore, of Americus; Mrs. H. L. Daniel, of Cochran, and Mrs. R. C. Dickerson, of Eastman.

He attended Middle Georgia College, at Cochran; South Georgia College, at Tifton, and Georgia School of Technology. He is employed as agricultural engineer with the soil conservation service, and has for the past three years resided in LaGrange, where he and his bride will reside.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Frady, of Greenville, and is a graduate of Furman University.

Miss Elma Rheney and William Burkhalter were married at the North Augusta Baptist church Sunday afternoon, the Rev. R. N. Baird, of Iva, officiating.

Mrs. Lamar P. Collier, sister of the bride, and Lamar P. Collier, were the only attendants. A musical program was rendered by Miss Mary Linton, pianist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Rheney, of Wadley, formerly of North Augusta.

Mr. Burkhalter is the son of Dames' Club Meets.

The Emory University Dames' Club met recently with Mrs. H. B. Trimble at her home on Houston Mill road. A number of the professor's wives met with the "Dames."

Dr. J. Sam Guy, professor of chemistry at Emory, spoke on the recent developments of chemistry to practical housewife things. The club decided to give the students' husbands a party soon at the home of Mrs. J. Sam Guy, 1192 Ponce de Leon avenue.

Great Future Predicted for Tech's Helicopter

By LUKE GREENE.

Those air-minded "Men From Mars" may become jealous of Atlanta in a few years.

There's really no cause for panic in this prediction. Certainly there seems to be no danger of an invasion, despite the fact a radio broadcast had the whole nation trembling a few months ago.

But out at Georgia Tech they're developing a queer-looking little flying machine they call a helicopter. You might describe it as a cross between an airplane and an autogiro.

Experimenters say the helicopter has a great future. It can land in virtually any backyard. It can be operated by anyone with a yen for flying. And furthermore, the machine is designed to be fool-proof, eliminating fatal crack-ups.

W. Harry Vaughan, director of the State Engineering Experiment Station at Georgia Tech, says many business leaders have predicted such a machine has possibilities of forming the basis for an industry approximately one-third as large as the present automotive industry. And Georgia is the suitable location for that industry.

With the recent announcement that Georgia Tech will become a focal point in the government's new air training program, the possibilities of Atlanta becoming a great air center become even more encouraging.

The Georgia Tech helicopter design is the outcome of a general study of rotating wing aircraft begun four years ago at the Atlanta institution. The development has been carried on by the Daniel Guggenheim School of Aeronautics under the auspices of the State Engineering Experiment Station.

Right now, developers of the new machine are seeking federal aid for continuing their work with the helicopter in accordance with provisions of the Dorsey-Logan rotary wing aircraft bill passed by congress.

Only recently a booklet on "Helicopter Development" was published, explaining what has been done at Tech so far and what is outlined for the future.

The board of regents of the University System of Georgia already has been sufficiently convinced of the value of the helicopter project to have spent $22,000 on its development.

Montgomery Knight, professor of aeronautical engineering and director of the Guggenheim school, says the completion of the full scale flight test program should be possible in two years, provided a minimum budget of $25,000 per year can be obtained from the federal government. This would bring the total cost of the helicopter development to approximately $75,000, which is believed to be a reasonable sum for the evolution of an entirely new type of aircraft.

The booklet on helicopter development points out the advantages of the helicopter, as compared with both the airplane and the autogiro, are gradually becoming more widely appreciated, and it is obvious that an aircraft with such a wide range of mobility must inevitably become an important addition to the present military and naval air forces.

"The government is most fortunate at this time of critical international relationships, in being authorized to accelerate the development of this type of aircraft," the booklet declares. "Moreover, in addition to its military value, the helicopter offers much in the field of civil aeronautics, since its principle of operation should make it a much safer aircraft, particularly in the hands of the relatively unskilled pilot."

The helicopter is differentiated from the autogiro by a power-driven rotor. And the experimenters say one of the main factors which has retarded the development of the helicopter has been the difficulty of preventing the motor from turning the rotor and the body in opposite directions.

In the past, this usually has been accomplished by using two rotors turning in opposite directions, with a mechanical drive from the engine. However, this method results in excessive weight and mechanical complexity, and, although progress is being made in this direction, the results so far are not highly encouraging.

Although long known to science, the principle of operation of the Georgia Tech helicopter has not found wide use in other fields because of the peculiar conditions required for its efficient application. However, in the case of the helicopter, these conditions are largely fulfilled.

PRINCIPLE OF OPERATION.

The principle of operation is explained in the booklet in this manner:

"The principle used is variously called the Scotch turbine or Barker's Mill and its most familiar application may be found in the ordinary rotating lawn sprinkler and in pinwheel fireworks.

"In other words, the rotation of the rotor can be produced by the reaction of a jet emerging backward from the blade tips. By using an air jet, since air is available in unlimited quantities to the aircraft, the rotor can thus be driven at any desired speed, and since there is no mechanical drive between the rotor and the motor, no counter turning effect is produced on the body of the machine.

"In the Georgia Tech design, the air for the rotor jet is furnished by a blower of high efficiency geared to an aircraft motor, both of these units being mounted inside the fuselage. The air is pulled in through a scoop in the bottom of the fuselage, passed over the motor, thus cooling the cylinders, and then goes through the blower, from which it is forced through a duct into the hollow rotor blades and out through the blade jet."

Advantages of the Georgia Tech machine are enumerated as follows:

1. The counter torque on the body is eliminated and, consequently, a single rotor can be used.
2. The complete absence of heavy drive shafts and gearing, results in a structure which can be made unusually light.
3. The rotor is a "free wheeling" unit and hence clutches or free wheeling mechanisms are unnecessary, thereby further decreasing the weight and complexity.
4. The air, heated by the motor and by the slight compression in the blower, in turn warms the rotor blade as it passes through, thus furnishing an effective means of preventing possible ice formation which constitutes a grave danger in rotating wing aircraft.

The principal disadvantage cited in the method is the relatively low efficiency of this form of drive. However, it is pointed out that in an aircraft, weight is a vital factor in efficiency and the large reduction in weight made possible by this method more than compensates for the loss in drive efficiency.

Since problems of stability and controllability in rotating wing aircraft already have been solved to a large extent, the generally accepted methods will be utilized in this design. However, the experimenters believe helicopter operation can be further simplified by a combination of some of the controls. Such simplification will be incorporated in the Georgia Tech machine.

Here are some statistics on the helicopter:
Weight (fully loaded), 650 pounds; rotor diameter, 20 feet; power (engine), 100 H. P.; power (effective), 64 H. P.; number of rotor blades, one; overall length, 15 feet, 6 inches; overall width, 8 feet, 4 inches, and overall height, 7 feet, 8 inches.

SPEED OF HELICOPTER.

Furthermore, the helicopter will be capable of attaining a speed of 144 miles per hour with a gasoline economy of approximately 20 miles per hour.

To anyone who might be skeptical, here are the advantages of the single blade as compared with multi-bladed rotors:

1. Maximum reliability and safety.
 2. Extreme simplicity resulting in lower manufacturing cost and fewer parts to require maintenance.
 3. The elimination of the folding problem.
- Proof of the safety of the machine is shown by the fact its rate of vertical climb will be 1,680 feet per minute, while the rate of vertical descent in case of motor failure will be 40.5 feet per second.
- Since the beginning of the Guggenheim School of Aeronautics in 1930, the staff has been studying the various principles of flight from the standpoint of maximum safety in aircraft. In October, 1934, the school acquired a Pitcairn PCA-2 three-place autogiro and this machine, piloted by one of the members of the staff, was studied carefully over a period of about 60 hours of flying time.

A further account of the history of the helicopter is given in the booklet as follows:

"In embarking on this long-range program it was decided in the beginning to use both mathematical and experimental methods in developing an adequate theory of helicopter flight. This policy has been amply justified in practice for it has eliminated a great deal of wind tunnel testing which would otherwise have been necessary if the mathematical analysis had not been attempted.

"After an exhaustive study of all possible methods of driving the rotor, the jet drive was finally decided upon because of its obvious advantages and because preliminary computations indicated that it could be made to work.

"One of the requirements of the jet drive is a blower of unusually high efficiency. To develop this blower, a special laboratory was equipped and the axial flow or propeller type of blower was chosen for the work. . . ."

A one-quarter scale model of the complete machine has been tested in the wind tunnel to obtain the necessary experimental data for use in the performance calculations.

It is pointed out that tests thus far completed "are sufficient to lend authority to the performance calculations and to justify the belief that this new principle of helicopter operation is worthy of serious consideration and intensive further development."

Realizing that the acid test of any aircraft can be made only in flight, the experimenters propose to construct a full scale machine for actual flight. If tests prove successful, it is expected the helicopter will be ready for manufacture within two years.

Here are the steps that must be taken before flight tests can be made:

1. Wind tunnel tests to determine proper sizes of control surfaces.
2. Further laboratory tests to improve the efficiency of the duct system.
3. Design and construction of the single seater experimental helicopter.
4. Ground tests to determine mechanical reliability.
5. Ultimate flight tests to determine performance, stability, controllability and general ease of handling any safety in the air.

DEVELOPMENT TO DATE.

Referring to suggested government participation in the development of the helicopter, the booklet says:

"The development to date has been conducted by the regular staff of the school of aeronautics and the engineering experiment station and on that account has been rather slow since it has been necessary to utilize the part-time services of graduate students and of the model maker and mechanics—all of whom have other work to perform. The project is now at a stage where this progress could be greatly accelerated by the addition of several full-time workers in the drafting room and the shop to concentrate on design and construction of the full scale machine.

"For this reason it seems wise to approach the federal government with the hope of obtaining some of the funds made available through the Dorsey-Logan bill."

If helicopter development continues as planned, it may not be long before every backyard in Atlanta will become a potential landing field and one Atlantan will be saying to another:

"May I borrow your helicopter? I want to run down to Macon for a few minutes."

"Sure, help yourself. It's out in the backyard. But be careful and don't get tangled up in any trees."

A bottom view of the helicopter model show the landing gear.

From this front view of the helicopter model may be seen the small frontal area and clean aerodynamic design.

COLONIAL TREASURES IN ATLANTA HOMES

By ELWYN de GRAFFENRIED.

"Don't you come 'round here no mo' less you 'give a signature!'" That is how Liza throws over big words when strangers unannounced appear at Miss Ellen Peters' door. For though houses go and filling stations come, serenely Miss Peters stays on at her home, 358 Parkway drive, tending her garden of iris and roses, while faithful Liza keeps dusted the possessions of her mistress—things from the past, held dear not by right of purchase, but by blessed inheritance.

Until a year and two decades ago a big, friendly residence stood at the corner of Forrest avenue and Jackson street. Like a lady too large on a carpet too small, this ample looking dwelling covered all but a wee strip of well-kept lawn that lay flush with the right-angle sidewalks. Behind the wisteria-covered piazza the Peters family lived and moved during the gay nineties. The parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Peters, were people of sentiment. Consequently, what their forebears had loved they loved also, thus from attic to cellar this comfortable home held treasures from Colonial days through the Victorian.

Came the fire of 1917, and family silver, old glass, spinning wheels, spool beds and china became ashes at the falling of a spark! Yet, all was not destroyed, for in every crisis there is someone who shows presence of mind. And on this occasion it was Mr. Peters' eldest daughter, Miss Ellen, who rolled a big, antique table piled high with family relics all the way down steep Forrest avenue to a place of safety.

Soon, out of the Peters' charred treasures, a broad-eaved, flat-roofed bungalow sprang up like a brown little mushroom. This time, however, it faced not Forrest avenue, like the big house, but Jackson street, new-named Parkway drive.

Before appearing at her door, we "made a signature." We telephoned. "Yes, I will tell you about my things," said Miss Peters, "though I don't like publicity," came this timid voice over the wire.

Into her dining room we followed our hostess. Here a picture of watermelons hangs over a Hep-plewhite sideboard. "This was painted 150 years ago," Miss Peters said.

"And still they look luscious!" We exclaimed, being better versed in summer hams than art. "Who did it?"

"It was painted by my great-grandfather, Thomas Peters, when he was a young man of Philadelphia," she replied. "He crossed the Delaware with Washington." From an old portfolio our curly-haired hostess drew out a copy of Leutze's "Washington Crossing the Delaware."

"My ancestor was not in the boat with Washington and the flag, but in the one where those horses are," she explained. "Here is my proof." Miss Peters then showed us a letter, written on the fly leaf of the "Troop Book," by-laws of the Philadelphia Troop of Light Horse, of which Thomas Peters was one of the 6 members who volunteered to serve Washington.

In this patriot's own handwriting are the following words: "On crossing the Delaware I leaped my horse too soon out of the boat, and got very wet, with a blanket coat in which I was obliged to remain till after the battle (Trenton) by which I was disabled by inflammatory rheumatism."

Later, this youthful melon-painter so distinguished himself fighting the Hessians that he was given the post of commissioner of prisoners by General Washington. When peace was declared, however, the soldier and hero discarded cocked hat and heavy gun to follow a more natural bent. He established a country residence, "Woodlands," just out of Baltimore.

Miss Ellen Peters, seated at a table at which George Washington ate a hearty breakfast before an open fire in the home of her great-grandfather, is holding a framed letter written by the "Father of Our Country" to Thomas Peters on February 9, 1787.

"In those days my great-grandfather Peters and General Washington corresponded frequently," said Miss Ellen.

"Why?" she was asked.

"Well," she answered modestly, "they were friends. Besides, both owning similar estates, they exchanged not only letters but seeds. Here is a signed letter from George Washington, which, as you see, demonstrates how interested our first President was in crops."

On the wall of the living room is a framed letter addressed to Thomas Peters, Esq., dated, Mt.

Vernon, 9 Feb., 1787, and signed "George Washington."

"My father had fully two dozen letters from General Washington, but all were sent to Mount Vernon save this one."

We commented upon a charming round-top table near by, its slender legs and delicate inlay strongly suggestive of powdered wigs and knee breeches.

"There is a true and interesting story about this table," remarked Miss Peters, running her small hand over the satin surface. "The day General Washington planned to stop on his way to Baltimore and see my great-grandfather Peters, the roads were so muddy that instead of arriving in time for breakfast, when he was expected, his coach did not draw up at Woodlands until well into the middle of the morning. Nevertheless, my ancestor insisted that his friend be served a hearty meal, so this very little table was drawn up before the fire and the father of our country sat before it and ate a late breakfast."

The beautifully grained mahogany dining table has come down to Miss Peters from great-aunts, the former Misses Peters, of Baltimore. Madame Jerome Bonaparte, a sister-in-law of the Emperor Napoleon Bonaparte, many times ate at the table in Baltimore after her return from France.

At supper, one of the guests admired the beautiful grain of her mahogany table. "I inherited this after the fire. It also has a history," said Miss Peters, her gentle brown eyes soft and glowing in the candle light, for when urged, she does enjoy talking about her "things."

"Madame Jerome Bonaparte sat at this table. It came to me from my father's sister, who inherited it from her aunts, the Misses Peters of Baltimore. In the early 1800's, my great aunts' schoolmate, the beautiful Betsy Patterson, of Baltimore, married Jerome Bonaparte, the Emperor Napoleon's brother. After many eventful years spent abroad, Madame Bonaparte returned to her girlhood home. Not caring to keep house, she came to live with the Misses Peters, her former schoolmates, who, having suffered financial reverses about that time, took her in as a 'paying guest.'"

There were more thrills after supper, for Miss Peters brought out some colonial costumes. Among them were her great-grandfather's white satin waistcoat, hand-embroidered, his still bright rhinestone knee buckles and a slipper buckle to match. Down through the years they had come, through war, past fire, by death, even, to one who knows their value and has proven herself worthy to inherit them.

Paderewski, Piano Playing Statesman, Turns Back to the Keys of Poland's Freedom

MORGES, Switzerland.—(P)—Aged Ignace Paderewski, who devoted his musical genius and his fortune to win independence for his native Poland, is again ready to forsake his piano to play the great organ of politics.

As the shadows of Nazi German conquest grow darker over his beloved homeland, the pianist-composer has placed himself at the disposition of the Warsaw government.

At 78, he has signified a burning desire to help fight German designs on the Ukraine, a territory which includes his birthplace of Korolowka.

Paderewski, who abandoned his art to work for the liberation and unification of his country during the World War, always has called himself "first a patriot then a musician."

Despite his bitter fight with Polish politicians, which cut short his career as premier of Poland, Paderewski has told his friends he is again ready to give his life and his fortune for his native land.

With his renewed interest in politics has come a renewal of his old-time physical vigor. After two years of semi-seclusion, forced upon him by a nervous depression, Paderewski returned to the concert stage early this fall in England. A series of ten concerts brought him triumphal success.

Today Paderewski leads a comparatively strenuous life. His spacious villa, with Mont Blanc in the background, sees the great musician practicing his music, superintending his greenhouses and his chicken farm, entertaining his hundreds of friends, playing bridge late into the evenings.

His 80-year-old sister, Madame Antoinette Wilkonska, directs the 15 servants who keep order in his large house. His head gardener, Etienne Dolejal, is the brother of one of Poland's most prominent politicians and is one of the world's most highly-medalled gardeners in his own right.

Paderewski has the habit of early rising, principally, he says, so he will have time to dress slowly and carefully before 8 o'clock breakfast.

He spends his mornings strolling his spacious estate.

From noon until 3 o'clock he practices his music. At 3 o'clock comes lunch, followed by an hour spent reading a dozen newspapers in French, Polish and German.

Although he protests, doctor's orders make him nap until 5 o'clock when he again returns to his piano for another three hours.

At 8 o'clock dinner is served, always composed of Polish dishes. Bridge follows or discussion with friends from Geneva, Lausanne, or with house guests continually dropping in from nearly every country of the world.

Every Sunday the master's friends and neighbors are bidden to a reception. A huge table, laden with wine and Polish cakes, is placed in the center of the living room. Paderewski makes it a point of honor to exchange at least a few words with every one present.

Among Paderewski's closest friends is Joseph Turczinski, director of the Polish National Conservatory, with whom Paderewski is collaborating on a new edition of the works of Frederick Chopin, the earlier Polish genius.

At 78, Ignace Paderewski is again ready to forsake his piano to aid his beloved country. He has placed himself at the disposition of the Warsaw government with a desire to help fight German designs on the Ukraine.

But . . . "My deepest interest in life lies with my country," says the aged musician. "We have many neighbors, some enemies, and Poland is not yet safe."

SHRINE TO U. S. CONSTITUTION DEDICATED AT AUGUSTA

By NORMAN CHALKER.

Augusta, birthplace of constitutional government for Georgia, dedicated a shrine to the United States Constitution on the 151st anniversary of Georgia's ratification of the document that guarantees protection of man's inherent rights for citizens of the United States.

The shrine, located in the city courtroom of the Richmond county courthouse, contains a photostatic copy of Georgia's ordinance of ratification. The reproduction was made from the original, which now is preserved in the archives of the Federal Department of State in Washington.

It was presented to the city of Augusta a year ago, when Augusta celebrated the sesquicentennial of the ratification by Georgia of the Constitution. The copy is a gift to Augusta from William W. Brewton, who served as director of the United States Constitution Sesquicentennial Commission for Georgia.

Also included in the shrine are copies of the original draft of the United States Constitution and the Declaration of Independence. Photographs of all the men who signed the Constitution at the meeting of delegates from the 13 states in Philadelphia also are included in the shrine.

Simultaneous with the dedication of the shrine, two bronze tablets, paying tribute to the signers of the Constitution and the members of the Georgia ratification convention in Augusta, were unveiled.

The tablets are on two gigantic granite pillars that support a wrought-iron gate leading into the grounds of Richmond county's more than a century old courthouse.

This gateway has been named "Constitution Gate," and is located directly south of a granite shaft that marks the graves of two of the three Georgians who signed the Declaration of Independence: Lyman Hall and George Walton.

Button Gwinnett, third Georgian who signed the Declaration of Independence, is said to have been buried in an unmarked grave somewhere near Savannah. He died from wounds he received in a duel with General Lachlan McIntosh.

Augusta's shrine to the Constitution will be completed April 30, the 150th anniversary of George Washington's inauguration as first president of the United States.

At that time copies of the four most famous paintings of the first president will be placed in the shrine. These are the Gilbert Stuart, Charles Wilson Peale and Jean Antoine Houdon portraits, and the painting of General Washington in full Masonic regalia.

Coinciding with Augusta's celebration of the 150th and 151st anniversaries of Georgia's ratification of the Constitution of the United States was discovered the fact that, while there were 11 counties in Georgia in 1788, when the ratification convention met in Augusta, delegates from only 10 counties attended the session.

Distant Franklin county, located in north Georgia, named John Gorham, Thomas Gilbert and Jesse Walton as its delegates, but they did not arrive until after the Constitution had been accepted unanimously by the other delegates, and the ordinance of ratification was being speeded to Philadelphia.

Other delegates to the convention, whose signatures appear on the ordinance, were John Weat, president of the convention and delegate from Richmond county; W. Stephens and Joseph Habersham, Chatham county; Jenkins Davis and N. Brownson, Effingham county; Edward Telfair and H. Todd, Burke county; William Few and James McNeil, other Richmond county delegates; Florence Sullivan and John King, Wilkes county; James Powell, John Elliott and James Maxwell, Liberty county; George Handley, Christopher Hillary and J. Milton, Glynn county; Jared Irwin and John Rutherford, Washington county, and Robert Christmas, Thomas Daniell and R. Middleton, Greene county.

Because of the illegibility of J. Milton's handwriting, many history books carry his name as Mason, instead of Milton. When the photostatic copy of the ordinance was made and enlarged, the characters that compose the name were brought out more legibly and it was determined that the correct name is Milton.

Judge Gordon W. Chambers, judge of the city court of Richmond county, is one of Georgia's most ardent students of the Constitution.

Much of the enthusiasm that was injected by Augustans into the celebration of the Constitution sesquicentennial and the dedication of the shrine, can be traced to his undying zeal and continuous study of America's most valuable institution.

When the shrine was dedicated on January 2, he spoke thusly of the Constitution:

"The Constitution creates no rights, it protects and preserves those rights inherent in man by the grace of God, which the power of Caesar shall not take away. The Constitution is the democratic direct expression of the people and to be changed must be submitted to the people, while statutes or legislative acts are the indirect expression of the people through legislators.

"Physically, the Constitution of the United States of America is four sheets of parchment about 24 by 28 inches. There are 4,259 words on those four pages but those 4,259 words were more powerful than the gray army of the Confederate States of America and the blue army of the republic combined. Shatterproof in their fixity, they are a shield against imprudent haste, intemperate impulse, party doctrine, dictatorial programs and, last but not least, against government itself. Those words constitute the chart by which our ship of state sets its compass and sails on toward the harbor of destiny with a firmament of stars reflecting the glory of the heavenly bodies.

Augusta, capital of Georgia when the United States was born, was most distant of all the state capitals from Philadelphia, where the Constitution was drafted by representatives of the 13 states that formed the nucleus of the United States today. Yet, in spite of its distance and the meager travel and communication facilities that were available, Georgia was the fourth state to ratify, and one of three to do so unanimously.

Joseph B. Cumming, president of the Georgia Bar Association, who spoke at the ceremonies dedicating the shrine, declared that Georgia's ratification had much weight on the decision of other southern states to become a part of the Union.

Georgia might well be called the mother of constitutional government for the southern states.

Judge Gordon W. Chambers, chairman of the Augusta Constitution Sesquicentennial Commission, examines the photostatic copy of the original draft of the United States Constitution in the Constitution shrine recently dedicated in Augusta. Center top, is a reproduction of Georgia's ordinance of ratification. The two portraits are of Abraham Baldwin and William Few, Georgia representatives who signed the Constitution. The pair of the shrine not shown in the photograph contains a copy of the Declaration of Independence and photographs of the other signers of the Constitution. (Photo by Ed Bernd.)

Here's How Major Leaguers Spend Off-Season

The sharp eye that won the American league batting championship for Luke Appling, Chicago White Sox shortstop, is providing birds and other game for the Appling table during the winter. He is shown at right of Travis, taking the field with his favorite dog. Hunting is his preferred off-season pastime.

Baseball Players Find Many Avocations

By BILL MUNDAY.

DIVERSIFIED would be the one-word descriptive if one should contemplate off-season avocations of major league baseball players. The idea, generally prevalent, that the big-time pitchers and others who toil defensively for strikeouts and offensively for base hits, respectively, enjoy their hibernating as "loafers" is without rationation, according to Nolen Richardson and Bill Daly. Nolen, you know, is the star shortstop of the Cincinnati Reds and Bill Daly, former Cracker and University of Georgia trainer, is operator of a local health club.

"From city chores to farming, to politics, to vaudeville, and back again, the boys go," explains Nolen.

"Take me, for instance—hometown boy, product of Tech High and the University of Georgia. I spend my winters—and have for the last nine years—as a floor-walker for a large local department store. I find that the work keeps my legs in condition. On my feet practically every second during working hours, I feel that I need no further exercise. Because a ball player's life is no longer than his old 'dogs,' I keep them in shape. That's why I've lasted as a professional since 1926."

And Nolen is still going strong! "Perhaps," Nolen muses, "the most unusual array of lads who grab the extra nickles during the interim is Pepper Martin's Mudcat band, which tours the country—and with high stakes, too—at leading vaudeville houses."

"The outfit consists of Martin, third-baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, maestro; Bill McGee, also of the Redbirds, who works on the saw; Lon Warneke, Cubs' pitcher, who puffs on the jug (empty, to be sure), and 'Frenchy' Bordagary, outfielder, now a Red, but in days gone by a Cardinal, who Lionel Barrymores and Edward Arnolds on a harmonica."

"Jim Weaver, elongated Cincinnati chunker, is in politics. Running for sheriff in his home town of Covington, Ky."

"Joe Gordon, second-sacker and hero of the Yanks' third consecutive World Series conquest last year, is a student at the University of Oregon, studying physical education and coaching."

Gordon, by the way, along with Richardson at Newark two years ago, established an International league record for double plays—179 in 154 innings.

"Now we have our arbiters in football and basketball, too," Nolen says. "The men who decry the dumbness of umpires in the summer become the nemeses of performers during the winter."

"There is 'Red' Rolfe, third-sacker of the Yankees. Referees and coaches basketball around his domicile—Boston. Ben Chapman, outfielder of the Cleveland Indians, who headquarters from Birmingham, Ala., for football and basketball refereeing assignments."

"In our profession we have businessmen, also."

birds I feel almost as though I were starting all over again. The best observer may make mistakes when he gets into an unfamiliar locality.

The greatest problem for the beginner is to learn the names of the birds correctly. When one goes walking with a naturalist of years of experience it is quite puzzling how he is able to tell many of the birds at a glance. But the puzzle is solved by experience. The bird books have excellent advice on how to go about identifying the bird you have seen. But, try as you may, you are bound to make some mistakes at first. I still do sometimes. But they are fewer as the years go by.

We must guard carefully against mistakes, for an unintentional error is as bad from the standpoint of scientific truth, as a deliberate one would be. The bird student should make truth his highest ideal, and never be satisfied until a truth proves that it is really true.

Joe DiMaggio, the outfielder who is the most valuable piece of plunder the World Champion Yankees have—not excepting Lou Gehrig—is a prominent restaurateur in San Francisco. Frank McCormick, spheroid plastering first-baseman of the Reds (he swatted out 209 hits and drove in over 100 runs last season), is a salesman in the men's furnishing department of an Ohio store.

"Jim Bagby Jr., son of the venerable hurler who won 31 games and a World's Series for Cleveland in 1920 and then a pennant for Atlanta in 1925, is proprietor of a filling station here. Jim Jr. will be recalled as the Boston Red Sox rookie who was called upon to face the most difficult task of any big tent flinger last year—a debut on opening day against the New York Yankees, before a frigid Beantown crowd. He answered the call admirably. And won!"

Stellar Catcher in Dairy Business.

"Ray Hayworth, stellar Detroit Tiger catcher, conducts a large dairy business in North Carolina. And then we have Tommy Bridges, the wee Detroit twirler, formerly of the University of Tennessee, whose monetary-pursuing chores carry him into a tobacco plant in his native state."

"The lad who was baseball's No. 1 hero last year, pitching two no-hit games consecutively, Johnny Vander Meer, sells automobiles around New Jersey. Meeting with great success, the Red left-hander writes. Freddie Sington, ex-Cracker outfielder, now Brooklyn Dodger, also is engaged in vending the vehicles, right here in Atlanta."

"Carl Hubbell, of the Giants, doubtless the outstanding southpaw slab ace of baseball today is

One of the first things Joe DiMaggio—above—Yankee outfielder, did upon returning to San Francisco in October, was to check up on the business of his fish groffo. And it appears to be more of a task to operate an adding machine than to judge fly balls.

To the left of DiMaggio, is Johnny Vander Meer, last year's baseball hero Number One, who sells automobiles around New Jersey when baseball is over.

MISTER Hubbell when you contact him these days ament oil business out in Fort Worth, Texas.

"Now we have our hunters and fishermen, too, but all are engaged in some private enterprise. Luke Appling, Atlantan who cavorts at short for the Chicago White Sox; Spurgeon Chandler, north Georgia and Yankee twirler; Lew Riggs, third-baseman of the Reds; Loyd and Paul Waner, outfielders of the Pittsburgh Pirates; Johnny Mize, first-baseman of the Cardinals, who hails from Demorest, Ga.; Johnny Rizzo, Pirate outer-gardener; Wesley Ferrell, pitcher of the Yankees, and Rudy York, Detroit receiver of Atco, Ga. Rudy farms a bit, incidentally, as does Cecil Travis, Washington shortstop, of Fayetteville.

"Cow-punchers are on our roster: Namely, Ernie 'Chief' Koy, Brooklyn outfielder, who ranches on his mother's estate in Texas, and Bill Hershberger, second-string Cincinnati catcher. He tosses the ropes at irate steers in California."

"But when it comes to real hibernation," the Hon. Bill Daly waxes, "let me cite the case of Walter Gilbert, who used to play third base for Atlanta, later going to the Brooklyn Dodgers, where he proved a star. Walter, now manager of Superior, Wis., coaches football at a junior college in Minnesota, then when the season ends, disappears. His terminus and winter abode is in Minnesota near the Canadian border, 12 miles from the nearest outpost. There, snowbound from civilization, he roughs it in his log cabin, emerging only to kill the moose and deer necessary for human sustenance."

Tractor Preferred to Auto.

"As for a conscientious boy, let us consider Whitlow Wyatt, from north Georgia. Leading moundsman in the American Association last year and sold to Brooklyn, he was given a day by his home club, Kansas City, and in addition to money—cash in hand paid—was offered an automobile. Think he'd accept it. Not on your life. Instead, he chose a tractor. Said his father needed it on his farm and he'd try it out this winter."

Johnny Hill, for four years Atlanta's third-baseman, who, as a draftee, joins the ranks of the Boston Bees this spring, is a sawmill operator at Douglasville, according to Bill.

"Johnny manages to put in a few plugs hunting," Daly reports, "but in the main he's a business executive at that sawmill. And a good one."

Umpires pursue conditioning during the winter, strange as it would seem to those irate fans who, during season, brand them as "blind, pudgy, old-maidish and just (without an effort at polysyllabic orthography) plain dumb."

This fact was gleaned from Mr. Daly. "Yes, they do," he laughed. "Give 'em credit for effort." Steamboat Johnson, dean of Southern league umpires and doubtless the best of the lot in the minors, conscientiously works every day. He solicits business, I understand for some trucking company, and during the winter months I hear he walks mileage the equivalent distance thereof from Nashville, Tenn., to Ponce de Leon park and return."

THINKING IT OVER

By LEONORA RAINES.

So vodka, the "fire water" of Russia, switched off during the Great War for economic and patriotic reasons, is entering American ports. Russians say the drink is cheap, easy to make, that its effect does not soon wear off. In the past, vodka-soaked cossacks and peasant helped keep Russia near the end of the illiteracy line in the western hemisphere. Vodka comes to us with no great letter of introduction!

I am wondering if the drink bears any resemblance to the two other famed European beverages—absinthe and anisette, both drawn from the same weed, both as tasteful and malodorous as paregoric-asafetida. I had one memorable meeting with absinthe, an encounter I could never forget. Even at this late date the fumes and flavor of the drink creep back into my nostril and palate.

Every newcomer arriving in France wanted to know something personally of absinthe, just as he thirsted for sights on boulevards and paintings at museums. When the glamor of Paris was wearing off, our party, composed of several foreign women, compared notes and found the next step on the calendar was a taste of absinthe. Quite ignorant of the drink, he had heard wicked things of it, but that did not lessen its value or prevent our aiming to get on a mild debauch from its effects.

A quart bottle of the green-yellow liquid was bought, the investment not mentioned to acquaintances in the hotel. That evening after remaining in the drawing-room the usual length of time after dinner, we repaired to our rooms to put the drink to its rigid test. Doors were barred to keep away too sociable neighbors. When all was in readiness and we were sure other pensionnaires were comfy in bed, the battle, with glasses, spoons and sugar, was brought forth.

The absinthe was poured precisely as we had seen it poured over sugar and spoon in cafes. One of the imbibers made a wry face as it touched her throat. Another took a big gulp and declared it was crude asafetida. Our first half-glass was a dismal failure, but the better half was begun, everyone hoping stimulation or a reasonable thrill would bubble to the surface. Nothing happened but nausea—the sort that comes after a good breakfast and sudden choppy waves of the ocean.

For safety, one of us had put the key of the suite away after having locked the door. The key was taken from its hiding-place, returned to the lock. Then we went to bed, a disappointed lot. The strength of the absinthe kept the entire bunch awake all night.

None of us wanted to look at the half-empty bottle in the morning. The big suite was permeated with the insinuating odor and when the maid brought coffee and rolls, she was not allowed into the rooms. Getting rid of the bottle was not so easy, either. We dared not pour out the stuff, for then the tell-tale fumes would call for explanation. The absinthe was on our consciences all day, and in the evening two of our party sauntered out for a stroll, the bottle hidden away under my coat. Reaching a dark corner, when no one was passing, I placed the bottle in a shaded niche of the sidewalk and we hurried off.

What Has Happened To Justice?

Nora Fuller, Like Martin Girl
Went to Doom Seeking Work

By PETER LEVINS.

The tragic murder of pretty Margaret Martin, of Kingston, Pa., calls to mind many cases in which young women were lured to their deaths in much the same way that she was. Like her, they left the security of their homes and their families in the expectation of getting work. Like her they found themselves delivered into the hands of monsters.

On Saturday morning, December 17, a man who said he represented an insurance firm telephoned the office of a business college in Wilkes Barre. He said he wished to hire a stenographer. Among the graduates recommended to him was Miss Martin, 19-year-old daughter of a mine foreman. She had been an outstanding student at the college.

A few minutes later the girl was summoned to the phone at the home of a neighbor. (The Martins had no phone.) When she turned to her own home she told her mother that she was to meet her prospective employer at a nearby intersection—he seemed uncertain about how to reach the Martin home.

MARGARET FAILS TO RETURN

"I'll be right back," she said as she left for the meeting place, about 300 yards away. "I'll bring him here."

An hour passed, and she did not come back. The mother sent another daughter, Helen, to the intersection. There was no sign of Margaret. Finally Mrs. Martin informed the police, and a nine-state alarm was sent out.

Four days later Anthony Rezikon, 19, was setting traps for muskrats in lonely Market Hollow, 11 miles south of Tunkhannock, Pa., when he saw a human hand protruding from a mass of cloth lying in two feet of water. This was Margaret Martin discovered.

The nude body had been tightly trussed in a burlap bag. The features were not marred but there was a knife wound in one thigh and she had been slashed across the abdomen. There were finger marks on the girl's white throat. Examination showed that she had not been criminally assaulted.

Major William Clark in command of the state police in that region, said the crime seemed to be that of a sex maniac. Other investigators believed that she had been kidnapped by a white slave ring and then slain when the chase became too hot.

Margaret Martin had been a chaste girl, and this circumstance was cited as a possible cause of her death. In Catholic churches throughout the region she was eulogized at Christmas masses as a "martyr."

Bishop William J. Haffey, in St. Peter's Cathedral at Scranton, praised the dead girl as one who "preferred to lose her temporal life than to soil her soul with deathly sin." Through that preference, he said, she "became a martyr rather than how before the onslaught of immorality."

He expressed hope after the service that "this horrible incident may serve to warn other girls who face similar peril."

On another Saturday morning many years ago in San Francisco 15-year-old Nora Fuller shouted gleefully to her mother that she'd gotten herself a job as a nursemaid. The postman had just delivered a postcard addressed to Nora. It read:

"Miss Fuller:
"In answer to yours in response to my advertisement, kindly call at the Popular Restaurant, 55 Geary street, and inquire for John Bennett at 1 o'clock. If you can't come at 1 o'clock at 6."

"Be sure and tell him you've had lots of experience with babies," Mrs. Fuller warned. "What with all the youngsters in this family, I'm sure it's the truth."

It was a typical winter day, bright and windless. The date—Saturday, January 11, 1902. Nora put on her best dress, planning to reach the restaurant at 1 p. m. Her mother suggested that she eat her lunch first, but the girl replied that an apple would do her for the time being.

Nora had been gone about an hour when she telephoned to say that she wouldn't be coming home because Mr. Bennett had engaged her and wanted her to go to work at once. "I'm at Mr. Bennett's house now," she informed a brother. "Tell mother it's 1500 Geary street."

Mrs. Fuller fretted a bit when she got the message. "What's the child thinking of?" she exclaimed. "She's got her best dress on and no change with her."

The brother remarked that Nora sounded as if she had caught cold. "I thought she was mad about something, too," he added.

"Well, I'll soon find out about that," said Mrs. Fuller.

But she searched the telephone book in vain for a John Bennett at 1500 Geary street.

"Maybe they've just moved there," she reasoned. "I do hope Mrs. Bennett will give her some aprons to protect her dress."

The mother stopped worrying for the time being. But as day after day passed, with no word whatever from Nora, her fears mounted. Finally, on January 14, she called at the Mission street police station.

"I want you to tell me where I can find a Mr. John Bennett, who has a baby," she told the desk sergeant. "Mr. Bennett hired her to take care of the baby, and now I can't find out where she is."

The officer listened to her story. "Now I don't think you need to be worried," he reassured her. "Like as not the girl got the street names mixed."

However, as a matter of routine, a detective called at the Popular Restaurant.

Nobody there could tell him where Mr. Bennett lived. As a matter of fact, nobody had known who John Bennett was until a few days before. The proprietor, F. W. Krone, remembered that a man had asked him to send a young girl to his table if she came in at 1 o'clock and asked for him. "The man had been eating here for the past five years," said Krone, "but I'd never heard his name before."

Bennett had returned to his table and sat facing the entrance. He seemed impatient. Finally he got up, paid his bill and went outside, where Krone could see him pacing up and down. The waiters had noticed him pacing, too.

No one remembered seeing the girl come in. Apparently they had met outside and gone off together.

A search of other restaurants and pool rooms turned up many men who had known Bennett, although none knew him by that name. To them he was known as Tenderloin, from his habit of never eating any other kind of steak. Tenderloin, they said, was about 40, fairly short and heavy-set, wore a mustache and dressed well at all times. He seldom spoke to others, being always quiet and reserved.

THE WEEKS PASS; NO SIGN OF NORA

This description exactly fitted that of the man Nora Fuller had gone to meet.

No other haunts of this quiet creature could be uncovered. What he did, where he lived, and what his real name was, no one had ever taken the trouble to find out.

Meanwhile more than two weeks had passed since Mrs. Fuller went to the police. Still no word from Nora. Still no trace of her. When officers suggested that perhaps the girl had grown tired of her poverty-stricken home, and gone where life was easier, the mother waived that theory could not be true.

"Nora wasn't that kind of a girl," she sobbed. "Something tells me I'll never see her again in this world!"

On January 27 the police appealed through the newspapers for information about the vanished girl, and her present whereabouts. Would Mr. John Bennett, or Tenderloin, or whatever his name was, kindly come forward and state who he was and what he was doing?

Our story now cuts back a bit—to early January, when a man appeared at the offices of Umbson and Company, real estate agents, and stated that he wanted to rent a house at 2211 Sutter street. To the assistant who interviewed him he seemed quite a gentleman, nor a clerk, nor even a laborer.

"I'm a newcomer in San Francisco," he replied, "and I don't know a soul in the city."

"That makes it rather difficult," said the assistant. "However, if you are willing to sign a lease and pay a month's rent in advance, I think it can be arranged."

This the stranger willingly agreed to do. The lease was signed on the spot by "C. B. Hawkins," who volunteered the information that he was staying with his wife at the Golden West hotel. Meanwhile, he hoped that the house would be made ready for immediate occupancy.

Then he took the keys and left.

Two weeks passed, and then on January 22 Umbson & Company received a report that the Sutter street house had not been occupied by the new tenants. Somewhat astonished, they telephoned the Golden West hotel—only to learn that no "C. B. Hawkins" had ever been registered there.

The real estate agents reasoned that there might have been a mistake in the name of the hotel. They decided to do nothing further until the first month expired on February eighth.

That date arrived without a sign of the new tenant. So Umbson & Company sent a clerk, William Dean, to inspect the house before they again added it to their rental list.

Dean found the window shades down when he arrived. A pile of newspapers littered the front door. Dust covered the steps and porch. A general air of desolation brooded over the house.

The clerk knocked loudly on the door several times, then unlocked it with a master key.

He saw at once that there wasn't a stick of furniture anywhere on the first floor.

Dean mounted the stairs. All the upstairs doors opened upon empty rooms—all but one.

MAKES DISCOVERY, SUMMONS POLICE

This room was at the back of the house. The door was closed. Dean pushed it open, and a few moments later he was calling wildly to a police officer in the street.

"There's something dreadfully wrong in that house back there!" he panted. "It was so dark I couldn't see very well. But there was some bright object lying on the floor."

The officer hastened into the house, and into that room. He rolled up the window shades.

Now they could see. On the floor lay the nude body of a fair, young girl, long dead.

Thus was Nora Fuller found.

She had been struck on the head, then strangled. The face and body had been horribly mutilated with a sharp knife—though whether before or after death could not be determined. There had been no criminal assault.

The "bright object" which Dean had noticed on the floor was a gay little shirtwaist. Her suit had been neatly folded over the back of a chair; her hat, shoes and underwear had been laid on the chair.

The identity of the victim was established through the description of the clothes, and also by Nora's hair and teeth. Moreover, the autopsy revealed bits of apple in the stomach. It appeared, also, that she had consumed a small amount of whisky just before she died.

Detectives carefully went over the house, seeking clues to the motive as well as to the murderer. They noted that the entire furnishings consisted of a bed, a mattress, two sheets, a quilt, a blanket, and a chair—all in the room in which the body was

MR. 1939-LOOK TO YOUR HATS!

By LEE ROGERS.

Warning! To all gentlemen! The well-dressed man of 1939 will have 12 hats in his wardrobe.

To be perfectly groomed at all times during the day and evening he'll need that many from which to choose Atlanta's hat and style experts disclosed the other day.

Mr. Chic should have had the dozen hats available this year or last year or even before, but maybe he hadn't been advised. The hat stylists hadn't made their exhaustive survey of men's hat needs then, so ignorance might be recognized as an excuse.

Fact is, most the hat men will readily agree the number might be reduced to six if a wise selection is made.

This hat news will alarm most men-about-town. The hat store clerks disclosed that most Atlanta men have only two hats—one for dress and the other a knockabout.

Some foolish youngsters (like the writer) have no hats at all. Some say it's collegiate. Others say it's healthful.

The hat men can cite quotations from doctors saying a man's hair stays with him longer if he protects it with a hat. That contradicts the old adage about wearing a hat in the house making a man bald.

But even as he delivered his spiel about youngsters endangering their health by going hatless, one executive at an exclusive hat store confessed:

"If I didn't sell hats, and if I didn't have two children, I'd like to go around without a hat, too. You're only young once."

But that line of chatter didn't last long.

He was back on the salesman's spiel:

"To the myriads of people a man meets, the attention zone of his appearance is centered between his Adam's apple and the top of his hat."

Off-hand you tell the salesman he's crazy. Twelve hats are too many. But these hat men are pretty smart.

"To the casual public eye," he bursts out, "the man's hat is at least 50 per cent of his personality, because it flatters his face (or doesn't), but the hat men don't say that)... reveals his taste and judgment... and reflects his position in life."

"A man's hat can do more (or against) his appearance than any other one item of his clothing."

For the average man of affairs Atlanta's hat authorities reason 12 basic hats will answer—his requirements on all occasions. These hats will vary from season to season in style, color, finish, trim and dimensions of brim and crown, but they will still retain the characteristics which make them basic types of hats.

Atlantans are funny people when it comes to buying hats, it was learned. Seasons mean nothing to most of them. But that depends on the individual. Some men buy hats every two or three weeks. Others think once a year is often enough.

Some Atlantans never think about hats except in the spring when merchants advertise the Straw Hat Season has begun or in the fall when these same merchants put ads in the papers telling men it's time to buy a new felt because cold weather is coming.

In every hat shop there is a man who can tell you all about hats, what should be worn when and where and all the other vital details so often overlooked by the average man who thinks he is well-dressed.

They all tell much the same story. Here it is as told by one:

For late fall and early winter, the well-dressed man will want a Homburg, a derby and off-the-face hat, a snap-brim felt and a knock-about sports hat for daytime wear.

The Homburg was originally designed in the 90's for King Edward VIII and named after his favorite vacation resort. It's aristocratic curl-brim has had a striking modern revival as one of the smartest hats for town wear. The derby is a "must" in every well-planned wardrobe. It can be used for dressy day wear at business with top-coat or overcoat, and can be worn in the evening about town. However, it's never proper with a dinner coat.

The off-the-face hat provides contrast to the Homburg and derby yet is more formal than the easy-going snap-brim. The snap-brim was never used for business dress until 1925. Now it's the most popular all-round informal hat. Sports hats must be chosen according to personality. However, the Tyrolean is in great favor at the present time and looks smart with rough tweeds through the hard looks of country wear.

With the social season now in full swing, the man-about-town must give some thought to evening wear, when after seven each night will find him in dinner jacket. That's when a black or mid-night blue soft hat is proper. For tails and the formal daytime cutaway, the high silk hat remains indispensable. And don't forget the folding opera hat for the evening theater, party or dance.

Though spring and summer seem a long way off at present, we might as well have a look at the styles and proper hats for those seasons of the year.

The light-weight felt is the in-between-seasons hat for wear without an overcoat. Several hats of this style in a variety of colors are chosen by some men.

That leaves only three hats necessary to complete the sartorially correct hat wardrobe. They are for summer and resort wear.

The straw sailor, the Panama and the semi-sports straw.

"In town, no hat is dressier for summer wear than the straight-brim sailor, in fine sennit or China-split straw, particularly with colored band to harmonize with the costume. It is also approved for semi-formal summer evening wear in fine sennit or China-split straw with a black band," the style book says.

For mid-summer days when the costume calls for a hat with more informal lines than the sailor, the Panama is an enjoyable change. With narrow black band, it is also good-looking and correct for wear with summer dinner jacket or mess jacket.

The semi-sports clothes of summer demand semi-sports straws. They are practically weightless and are made of Hanoki, Bangkok Leghorn and other tropical straws.

But while the experts say 12 hats are needed, Mr. Average Man probably will continue to make a selection that will include many less than the dozen.

At the right you see the 12 hats the well-dressed man should own, according to the stylists. Top, left to right, the folding opera, the Homburg, the derby, the high silk. Middle row, black soft hat, the snap brim, the off-the-face hat, and the sports hat. Bottom row, the Panama, the straw sailor, the semi-straw and the light weight felt.

WHAT IS YOUR PET PEEVE?

By ROBERTA LYNDON.

What is your reaction in general towards people who drive cars as if they were the only people behind steering wheels? ... to people who use theaters and concerts to catch up on their conversation? ... to people who don't even bother to say, "wrong number" when you answer your phone? ... to trolleys which thunder past your window at what seems disgracefully frequent intervals? ... to people whose presence is usually heralded by clouds of cigar smoke? ... to people who don't get your name quite right? ... to a house full of carpenters, painters, etc?

If your reply is, briefly and conclusively, "Not so hot," you agree with several prominent Atlantans who give these first place.

Bitsy Grant, prominent young Atlantan, who has been an important factor in putting Atlanta in bold letters on the athletic map, lost no words in cataloging his pet peeve.

"Dumb drivers," he said emphatically, and went on to explain, "People who never let you know what they're going to do, who never signal when turning a corner, or who, when they do signal, use the wrong sign."

"People who talk at concerts and at the theater," Mrs. Harold Cooledge states, is the thing she finds most annoying.

Head of the Atlanta Music Club, Mrs. Cooledge has been busy the past weeks planning and working on the many varied activities of that organization for the coming season. And her interest in music, the enjoyment of it to its fullest extent, gives her all the grounds in the world for an "official" peeve which would get away from any direction.

Mrs. E. D. Rivers, Georgia's gracious first lady, finds herself in the midst of confusion and flurry ... so much, in fact, that a pet peeve has to give way to a very immediate annoyance, that of keeping house and keeping one's disposition while the Mansion is being remodeled and redecored.

"Carpenters, painters and plans are keeping me too busy to think of any other annoyances," Mrs. Rivers says. "And now I'm right in the midst of it all!" ... a conglomeration of peevish details, but fortunately temporary.

Dean Raimundo de Ovies was trigger-quick with his reply; someone must have annoyed him in just that way a few minutes before.

"To tell you the truth, I'm not very peevish as a usual thing," Dean de Ovies says. "But the thing which annoys me most of all is for a girl to call on the telephone, get the wrong number, realize that my voice is not 'his' voice, and without answering my 'hello,' drop the phone back on the py their heads stay in the clouds, Mrs. Pierre Howard, who until very recently was Caroline Ridley, found the weeks just before wedding crowded with details about clothes, house furnishings and other quite-down-to-earth matters. "So I've plenty of peevish," says Caroline, "but I can easily single one out: cigar smoke in the room." And one of her wifely duties will be to see that Pierre sticks to cigarettes.

The Howards came home from their honeymoon to their own home in Claremont Estates ... and Caroline says that she has probably "been a peeve herself" to her friends who perhaps think she believes hers is the only white brick house with green blinds in Atlanta. But who wouldn't be that proud of that home? "And equipped," she finishes, "with plenty of ash-trays ... cigarette size!"

Mrs. Minnie Hite Moody, prominent Atlanta author, answers near the end of one of her well-known sonnets, which in itself would be enough to annoy even the most patient of sonnet writers. "To be called Miss Moody," she replies, apparently not at all annoyed at the interruption.

And this is followed closely by the annoyance she feels at having her two daughters referred to as twins, because they dress alike.

Mrs. Moody's peevish disclose her inner self; that in spite of her successful career, she is "Mrs." Moody, and the mother of two lovely daughters who are NOT twins.

Generally speaking, all wives hate for husbands to be late coming to dinner; all employers hate secretaries who lose their shorthand pads; all dates hate to be kept waiting; all drivers hate to be stopped by anything as insignificant as a red light ... And what is your pet peeve? You might sit and fill your next vacant half-hour figuring it out. Do you get annoyed more easily before breakfast? After a too-heavy lunch? In crowds? Around the first of the month? You might even devote an hour to making your own decision.

MRS. PIERRE HOWARD.

hook. Because," Dean de Ovies finished, "I possess an abnormal curiosity!"

And certain powers of deduction, we should say, to have his annoyance figured out as well as that.

Miss Jessie Hopkins, head of Atlanta's Carnegie Library, who recently returned from the war zone in Europe, replies concisely: "Noise," and then goes on to specify, "irritating and unnecessary noises which interfere with a Sunday afternoon nap; honking of automobile horns and trolleys which almost drown out the radio."

Miss Hopkins names two others which she thinks are pretty general: "People who chew gum loudly and people who hum incessantly."

"Dem Was De Bes' Days Niggers Ever Knowed," Says Ex-Slave

By EMMA GAILLARD.

From the expression of "Aunt Sarah's" face she thinks it futile to try to engage the attention of these two great-grandchildren of her "Young Mistus," and they, too, are a bit bewildered—much more attracted to her face than to the pictures in the book that the cameraman insists she show them while he gets a snapshot from their great-grandmother, Mrs. Emma Thompson Whelchel, of Gainesville, who is anxious for a picture of her two great-granddaughters with that of Aunt Sarah, one of the few survivors from slavery days.

Iris and Jennie are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Luck Pond, of Detroit, who with their parents, recently paid a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Whelchel.

If these two little girls could possibly understand the meaning of "slave," realize Aunt Sarah's position in the family and the relation of mistress and slave in the pre-war south, they would indeed cast aside their picture book, exclude everything that interferes with engraving on their memory the picture of this dear old negro who bears the name of her once-master and who is still loved by his descendants, even to his great-grandchildren.

Aunt Sarah was only a little three-year-old girl when "Ole Marse" bought her from the slave block, paying $1,500 for her. When he returned home with this baby "Ole Mistus" said, "This child is too young to be sent to the slave quarters. I'll put her at the foot of my bed to sleep."

Of course no one ever disobeyed the orders of "Ole Miss," and Sarah was kept in her room until she was old enough to join the slaves, and treated, as she says "Jes' de same as if Ah was one uv her own chilluns."

This exmistress and slave were play-fellows "endurin' uv de wa'" and slept in the same room—the white child in the bed with her mother, the slave child in a trundle bed, rather than away off in "the quarters."

The "Ole Marse" and "Ole Mistus" of this slave child were the late Colonel and Mrs. O. B. Thompson, of Hall county. It is said that Colonel Thompson was reprimanded by his wife for having paid so much for Sarah at the first outbreak of the War Between the States, but he contended that it was not too high a price for so exceptional a child; particularly in view of the fact that "The Confederates are going to win—we can't lose. Don't you know we can't?"

After the defeat of the Confederate Army, when the slaves were given their freedom, many of the blacks chose to live on with "Ole Marse and Ole Mistus," and put their all into the struggles of rehabilitation. As Sarah says, "Couse'n Ah stayed with my mistus. Ah didn't have no ma an' pa whut Ah knowed uv an' no folks nuther to go to er tum fer me. Den, too, my ole Miss was jes' as good to me as she wus to her own chile. Yes, couse'n

"Now yoo knows Ah's er nigger when dese hyar younguns is mah young mistuses great-gran' chilluns."

Yes, Mam, dey's purty chilluns. En you tell me young mistus gran' chile married er Yankee? Well, well, whut wud Ole Marse en Ole Miss say ter dat? Yes, der Pa's er nice lookin' man but Ah's too ole er nigger ter ferget whut all we uns went fru wid, couse'n dem Yankees—but dey sho sot us free."

Mrs. Emma Thompson Whelchel, of Gainesville, Ga., whose husband, the late Judge Whelchel, was ordinary of Hall county for years, is the only surviving child of the late Colonel and Mrs. Ovid Brown Thompson, of Hall county.

The children, Iris and Jennie Pond, are the grandchildren of Judge and Mrs. Benjamin Palmer Gaillard Jr., of Gainesville, Ga., and of Mr. and Mrs. Clarke Pratt Pond, of Philadelphia.

Comedies and Gangster Films Are Current Movie Choices

Cagney Plays Big Racketeer at Fox, Joan Bennett Is Fugitive at Grand

By LEE ROGERS,
Motion Picture Editor.

The law violators and the comedians have commandeered the screens in Atlanta this week and several sprightly films are the result.

You'll go a long way before you see better acting than James Cagney does in "Angels With Dirty Faces" at the Fox. It's a gangster film. Fredric March and Joan Bennett turn in a bit of box-office work at Loew's Grand.

As for the others, "Blondie" with Penny Singleton, is the Rialto's comedy and Charlie Chan returns to the Capitol with Sidney Toler doing a good job in the title role. The Roxy is long on the stage show side but the picture is only moderate. If you missed the technicolor "Kentucky," you can still catch it at the Paramount.

'Angels With Dirty Faces' Features Cagney, O'Brien, Dead End Kids.

More than the usual amount of action and comedy are combined with a good social welfare lesson to make the Fox theater's "Angels With Dirty Faces" stand out from the usual run of gangster pictures—and particularly the ones in which the "Dead End Kids" have been cast.

James Cagney and Pat O'Brien are co-stars, marking the sixth time these stars have been cast together. The last was "Boy Meets Girl," the picture in which they helped the little blonde comedienne, Marie Wilson, to stardom. They've lent help this time to red-headed Anne Sheridan.

The story of "Angels With Dirty Faces" is that of a big shot gangster, his boyhood pal who has now turned priest, his girl, and the gang of hoodlum kids who worship the gangster as a hero.

Cagney surpasses his former gangster portrayals. He's as hard as nails, but then that is what the public and the Dead End Kids expect. Pat O'Brien is the priest, who hasn't forgotten how to use his fists. Miss Sheridan the girl.

Cagney, while trying to protect the anti-crime crusading priest from certain death, is forced to kill his double-crossing partners. There is an elaborately staged gun battle between the gunman and the police, which is ended when O'Brien boldly walks unarmed into the building and comes out with Cagney.

Sentenced to die and while on the way to the electric chair, Cagney is begged by O'Brien to forget his pride, his hardness, and to die yellow so as to help save the gang of kids who worship him from having a similar fate. The gangster refuses then but at the chair he begs for life in a highly emotional scene. The audience is left to imagine whether he was doing a last favor for his old friend, the priest, or whether he did turn yellow.

Joan Bennett, as Brunette, Gets Applause at Grand.

No one, especially men, should complain of wasting a quarter and two hours after seeing "Trade Winds" at the Grand.

The plot will not win any prizes for novelty or originality, but the cast is excellent and the lines good. The widely traveled Tay Garnett does the directing and carries the story to all parts of the east—Honolulu, Japan, Shanghai, Singapore and near-by islands.

Joan Bennett is beautiful as a blonde but in "Trade Winds" she is a brunette—and even more beautiful. She bears a striking resemblance to Hedy LaMarr, to give an idea of how beautiful she really is. Fredric March is a detective and has a way which overwhelms women.

Joan is charged with murder and escaped to Honolulu. Fredric is sent to capture her, but falls in love with her. The story has a chance to end happily with the two on an island uninhabited by whites, but does not. They must return and Fredric must prove Joan's innocence before it ends, the same way all movies do.

Ralph Bellamy has a role similar to that in "The Awful Truth" and several succeeding pictures. He is a dumb detective. A woman drunk is usually disgusting and sloppy, but Ann Sothern plays one in a clever and amusing way. Joan Bennett is prettier than Hedy LaMarr.

Another Good Stage Show Is Offered At Roxy; Foster Girls in New Dances.

New routines by the Gae Foster Rockettes, and a variety of magic, comedy, music and dancing are featured on the Roxy stage. The screen attraction is "Shadows Over Shanghai," a story of spies in the Far East.

The Gae Foster girls, who really dance well, are good looking, do intricate routines on roller skates and dance the "Boogie Woogie," newest dance sensation at the New York Cotton Club. In the feature spot this week are Doyle and Donnelly in an act called "Late for Ziegfeld Follies." It combines comedy, dialogue, singing and dancing in a clever manner. This team wrote the song hit, "Cottage for Sale."

In the No. 2 spot, Allan and Lillian Croel handle a midgepiano in tricky fashion to win applause. "Rathburn's Revels" gives good variety, presenting Vernon Rathburn with his saxophone, Pete King, tap dancing, Irene Blynn, songstress, and the Loveloy Sisters, doing dance routines. Then there is a magic act in which Howard Brooks is starred.

"Shadows Over Shanghai" stars Jimmy Dunn with Ralph Morgan helping greatly with his support. It is a story of a White Russian girl and an American photographer who marry because it is easier for the girl to get around on the American passport. She involves the man in a fight with Japanese espionage heads when it is discovered she holds the secret key to huge Chinese war fund in San Francisco.

Penny Singleton Portrays 'Blondie' In Comedy at Rialto.

For the third consecutive picture, the Rialto is offering honest comedy. This time it's the film version of Chic Young's "Blondie"—a comedy not quite up to the standard of "There's That Woman Again" however.

It's a hard role for any actor or actress to play—portraying comic characters but Penny Singleton, former musical comedy star, makes a good Blondie and Arthur Lake as the young dumb-bell husband, Dagwood, does as well as could be expected with the assignment.

However, it is the four-year-old Larry Simms, as Baby Dimppling, and his dog that are the most amusing. Considering the baby's age, he does an excellent job of acting.

The story finds Dagwood mixed up with a gold digger from the office. Blondie's suspicious and financial and domestic worries pile up in amusing fashion. The casting director has done a fine job in finding persons who look so much like the characters Chic Young draws. For a light comedy, "Blondie" is okay.

Charlie Chan (Sidney Toler Now) Returns to Capitol Theater.

The jittery Charlie Chan fans can sit back easily once again. The long-awaited "Charlie Chan in Honolulu," which finds the Chinese detective for the first time portrayed by someone other than the late Warner Oland, who made the character famous, comes to the Capitol theater this afternoon and the entertainment afforded is up to the old caliber—with Sidney Toler, the new Chan, even resembling Oland.

Toler will encounter a little difficulty in overcoming the public's fancy, but if the performances keep up to the quality exhibited in the current attraction, moviegoers, rather than Chan enthusiasts, will forget the different "hero."

'Kentucky' Is Held Over by Paramount; 'Ride a Crooked Mile' Opens Tuesday.

"Ride a Crooked Mile" is an unusual title for a film and customers will find it an original story. Akim Tamiroff, who scored first in "The Buccaneer," gives another excellent characterization. It opens at the Paramount Tuesday.

This is a melodrama that, while nothing extra in the form of entertainment, will not leave you with a disappointed feeling.

In the picture, Tamiroff portrays an ex-Cossack who turns cattle rustler in America. The irony of it is that his son is a policeman and is forced to arrest his father. The remainder of the film concerns the son's efforts to free his father without sacrificing his duty.

Ray Milland, who planned to stay in Europe until February, will return to Hollywood soon to start working in his next assignment, "Beau Geste." He will get back in time for the first preview of his latest picture, "Hotel Imperial."

James Cagney shows the Dead End Kids how to be tough. He's giving a lesson in basketball tactics here. They are featured with Pat O'Brien in "Angels With Dirty Faces" at the Fox.

Akim Tamiroff again claims attention for his character acting in "Ride a Crooked Mile," the Paramount feature opening Tuesday.

Wallace Beery is co-starred with Robert Gleckler for the first time in "Stand Up and Fight," now playing at the Rhodes theater. He has the role of the hard-driving, two-fisted unscrupulous manager of the Bullet Transportation Line in a story of the battles between the stage coach companies and the early locomotives. Taylor works for the railroad.

Self-Folding Seats Now In Rialto

It's the New Rialto theater now, Manager W. T. Murray announces.

The new comes from the fact, the theater building has been completely done over and new automatic folding seats have been installed, both in the orchestra and balcony.

These new seats are described as the "body comfort" type, shaped to conform with the natural body and fold back automatically when the patron arises. This permits added space, coupled with the fact the rows are farther apart, when patrons get in and out.

The new boxoffice is located on the corner of Forsyth and Luckie street and is accessible from either street.

Hollywood Actresses Forget Pride, Chase Men Stars in Current Films

By SHEILAH GRAHAM.
HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 14.—Women are doing the proposing in pictures. Of course, they have always done it in real life (sometimes so non-secretly that only the man is in the dark). But, until recently, the movies preferred to depict the lady as waiting bashfully for the man of her choice to pop the question.

The new screen love tempo is beautifully, or should I say brazenly, demonstrated in "Zaza." Claudette Colbert does everything except use a shotgun to get Herbert Marshall's interest. She is no lady, you understand, and her campaign question to marry on the marriage question (Mr. Marshall, the card, happens to be already married, and the father of a bouncing girl—in the picture.) But, in this particular case, it is not marriage that Claudette is after—at least not in the beginning—only the man. Which means or less follows the pattern of real life—first, we must get the man in marriage—eh, girls?

To get back to the movies. Recent and future films to show women chasing men include "Gunza Din" in which Joan Fontaine follows Douglas Fairbanks Jr., all over India. (P. S. She does not get him.) Wendy Barrie has better luck with Chester Morris in "Pacific Liner." Her job of nurse, and his as ship's doctor, gets her every chance to follow through and stampee him to matrimony.

Ann Southern After March. Wait until you see the man-chase performed by Ann Southern on Fredric March in "Trade Winds." The more Fred runs away, the less chance he has of escaping the ruthless Miss Southern. Unfortunately for Ann's prospects of becoming the celluloid Mrs. March, she is the tiniest bit too obvious—and, as we all know (with personal bitter experience), no man will stand for that.

Here is a strange something—Madeline Carroll, who is so blond and so beautiful, actually has to voice the marriage proposal in "Paramount's soon-to-be released 'Café Society.' The man is Fred MacMurray, who, in real life, also happens to be very bashful where the determined sex is concerned.

Bette Davis, who chased after Henry Fonda to the most shameful degree in "Jezebel," is more diplomatic but just as ruthless with George Brent in "Dark Victory." Bette discovers that the "other woman," Geraldine Fitzgerald, has been to see Mr. Brent. She is naturally jealous and cunningly leads Brent to declare his love for her by telling him that the girls were on the point of fighting over him. This is one swell way to flatter the male ego. There is something about two females fighting over him that makes a man sprout imaginary feathers and swoon with rapture. (I know what I'm talking about—I had three years of writing a daily love column—and the tales I was told!)

One of these days, I am going to ask Jack Benny whether he proposed to wife Mary Livingstone—or vice versa. In the movies, he is typed as the man who leaves the fatal question to the women he loves. In his current "Artists and Models Abroad," Jack loves Joan Bennett, but hasn't courage enough to tell her so. Naturally, Jack isn't stymied by this and makes Mr. Benny an honest man. In his previous "Artists and Models," Gail Patrick poses all the love questions to Jack, who does his bit by making the right responses.

Jean Arthur, who is usually a modest girl on the screen and waits patiently for the man to propose, is currently shadowing Cary Grant in "Plane Number 4." (Copyright, 1939, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

'FERDINAND THE BULL' OPENS FRIDAY AT FOX

Imagine the embarrassment of a bull fighter, all togged out in his most glamorous garb and ready to bedazzle Madrid's fair senoritas, when the bull sits down on its haunches in the middle of the ring and refuses to fight!

Such is the plight of the fighter in "The Story of Ferdinand," the best-seller which is currently on the screen as Walt Disney's "Ferdinand the Bull." It comes to the Fox screen Friday as an added attraction with Claudette Colbert's new picture, "Zaza."

Ellen Drew's First Film At Center

"Sing You Sinners," with Fred MacMurray, Bing Crosby and Ellen Drew, opens today for three days at the Center theater.

It is the story of a typical small-town family—a hardworking older brother, a good-for-nothing mother's pet, the kid brother and his brother's girl friend. It might be described as a comedy from poverty to riches.

"This Marriage Business," featuring Allen Lane, Vicki Lester and Victor Moore, plays Wednesday. The story concerns a small-town county clerk, famous for his "lucky marriage licenses," who eventually frees his community from the oppression of gangdom.

Thursday and Friday, "Boy Meets Girl," starring James Cagney, Pat O'Brien and Marie Wilson, is billed. This hilarious story is built around the antics of the irresponsible writers who plan to make the still unborn child of a studio waitress into a big motion picture star, and then succeed beyond their wildest expectations. The supporting cast includes Ralph Bellamy, Frank McHugh and Dick Foran.

"Racket Busters," with George Brent, Gloria Dickson, Humphrey Bogart and Allen Jenkins, plays Saturday.

THEATERS

New Techwood Opens Doors Thursday

Atlanta's newest neighborhood theater, the Techwood, will open at 7 o'clock Thursday. The Techwood will show outstanding productions at popular prices. It is located at North Avenue and Techwood drive.

Color and beauty are added with indirect lighting. The walls are constructed of special material for correct sound effects.

The opening program will begin at 7 o'clock with Deanna Durbin and Melvyn Douglas in the feature attraction, "That Certain Age." At 9 o'clock, there will be a short dedication program, in which the city's notables will participate.

'KING OF TURF' READY FOR CUTTING, EDITING

Edward Small's "King of the Turf," starring Adolphe Menjou, has been completed and is being cut and edited for early release. It was announced yesterday.

The cast in support features Roger Daniel, Dolores Costello, Alan Dinehart, Walter Abel, Harlan, William DeMarest and George McKay.

A new Charlie Chan takes the screen. Here we have Sidney Toler in his first picture portraying the Chinese detective, "Charlie Chan in Honolulu" opens this afternoon at the Capitol theater. Others in the cast include Phyllis Brooks, center, and Eddie Collins.

HOFFMAN TO GIVE RECITAL JAN. 27

Pianist Appears on All-Star Concert Program.

Josef Hoffmann, one of the most eminent pianists in the world, will be heard in recital at the municipal auditorium on Friday night, January 27, as the next feature of the All-Star Concert Series.

The program to be played by Hoffmann includes: "Harmonious Blacksmith" (Aria con Variazioni), Handel; "Pastorale e Capriccio," Scarlatti; "Moonlight Sonata," Beethoven; "Fantasia Impromptu," in C Sharp Minor, Op. 66, Chopin; "Nocturne" in B Major, Op. 62, No. 1, Chopin; "Carnaval," Opus 9, Schumann; "Waldesrauschen," Liszt; "Liebestraum" in A Flat Major, Liszt; "Mephisto Waltz," Liszt. One of the largest audiences of the season will hear the great pianist, all seats having been sold except special seats to be placed on the stage.

Francis Lederer, appearing currently in "Midnight," plans to leave shortly for New York where his wife, Margo, is appearing in a play.

Atlanta Music Notes

The January evening musicale of the Atlanta Music Club will present a gala program of ensemble numbers at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday night at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium. Entrance is by membership card, although individual tickets may be obtained at the door.

The program will feature a group of the city's brilliant artists. These are J. T. Pittman and Tom Brumby in two-piano numbers, and Haskell Boyter, baritone; Stanley Perry, tenor, and Myrtis Trimble, soprano, in vocal duets and trios. Mrs. Charles Chalmers will be at the piano for the vocal numbers. Lillian Rogers Gilreath is chairman of the program. Mrs. Harold Coledge is president of the club.

The program will open with Mr. Boyter and Mr. Perry singing "The Angel," Rubinstein; two Tenor folk songs, arranged by Caracciolo, "From Far Away" and "A Flight of Clouds," and "The Ring," by Dvorak.

The first two-piano group, presented by Mr. Pittman and Mr. Brumby, will offer "Presto," Handel-Getting; the "Scherzo," from Piere's Concerto No. 1, and the finale of "Concertstucke," by Weber.

The second group of songs includes "Passage-Bird's Farewell," Hildach, and "The Fugitive," by Dvorak. Myrtis Trimble will join Mr. Perry and Mr. Boyter in "The Magnificat," from Saint-Saens' "Christmas Oratorio."

Mr. Brumby and Mr. Pittman will close the program with "Coronation Scene," Moussorgsky-Patti; and "Rumbolero," by Gould.

East Point Music Club. The East Point Music Lovers' Club, recently organized, will give its first program at 8 o'clock Tuesday night in the main auditorium of the East Point Methodist church on North Church street.

Mrs. Rochelle Weldon is chairman of the program, which will present a group of talented members of the College Park Music Club. This club is sponsoring the East Point club.

Mrs. E. E. Mulvaney will sing a group of songs; Mrs. T. J. Peniston will play several piano solos, and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Wall will contribute a group of vocal duets.

At a recent organization meeting the following officers were elected: Mrs. Martha Weldon, first vice president; Frances Peacock, second vice president; Charles Carden Snow, third vice president; Mrs. E. H. Skinner, recording secretary; Noble Weather, treasurer; and Billie Gray, corresponding secretary.

Ballet Caravan in Debut. Ballet Caravan, that company of outstanding American dancers, whose founder and director is Lincoln Kirstein, will make its Atlanta debut at 8:45 o'clock Saturday night in the Erlanger theater. The concert will be a presentation of the dance concert series, of which Hazel Roy Butler is manager.

Lincoln Kirstein was primarily a writer until 1926, when he founded the Ballet Caravan, although he had studied ballet at all the leading ballet schools in Europe and under most of the world-renowned dance masters. He is famous for his encyclopaedia, "Dance," which is an authority on every phase of the dance.

Kirstein felt that in America there was no distinct ballet style and, aware of the outlet for creative talent in an American company would furnish not only dancers, but composers and painters as well, he organized the Ballet Caravan. Their success in two seasons' existence has been phenomenal. The company is composed of 20 young men and women.

The effect that the Ballet Caravan has had on American musical composition is already a matter of record. Virgil Thompson, Paul Kowalew, Elliott Carter Jr. and Robert McBride, all turned their talents to composing for the caravan.

Thompson, whose ballet, "Filling Station," will appear on Saturday's program, first won fame for his score of the modern opera, "Four Saints in Three Acts," by words by Gertrude Stein. He has recently written musical scores for several films.

Paul Bowles wrote the music for "Yankee Clipper," which had its premiere when the Caravan was guest attraction with the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra. Bowles is an avowed devotee of the Caravan and describes his trips to many foreign lands.

Aaron Copland, who composed the music for "Billie the Kid," is well-known to symphonic audiences the country over. He was recently commissioned to write a major symphonic work by a broadcasting network.

Dance Concert Series will present two other attractions, both also on Saturday night: Martha Graham and her company on February 25, and Harold Kreutzberg and his company on February 26. These concerts will be at the Erlanger theater.

Annual MacDowell Festival. The annual MacDowell festival will be held in Atlanta January 24 through 28. This unique festival was founded by Evelyn Jackson, prominent Atlanta musician, and has always been sponsored by the Georgia Federation of Music Clubs.

More than 60 performers from all parts of the state, and some out-of-state musicians, will present the series of programs. The Young Artists Club and the Student Guild, both divisions of the Atlanta Music Club, each will present one of the programs.

Delegates to the festival and honor guests will attend the concert by Josef Hoffmann Friday night, January 27. Junior performers will give the programs on Saturday morning and afternoon.

The choir of St. Luke's Episcopal church presented the "Saint Cecilia Mass," by Gounod, in concert form at the chapel at the University of Georgia in Athens last Thursday night. Hugh Hodgson, organist of the church, and director of the choir, directed from the piano. Mozelle Horton Young was at the organ.

This presentation was one of the Thursday night concerts which have become a tradition at the university and are overwhelmingly popular.

Soloists were Minna Hecker, soprano; Margaret Fisher, contralto; Eddie Drummond, tenor, and Coleman Kimbro, baritone.

The choir sang brilliantly, interpreting the work with religious fervor and at the same time adoration of the beautiful in music

In E Minor." Following this Miss Leftwich will play Cesar Franck's "Prelude, Chorale and Fugue."

Mrs. Stukes' group includes "My Lover Comes on the Ski," Clough-Leigher; "The Last Song," Rogers; "The Sappho Ode," Brahms; "Ausmeingrossen Schmerzen," Franz, and "Der Asra," Rubinstein.

Mrs. Weems will play "Nocturne," Boulanger, and "Danse Espagnole," de Falla-Kreisler.

Miss Leftwich will close the program playing "Allendeau," "Gavotte" and "Musette" from the First Suite by D'Albert; "Rondo," Hummel, and "Viennese Waltz," Friedmann-Gartner.

Stephen Foster Memorial.

The erection of a musical memorial to one of America's best-loved composers will be started this winter on the banks of the southern stream he immortalized in song. The man is Stephen Foster and the river the Suwannee.

The memorial amphitheater and carillon tower will overlook the stream at White Springs, Fla.

Construction of the 75-bell carillon, largest ever built, has begun. The 25-ton musical instrument, which will be four months in construction, will be loaned to the Florida state exhibit at the New York World's Fair for the duration of that event, before being permanently installed in the Foster tower.

The bells will be electrically operated by an automatic player utilizing rolls similar to those of a player piano and also by a keyboard. Foster's melodies will be played each day.

The memorial to the composer, including the huge carillon, is the gift of the Florida Stephen Foster Memorial Association, a division of the Florida Federation of Music Clubs. Total cost of the memorial and carillon will be about $350,000. The sum is now being raised in a nation-wide subscription by lovers of Foster's music.

High School Orchestra. The In-and-Out Atlanta High School Orchestra is rehearsing more concentratedly than ever on the program which they are to present under the baton of Dr. Joseph E. Maddy, guest conductor, at the city auditorium on the night of February 9.

Rehearsals are being held every Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock at Commercial High school.

Dr. Maddy will arrive on February 8 and conduct rehearsals in the afternoon and night of that date, and a final rehearsal on the morning of the 9th.

In addition to the orchestra, other features of the program will be a junior violin choir and a senior high school chorus.

Officers of the orchestra are Herbert Karp, president; Russell Ellis, vice president; Lester Rumble, secretary; Bill Landrum, treasurer; Janice Oettinger, reporter, and Norman Ley, business manager.

Honor Award.

Wilbur Rowand, dean of the school of music of Shorter College, writes of an honor award that will be granted the student in the music department who does the most outstanding work in applied music for the year, or shows the best promise of development.

The recipient of the award will be selected by the music faculty and the name announced on commencement day.

The award is made possible by the courtesy of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, and the interest of that school in the department of music at Shorter. The award consists of a scholarship in applied music, with an artist teacher, for the six weeks' summer session of the Cincinnati Conservatory.

Program in Rome. The Rome Music Lovers' Club will meet with Mrs. W. F. Barron on Wednesday.

Mrs. Allen Battle is the program chairman.

Mrs. C. C. Ashworth will give a talk, "The Violin." Mrs. Ross Bosworth will give the "Current Events."

Works of Massenet and Godard. The Thomaston Music Study Club, Mrs. Bethel Ingram, president, gave a program from the works of Massenet and Godard at the January meeting. Mrs. Cleve Kelley was the leader. Mrs. A. Arrington and Mrs. Emory Holland were the hostesses.

Papers on the composers were read by Mrs. Kelley.

Solos were contributed by Mrs. J. C. Jones Jr., Carolyn Andrews, pianists; Mrs. W. O. Britt Jr., soprano; Mrs. Lamar Hinson, violinist, and Martha Redwine, reader.

A vocal trio consisting of Mrs. W. E. Adams, Miss Harriette Crawford and Mrs. W. C. Powers gave a selection.

The Planets--Your Daily Guide

By BERNICE DENTON PIERSON.

Bernice Denton Pierson, eminent astrologer, has prepared this forecast in brief for a handy reference convenient to Constitution readers. This guide will aid you for it indicates the most auspicious time to begin any new endeavor, whether it be business, social or domestic.

JANUARY 15--SUNDAY: The day is divided into two very different periods, quite the opposite of each other. Previous to 2:09 p. m. will be slow, dull, and is not an auspicious time for new and important undertakings. After 2:09 p. m., is a time for speed in undertakings, when people will be filled with energy and enthusiasm.

JANUARY 16--MONDAY: This morning until 2:08 p. m. is the time to engage in work that has an element of attractiveness and beauty. New outfits bought now, work dealing with clothes, and beauty parlors should be very pleasing. Between 2:08 p. m. and 9:23 p. m. contacts with older people, dealings in land, work with conservative people, and in stable institutions should prove of mutual benefit. After 9:23 p. m. is likely to bring friction, and lack of co-operation.

JANUARY 17--TUESDAY: New beginnings today are apt to be lifted suddenly out of one situation into another. People are likely to be filled with nerves, in a hurry. Serenity is lacking.

JANUARY 18--WEDNESDAY: Make the most of opportunities presented today, or go out after opportunities. Previous to 3:25 p. m., you can profit through the advice of others, in religious matters, in affairs at a distance, and in study. After 3:25 p. m. favors travel, interviews, correspondence, and is a good time for making favorable changes.

JANUARY 19--THURSDAY: Unusual developments in your affairs may be presented previous to 12:39 noon. Entirely unexpected situations of a favorable nature may arise, and this period is auspicious for affairs of a progressive and humanitarian nature, and for works relating to art and adornment. After 12:39 p. m., until 5:36 p. m., is a disruptive period, at which time you should see that your temper or tongue does not get the best of you. Use care to avoid accidents. The remainder of the evening is favorable, for domestic, social and business affairs.

JANUARY 20--FRIDAY: This is apt to be a very disquieting day, when some bitter realizations will have to be faced. Others may be down on you with a club, and you may be critical and irrational. Today is better for quietness and solitude than for making strenuous efforts.

JANUARY 21--SATURDAY: Today until 1:21 p. m. is filled with the same influences as noted for yesterday. Conditions that have been growing tense can blaze into a full flame, leaving ashes. After 1:21 p. m. favors attending to minor affairs, and work that requires economy, patience and tact.

HOW TO USE THESE INDICATIONS TO BEST ADVANTAGE.

Should you receive an important telephone call, giving you the first news you have of a certain thing, look and see if the influences at that particular time are friendly or unfriendly. The outcome of that call will be colored by the influence prevailing then.

If you wish an astrological chart covering your sign of the Zodiac, Bernice Denton Pierson will be glad to send you one. State your birth month and date (year unnecessary). Write your name and address plainly. Accompany this with 10 cents in stamps or currency to cover clerical expenses, together with self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address: Bernice Denton Pierson, care Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Chart will be sent promptly.

Little Known Facts About Well-Known People

MEN WHO WROTE BEHIND PRISON BARS

They Went to Jail—and It Added to Their Greatness

By DALE CARNEGIE.

Who do you suppose was the most famous short story writer who ever lived? You have read his stories. More than 6,000,000 copies of his books have been sold; and they have been translated into almost every language on earth, including the Japanese, Esperanto, Czechoslovakian, Danish, Norwegian, French, German, Swedish and Russian. His pen name was O. Henry, and he was born about 70 years ago.

O. Henry's life is a striking illustration of a man who battled against tremendous odds and succeeded, in spite of terrible handicaps.

First, he had the handicap of very little education. He didn't even attend high school; and he never saw the inside of a college; yet today his stories are studied as models of good writing in half the universities of the land.

Second, he was handicapped by the ravages of disease. The doctors feared that he was going to die of consumption; so they kept him away from his home in North Carolina, sent him down to Texas, and he got a job herding sheep on a ranch there. Today, automobile tourists drive hundreds of miles out of their way to see that ranch; and as they approach it, they halt their cars and walk reverently over the ground where O. Henry once tended his flocks.

Third, he had the apparent misfortune of being thrown into prison. It happened in this way.

After he regained his health, O. Henry got a job as a cashier in a bank in Austin, Texas. The cowboys and shepherds in that section had the habit of walking into the bank when the clerks were busy and helping themselves to as much cash as they wanted, signing a receipt for it, and then coming on their business again. Suddenly, one day, a state bank examiner came to town, inspected the bank's cash—and found money missing. O. Henry, the cashier, was arrested. He was hauled into court; and although he protested he had never taken a dishonest cent from his job, nevertheless he was sent to prison for five years.

That prison sentence seemed like a calamity at the time; but, in a way, it was most fortunate: for O. Henry began writing, in prison, the brilliant stories that were to make his name famous and loved when ever the English language is spoken. It is quite probable that he would never have written at all if he hadn't been sent to prison.

I was talking to Warden Lawes, of Sing Sing, recently, and he told me that almost every man in Sing Sing wants to write the story of his life. In fact so many of the prisoners in Sing Sing want to write, that the prison school gives them a free course in short-story writing. Naturally, very few of them succeed; but nevertheless, it is a fact that many well-known men have written in jail.

For example, Sir Walter Raleigh, the famous dandy, who wore diamonds in his shoes and pearls in his ears; Sir Walter, the gallant courtier who teased Elizabeth into a mad pursuit for Queen Elizabeth's affection, even he wrote in jail. He was kept behind prison bars for 14 terrible years because of political jealousy.

His cell was damp and narrow, and the walls oozed muddy water. He suffered terribly from the cold. His left arm became stiff with rheumatism. His hand was gnarled and drawn with pain. But in spite of his misery and heartbreak, he wrote a history of the world while in prison—a history that is being studied in our schools and colleges even today—500 years after it was written.

For 12 years, John Bunyan was locked up in a jail—locked up because of his religious teachings. While in prison, he made lace to buy bread for his wife and four hungry children. But while his hands were busy making lace, his mind was busy with great thoughts; and there, in his cold, dark, damp dungeon, he wrote a book that almost every student in

Five years in jail gave him the leisure to write.

America has read. It is called "Pillgrim's Progress," and it has been translated into more languages than any other book that ever existed, with the exception of the Bible.

Cervantes wrote "Don Quixote," one of the great books of all time, in jail. Voltaire wrote in jail. Oscar Wilde wrote in jail. Eugene V. Debs wrote in jail. More than a million copies of Adolf Hitler's biography have been sold, and Hitler wrote part of that book in jail. In fact, I have just about come to the conclusion that if you want to write a book, it might be a good idea to smash a window and get yourself locked up.

When Richard Lovelace was thrown into an English prison, 250 years ago, he glorified his dungeon by writing one of the well-known poems of the English language. It is a love poem that he wrote to his sweetheart. It is entitled: "To Althea From Prison."

"Stone walls do not a prison make, Nor iron bars a cage. The spotless mind, and innocent, Can call that a prison; but, in a way, it was most fortunate: for O. Henry began writing, in prison, the brilliant stories that were to make his name famous and loved when ever the English language is spoken. It is quite probable that he would never have written at all if he hadn't been sent to prison."

Bridge Lite

By HAROLD SHARPSTEEN.
VANDERBILT CONVENTION.

"Sparta, Ga.

"Mr. Harold Sharpsteen.

"Dear Sir:

"I have heard lots about a one-club opening that indicates 3-1-2 honor tricks and a suit to bid when partner answers with a negative one diamond. I do not ever remember seeing this bid in the Culbertson system. Please explain.

"Naturally, it all boiled down to the question of why Hadley, or Hawkins, or Bennett, or whoever he was, had murdered Nora Fuller.

"Had the criminal been spreading a net for some girl, any girl, with this elaborate machinery of a rented house? The fact that Nora had not been assaulted seemed to deny this assumption. Then, had the criminal definitely set a trap for Nora Fuller, and only Nora Fuller?

"If this were so, how had he known that she would answer his advertisement?

"Wanted: Young white girl to take care of baby. Good home and wages. John Bennett, care this paper."

"Had he any reason to believe that Nora would not fail to answer this ad? The police began to think that this was very probable."

"The groceryman at the corner of the street where she lived had a strange story to tell. He declared that Nora had often used his phone to talk to someone 'who I thought must be a much older person because she always spoke so respectfully.'"

"Once, he said, she had talked to this person for half an hour. When she finally hung up she seemed dazed and had to sit down."

"Several others corroborated the story about the mysterious telephone calls. She had asked them not to tell mother about the calls. Questioning every one in the neighborhood who had ever known Nora, the police found a girl who had a very startling contribution indeed."

"According to her, she had often heard Nora account for time which she had really been spending at the theater with a man named Bennett!"

"Nora had often told her, she said, that Mr. Bennett was very serious with her, and had repeatedly told her that some day he would have something of great importance to reveal to her. The girl friend admitted that she had never seen Bennett, nor did she have any idea how long Nora had known him."

"Clue after clue proved misleading or absolutely false."

"And now our story takes its most fantastic turn. How much of truth, how much of speculation there is in all this we cannot say. But here it is."

"In Nora's purse, found in the pocket of her suit, there was a card with this engraved inscription:

Mr. M. A. Severbrink
Port Arthur

Port Arthur is a city in South

Manchuria, which in 1902 was part of China and in the possession of the old Russian empire."

"As it happened, Nora Fuller was born in China, the child of a former marriage of Mrs. Fuller's first husband, whose name was Parline. Mrs. Fuller told the police that she had spent many years in China."

"In 1890 Parline was first engineer of the Chinese steamer, Tai Wo. One hot summer night, while the vessel was docked in San Francisco, he went out on deck to get a breath of air. (Mrs. Parline had gone ashore.)"

"The ship was very quiet. Parline sat down on a chair to smoke. A few minutes later a messenger went in search of him. He was nowhere to be found."

"Parline had vanished. No trace of him ever was found, and the mystery never was solved. It did not seem likely that he had committed suicide by jumping overboard because even the scrape of his chair against the deck would have been heard as he stood up. The pipe he had been smoking lay still burning in his chair."

"And now, 12 years later, his daughter, born in China, had also died mysteriously."

"The neighbors all agreed that Nora had been a strange child. She had the bluest of blue eyes, but they were almond-shaped. Her skin, too, was dark, although her hair was straw-colored. She was very 'different,' the neighbors said; very dainty and 'high-toned.'"

"Much later the police found that a man named Severbrink—the same name as that on the card in Nora's purse—had embarked as a passenger on a ship which sailed for China at midnight, January 11."

"At that hour the girl lay dead in the house on Sutter street."

"The day after Nora's funeral Mrs. Fuller disappeared from San Francisco. She seemed frantic as she packed her poor belongings. She was never heard of again."

"What was it all about? Could Nora Fuller have been the heiress of some high-born Oriental family? Did Mrs. Fuller know this? Could the whole strange mystery have been a scheme to cover the girl's death by making it look like the work of a degenerate madman?"

"Why did Bennett go to the Popular Restaurant? Did he really meet the girl there? Or was the appointed rendezvous only a blind to prevent Mrs. Fuller from suspecting anything?"

"It seems unbelievable that Nora would simply meet the man and then meekly follow him to her death."

"The solution may lie in Severbrink. It might be that all the other men, whether two, three or four of them, were employees entrusted with the task of locating and getting Nora into their toils."

"Had Severbrink come all the way from the Orient to kill her?"

"Certainly she did not know him. It is possible that he gave her his card to prove to her that he was the man of whom Bennett had spoken."

"The postcard summoning Nora to the meeting had not been found when her body was discovered. The murderer had not overlooked that, but he had overlooked the calling card."

"But again the calling card may have been a deliberate plant, aimed at attracting attention to the mysterious visitor from Asia. If it was, it

FLOWERING SHRUBS

By W. ELBRIDGE FREEBORN.

The flowering shrubs for the most part, are those shrubs which lose their leaves during the spring or summer. These plants may be dug without a large ball of earth around the roots, because of their thoroughly dormant condition at this time of the year. However, it is most important that these roots be protected from the air. If they are exposed to the air for any length of time they will be killed, and for this reason good nurserymen wrap the roots with damp moss and burlap.

Prepare the hole in which they are to be planted with a great deal of care. The first and most important direction is to dig a hole that is of ample size. If the hole looks large enough, dig it twice as big and everything will be that much better. For a small size plant, such as are usually sold from nurseries, a hole 18 inches in diameter and 18 inches deep will be about right.

In the bottom of the hole, place about 4 inches of good top soil that has had a handful of bone meal or sheep manure mixed with it. This will give the roots some food as soon as they start growing. Set the plant a little deeper than it stood in the nursery—1 inch deeper will be about right. Spread the roots out in as natural a position as is possible, and as the soil is raked into the hole, shake the plant slightly so that the dirt will work itself close to the roots of the plant. As this is being done, work the soil tight about the roots with the fingers. When the hole is half filled, tramp the soil tightly, fill in the remainder of the hole without tramping, and water thoroughly.

Through a judicious choice of these ornamental flowering shrubs it is possible to have continuous blooming in your shrubbery borders, from early in January until late in the fall. January jasmine usually starts blooming during the early part of January, and is very well known because of its beautiful yellow trumpet-shaped flowers which cover the plant before the leaves appear. Shortly afterwards, forsythia or gold bell starts to bloom. This beautiful canary yellow flower is one of the most cheerful plants.

The various spiraea have been often referred to as the "famous family of spiraea" and it is indeed a famous family. A fame that is well deserved and earned, through continuously giving beauty and pleasure, with a minimum of work and trouble.

The dwarf member of this family, spiraea Anthony waterer, blooms occasionally throughout the summer. It quickly attains a height of 3 feet. Its common use is a border for the foundation planting, although it is occasionally used as a specimen plant or as edging groups of specimens.

The Van Houttei spiraea, a shrubby bower, is the most satisfactory and useful of all flowering shrubs. When it is in full bloom the branches are loaded down to the ground with a sheet of white beauty. The rich dark green leaves make it an attractive plant throughout the summer and fall. The uses of this plant are legion; it makes a fine hedge plant, excellent for use in foundation work, a beautiful border plant, and can be used extensively for lawn specimens.

The most common and most popular of the more popular flowering shrubs is the weigela rosea. It has a habit of growing from six to nine feet tall. The plant is a very vigorous grower, the flowers are deep pink in color, and appear in unusual profusion during the month of May.

Weigela Eva rathke grows in an entirely different manner from rosea. It has a much more spreading habit of growth, seldom reaching a height of more than 4 feet, but with all a very attractive plant. The blossoms are crimson with white throats, and the coloring will be much better and more marked if the plants are placed in light soil. It will grow very satisfactorily in semi-shade, and for this reason alone makes itself an important addition to most gardens.

Another of the more popular weigelas is weigela candida. As the name implies, this is the white weigela and is indeed a very beautiful plant.

One of the new plants that is similar in habit of growth to weigela but more erect and with considerably more character, is the beauty bush. The poor thing suffers with the botanical name of kolkwatzia amabilis. Be that as it may, it is a beauty bush in fact as well as in name. The flowers appear during May and June, and are bell shaped, with a throat filled with orange veins. The flowers are larger and better shaped than the weigela or abelia.

A number of other spring flowering shrubs particularly well adapted to the south are winter honeysuckle, kerria, flowering almon, flowering quince, flowering peach and mock orange, as well as many others. There is one important thing to remember about spring flowering shrubs—do not prune them now. Prune them after they bloom in the spring.

By far the most popular and in all probability the very finest summer flowering shrub is Crape Myrtle. It is oftentimes used as a specimen plant for the lawn and is unsurpassed for street planting. Crape Myrtle usually begins to bloom in early summer and flowers until frost. To insure continuous blooming cut the blossoms as fast as they appear; this will be good pruning for the plant. By the way, the most popular color here in Atlanta is watermelon red, but equally attractive are the pinks, whites and purples.

Mother, Mix Your Own Cough Remedy. It's Better

Quick, Comforting Relief. Saves Money. Easily Mixed.

No matter what you might spend for medicine, you couldn't get quicker, better relief from coughs that start from colds than this simple home mixture gives.

It takes but a moment to prepare—it's so easy a child could do it. And it saves real money.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and 1 cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking is needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from the drug store. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you

WHAT TO PLANT IN JANUARY.

VEGETABLES: Sow lettuce, cabbage and onion seeds in the cold frame. Start an asparagus bed at this time. Plant Bermuda onion plants, onion sets, cabbage plants, also garden peas, mustard, rape, turnips and carrots.

SHRUBBERY: Have your shrubbery planted this month. Evergreens, conifers and flowering shrubs.

PLANTS: Set out roses, strawberries, and Japanese iris plants.

FRUITS AND BERRIES: This month is a fine time for planting all kinds of fruit trees and nut trees, berries, grapes and squabperrones.

JAPANESE LILIES: All of the Japanese lilies may be planted now, including speciosum magnificum, auratum, tiger lilies, album, etc.

BULBS: It is getting late but spring flowering bulbs will still grow and bloom if planted at once. These include hyacinths, daffodils, crocus, tulips and iris bulbs.

all kinds of flowering shrubs as well as evergreens and roses. Early planting insures less loss, better growth, and more flowers for next spring, and flowering shrubs with their continuous beauty will add materially to the beauty of the outdoor living room, the shrub border, the foundation planting, and to the beauty of the home.

Beautification of the home with shrubs holds a measure of personal satisfaction greater than any other home improvement. This pleasure comes from the satisfaction of knowing that your home is a thing of beauty to you and your family, as well as a home that may be pointed to by friends and neighbors with pride.

Questions, Answers On Garden Subjects

By MRS. FLETCHER PEARSON CROWN

Question: What do you think of planting gladioli now?

Answer: I have never planted gladioli this early. Every year some of mine get left in the ground, and without any protection, freeze through the winter and are the first to wake up and give me early blossoms. I begin planting about the first of March and continue at intervals of two or three weeks until the middle or last of May. All who are interested in gladioli should attend the meetings at the Garden Center, where professional growers will give freely of their knowledge and experience. These flowers are inexpensive, beautiful and very easy to grow successfully.

As this is mid-winter, it is time to get your strong spraying done, spraying which is too strong to use on summer foliage. At this time of the year, plants are dormant and as resistant to outside conditions as it is possible to ever find them. This spraying should be done on a still day when the thermometer is not under 40. Use lime sulphur or a prepared oil spray. First, I would spray roses before I get tired and lose my enthusiasm to do a thorough job. Spray the ground around the plants also. Spray flowering quince, spiraea, canthia, lilacs and ligustrum. If any of your broadleaf evergreens have spots like iron rust, spray these with Bordeaux mixture. Also, such things as hollies, japonicas, mountain laurel, leucothoe and rhododendron.

I would use this spray also on my roses to be double sure against both flowering crabs and fruiting crabs, peaches and plums need spraying with lime sulphur. Do not put off these sprayings, because spring will be here before you know it, and then this spraying cannot be done.

If you feel your plants need feeding, now is a good time to give them generously of super-phosphate. On small shrubs apply it about 12 inches away from the main stem. On larger ones use it further away. I make a trench and put the fertilizer in the trench, and then I dig it in. Pull the soil back over the trench and if dry, water thoroughly.

WHAT TO DO IN JANUARY.

MULCHING: January is a good month for all kinds of mulching.

The rose bed, perennial garden and shrubbery border should be protected. The best material for this mulching is a mixture of sheep manure, peat moss and wood shavings. One bale of peat moss, 100 pounds of sheep manure, one wheelbarrow of wood shavings.

FERTILIZER: It is also time to fertilize the lawn with a light application of some good fertilizer such as bone meal or sheep manure. These two fertilizers are much preferred over the highly concentrated commercial ones at this season of the year. Use raw bone meal for bulbs and perennials.

PRUNING: Take the tall stems out of hybrid perpetual roses as well as the dead wood. Wait until next month to do the final pruning of rose bushes. Remove the dead wood from all shrubbery and evergreens and give the fruit trees a good pruning.

SPRAYING: Now that fruit trees are dormant be sure and give a good thorough spraying with sulphur or for peach trees use dry lime sulphur.

Tarzan

by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

TRAPPED

LINDA CHOKED BACK A SOB OF PITY AS SHE BEHELD THE APE-MAN LYING MOTIONLESS.

SHE DROPPED DOWN BESIDE HIM, AND TO HER RELIEF SHE SAW THAT HE STILL BREATHED.

BUT MARSADA PULLED HER ROUGHLY AWAY, AND SIGNALED THE BLACKS TO SEIZE THE CAPTIVE.

"WE'VE GOT HIM! WE'VE GOT THE 'MISSING LINK!'" MARSADA CRIED, EXCITEDLY.

SO TARZAN WAS BORNE AWAY TO A GREAT CAGE. THE BLACKS THRUST HIM INSIDE AND LOCKED THE DOOR.

SOON HE STIRRED. HIS BULLET-PIERCED HAND THROBBED WITH PAIN. HE LICKED HIS WOUNDS LIKE A BEAST.

SLOWLY CONSCIOUSNESS RETURNED BUT TARZAN WAS STILL DAZED FROM HIS FALL.

HE PERCEIVED ONLY THAT HE WAS IMPRISONED. INSTINCTIVELY HE DASHED AT THE BARS.

FRENZIEDLY HE PULLED AT THEM. FIERCE, ANGRY GROWLS RUMBLED IN HIS THROAT.

THIS WAS NOT TARZAN, THE MAN, BUT TARZAN THE JUNGLE BEAST IN ALL FURY.

MARSADA LAUGHED. LINDA'S HEART WAS FILLED WITH ACHING SYMPATHY. THE BLACKS SHUDDERED WITH AWE. MIGHTY WAS TARZAN, BUT HIS STRENGTH WAS FUTILE AGAINST THE BARS. HE WAS HOPELESSLY IMPRISONED. NEXT WEEK: A NEW DANGER

AFTER MONTHS OF EXPLORING FEVER-RIDDEN ECUADOREAN JUNGLES, CAPTAIN LOCH'S EXPEDITION DECIDES TO GO AFTER THE HIDDEN INCA TREASURE. THEIR ONLY GUIDE IS AN ANCIENT DOCUMENT LEFT BY VALVERDE, A SPANISH CONQUISTADOR, WHO KNEW ABOUT THE HOARD OF GOLD, HIDDEN OVER 400 YEARS AGO...

AT LAST WERE OFF FOR THE INCA GOLD

BUT IT'S JUST AS IMPORTANT TO FIND A SHORT CUT TO THE AMAZON. I'M SURE A PASS EXISTS

RAIN, SLEET, BITTER COLD DELAY PROGRESS. THEY CAMP IN A VALLEY ONE NIGHT WHEN SUDDENLY—

TOUGH GOING, ERIC. HOW'S FOR LETTING UP A CAMEL

OKAY—GREAT SCOTT! WHAT'S THAT?

WITH FOOD SUPPLIES RUNNING LOW, LOCH PUSHES ON DESPERATELY, UP STEEP TRAILS WHERE THE SLIGHTEST SLIP SPELLS CERTAIN DEATH

WELL, WE'VE PICKED UP ALL VALVERDE'S LANDMARKS SO FAR. NOW IF WE CAN JUST FIND THAT LAKE HE DESCRIBED

THEN ONE DAY—THEY REACH A GIANT PEAK. FAR BELOW GLEAMS A TINY LAKE—EXACTLY AS VALVERDE'S GUIDE HAD DESCRIBED IT!

LOOK, ERIC, THERE'S THE LAKE—THE TREASURE!

SURE ENOUGH, BUT WE CAN'T STOP. WE MUST FIND THE PASS FIRST

AT LAST—AFTER DAYS OF INDESCRIBABLE HARDSHIP—WORN, HAGGARD, THE PARTY FINALLY SIGHTS ITS GOAL—THE PASS!

SENIOR! LOOK! THAT'S IT WITHOUT A DOUBT, AND THE AMAZON VALLEYS BEYOND. THIS TRIP WILL GO DOWN IN HISTORY. AND SOON WE'LL BE BACK FOR THAT INCA GOLD

I WANT YOU TO GO BACK AND ARRANGE FOR FRESH MEN AND EQUIPMENT TO GET THE GOLD. I'M GOING ON THROUGH TO THE PASS

I KNOW IT'S THE THING TO DO, ERIC. BUT I SURE HATE TO LEAVE YOU NOW—

KEEPING ONLY THREE NATIVE PORTERS, CAPTAIN LOCH PUSHES ON TO THE PASS. THEN ONE DAY ON A LEDGE—A SLIP—A DANGEROUS PLUNGE—

HEY!

LOCH GETS A CRUSHED LEG AND 2 BROKEN RIBS OUT OF HIS TUMBLE. PRECIOUS DAYS ARE LOST BEFORE THE PARTY CAN PRESS ON AGAIN

ARRIVING AT A RAGING TORRENT THAT BALKS PROGRESS, LOCH MAKES 17 ATTEMPTS TO SPAN IT... EACH BRIDGE IS SWEEPED AWAY. FINALLY, LOCH ANCHORS TREES ON A MID-STREAM BOULDER—LEADS HIS MEN ACROSS STEADY! ONE SLIP AND OVER YOU GO!

MONTHS LATER, LOCH AND A NEW EXPEDITION DISCOVER AN ANCIENT GOLD MINE, SOURCE OF INCA TREASURE

THESE NUGGETS ASSAY 21 KARATS—AND BY THEIR SIZE, I'D SAY THE MOTHER LODE IS CLOSE BY

"WHAT WE DO, MIST PAT? IF IT'S TRUE THAT BARON DE PLEXUS IS BUILDING AN AIRPORT - THEN HE'S LIKELY TO HAVE HAD DILLON KANE ABDUCTED BECAUSE HE KNEW TOO MUCH..."

"BUT MAYHAPS MEAN MIST BARON NOT UP TO EVIL DOIN'S!"

"YOU DON'T BUILD LANDING FIELDS IN THIS WILDERNESS FOR FUN - AND THE BARON HAS A SHADY MOB WORKING FOR HIM!..."

"AS PAT AND CONNIE NEAR DE PLEXUS' PLANTATION, THEY APPROACH AN ELECTRIC ALARM SYSTEM THAT ENCIRCLES THE PROPERTY..."
